U. S. Airmen Drift 200 Miles in Week—Their Own Story

VICTIMS PICKED UP FROM A RAFT BY DESTROYER

Flyers Fight Sharks; Eat Flying Fish.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune.]

WITH THE PACIFIC FLEET, Sept. 26 [Delayed].—Seven men who crashed in a Flying Fortress bomber are recuperating aboard a ship in our task force after their rescue from a four man raft on which they had floated 200 miles in a week with little water or food. One man had died the night before the rescue and another leaped over the side the same night when he lost his mind.

In the week which elapsed before the men were rescued by a destroyer, they had fought off several attacks by sharks and had been forced to eat a flying fish when their food ran out. However, when picked up they were suffering only from sunburn and exposure; otherwise, they were well.

When their story was told, officers said they believed their experience constituted the first time a Flying Fortress has crashed at sea and the crew has survived.

Men Who Were Rescued.

Pilot of the Fortress was Lieut. James P. Van Haur, 24 years old, of Missoula, Mont. Other members of the crew who were rescued were: Lieuts. Arvid W. Anderson, 26, of Bremerton, Wash., co-pilot, and Sidney I. Darden, 26, of Waco, Tex., navigator; Sergts. Joseph Gagnon, 23, of Tupper Lake, N. Y., bombardier, and Constantine Rusesky, 23, Shenandoah, Penn., engineer, and Pvt. V. L. Murray, 25, of St. Regis, Mont.

[The name of the seventh man rescued was not received.]

Lieut. Anderson told this story, with the aid of Van Haur and Darden:

"One engine went bad. We kept dropping back from the other planes and when night fell we had lost sight of them completely. The radio compass was not working and it was bad weather—so bad that it took both Van Haur and me to hold the ship.

Call for Landing Lights.

"Finally Cy—Darden—told us we were over some islands. We could see the shoreline, but no lights. We circled and kept calling for lights, but for some reason they were not turned on or we could not pick them up. We were afraid to let down because of the mountains. We circled from about 9:30 until about 11:30 p m.

"We were getting low on gas. We were not afraid, but had a kind of sickening feeling. So we went out to sea for a short way, because we did not have a prayer of landing in the hills. We had to let down to 200 feet before we could see the water. It looked damn rough. We dropped the flaps to slow our speed. We had never made a water landing, so we made a regular landing, and it was a honey. Most of the times the planes break in two, but this one did not.

Flyers Turn on Lights.

"As we turned on the lights we could see the waves and whitecaps and knew that if we hit one head-on we were about done. Both Van Haur and I had the sensation that we should put the throttle forward and go up at the last moment, but we did not. There was a blinding crash, like somebody hitting you on the head, and a hell of a racket that filled your brain. I looked out of the cockpit and could see the water whipping by. It looked as tho we were playing submarine.

"Van's window stuck, but mine opened and out we went. The others got out thru the windows of the radio compartment. We took emergency rations and rafts, but one failed and the other two would inflate only half way.

Stuff a Raft Inside a Raft.

"The first night some of the men were on a two-man raft and some were on a four-man raft. In the morning we stuffed the small raft inside the big one because the sea had been overturning it.

"We had a gallon and a quart of water. It was brackish and at first we were not even sure it was water, but we drank it and it was. We also had eight one-man ration kits and

STORY OF YANKEE RAID TOLD FROM INSIDE A BOMBER

[This eye witness account of a mass raid by United States heavy bombers on an important mission against an axis sea transport center was written in a four motor Consolidated Liberator bomber.]

BY EDWARD KENNEDY.

Edward Kennedy.

WITH THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCE OVER GREECE, Oct. 3 (AP)—[Delayed].—Mass formations of giant American bombers are attacking ships in Navarino bay, one of the enemy's main bases for supplying Marshal Erwin Rommel's army in Africa. It is a daylight raid and one of the biggest and most spectacular so far made in this theater of war.

We unloose a terrific shower of heavy bombs upon our target. The enemy replies with a storm of anti-aircraft shells which burst about us.

Pursuit planes attack us and our gunners meet them with concentrated fire which sends four of them crashing down into the sea in smoke and flames.

[An official account of this air smash last Saturday, the second in 48 hours by heavy bombers of the United States middle east air force command, said that two large supply ships were hit squarely and exploded and that of five axis fighters which attacked the American formation, four—three Messerschmitt 109s and a Macchi 202—were sent blazing into the sea. The Greek port of Pylos is on Navarino Bay. It is at the mouth of the Ionian sea, on the west coast of the Peloponnesus in southern Greece, about 130 airline miles southwest of Athens.]

All Planes, Men Safe.

We get some scars but all our planes are safe and all our men are alive as we set off for home, leaving death and destruction behind us in Navarino bay this sunny Saturday afternoon.

We are in four motored Consolidated B-24's of the heavy bombardment group which forms an important part of Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton's air force in the middle east.

Seven war correspondents under Maj. Robert H. Parham of Norman, Okla., are on this raid, each in a different plane. It is the first time that reporters have participated in a mass American air force mission.

It started this morning when we went to the operations room which looks like a country schoolhouse. In place of the blackboard is a big map and before it stands Maj. John R. ["Killer"] Kane, of Shreveport, La., who will lead our planes.

Listen to Instructions.

Few schoolboys ever listened as eagerly as we do while he tells his airmen and us what the target will be and traces the route on the map. We are told at what height we will fly and how we will come in for the kill. A time signal is given. Every one sets his watch to the split second. Then we go to the planes.

Once we are all off the ground

NAVY BELIEVES JAPS QUIT TWO ALEUTIAN ISLES

Flyers Find No Foe on Agattu or Attu.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—Japan's hold on America's western Aleutian Islands tonight appeared to be weakening rapidly.

The navy announced there was no trace of the enemy on either Attu, the westernmost island first seized by the Japs, or on nearby Agattu, where the enemy also had placed small forces.

The Japs were still in possession of Kiska Island, their most important base in the area, but so far as was known that was the only island they held, and it was under repeated and heavy attack by air.

Believe Japs Have Withdrawn.

This information was given out in a navy communique which cautiously refrained from claiming the enemy actually had withdrawn from Attu and Agattu. From the announced fact that considerable aerial reconnaissance had failed to produce any sign of occupancy "for several weeks," it seemed clear, however, that a withdrawal had been effected.

Moreover, American bombers have destroyed most of the buildings on Attu. Regarding Kiska, the communique said that "attacks by our aircraft continue" and reported specifically that on Monday army Liberator bombers, with fighter escorts, dropped many bombs on the camp area and a seaplane hangar.

Down Six Jap Planes.

Six enemy seaplane fighters were shot down. The Japs also put up light anti-aircraft opposition, but all the American aircraft returned to their base.

The communique did not mention the situation in the south Pacific, where at last reports, the Japanese were reënforcing their troops on Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons in preparation for a renewed attempt to capture the American defense positions and airfield.

The base from which the American aircraft made their latest attack on the Japs in the Aleutians undoubtedly is the new operations center in the Andreanof Islands, about 125 nautical miles from Kiska. Its occupation by army troops and air forces was announced by the navy only last Saturday, altho it had been effected several weeks earlier. This westward advance, putting American forces more than 250 miles northwest of their original base at Dutch Harbor and within easy bombing range of Kiska, has made the Japanese position on Kiska highly precarious.

Occupied in June.

The enemy began his action against the Aleutians with a bombing attack on Dutch Harbor June 3, the day before the main engagements of the battle of Midway.

On June 12 the navy announced that Attu had been occupied. Subsequently, the occupation of Kiska and Agattu was reported. Attu is 769 nautical miles west of Dutch Harbor and Agattu is about 35 miles southeast of Attu. Both are desolate peaks of land on which it has been generally predicted the Japs would have had a bitter time of it this winter.

Kiska is 585 nautical miles west of Dutch Harbor and by far the best of the islands the Japs seized. The Japanese have operated submarines from Kiska harbor and fighter planes from its shores.

90 DAY DELAY SOUGHT IN U. S. GAS RATIONING

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—The petroleum industry war council recommended today a 90 day delay in the inauguration of nation-wide gasoline rationing to determine whether the 35 mile an hour speed limit and voluntary coöperation "cannot accomplish as much as coupon rationing."

The recommendation was made in a resolution submitted to Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes. The council is composed of representatives of the industry.

It's a Hanging Matter, This Neighbor Feud

Passersby on a certain block of Marquette avenue yesterday afternoon could not fail to observe Joseph Mendrala. Mr. Mendrala, who is 53 years old and a steel worker, was at his premises at 8345 Marquette.

It cannot be said that Mr. Mendrala was on his premises. Neither was he off them, in the strict sense. You couldn't say he was on his house, yet he certainly wasn't off it. Nor was he in it. But he was there, and the noises he was making attracted about 60 other persons.

Mr. Mendrala was hanging by his hands from an eaves gutter about 20 feet off the ground. He made it clear in a ringing voice that he wanted some one to pick up the long ladder that lay nearby, put it against the house and assist him to the ground. But no one seemed likely to do so.

Feud Reaches Breaking Point.

The reason for this was Walter Swierski, a plumber, who lives next door at 8339 Marquette avenue. Any one wishing to assist Mr. Mendrala would have to walk upon the property of Mr. Swierski. And Mr. Swierski was waving a length of iron pipe.

It might be explained here that the Messrs. Mendrala and Swierski care naught for each other—and haven't for a long time. Their quarrels over minor property infringements have gone on for years. Yesterday matters reached the breaking point—at least for Mr. Mendrala.

To clean the eaves gutter of leaves Mr. Mendrala was forced to rest the foot of his ladder on his neighbor's property. The tree that shed the leaves is on Mr. Swierski's land, incidentally. Mr. Mendrala had removed just about three handsful of leaves when Mr. Swierski issued from his home with a great outcry, snatched the ladder away, and laid it carefully upon the fringe of Mendrala property that flanked the house. Mr. Mendrala, his body swaying in the breeze, hung onto the eaves.

There the Matter Hangs.

"Now stay over there!" shouted Mr. Swierski. Mr. Mendrala, of necessity, did stay—right under his own eaves, but he began announcing his plight in a loud voice.

None in the crowd that gathered cared to brave Mr. Swierski's iron pipe and the ladder could not be raised properly unless its feet extended farther than Mr. Mendrala's property line permitted. This was the situation when Policemen Daniel Barrett and William Horne arrived from the South Chicago avenue station after Mr. Mendrala had been up there 22 minutes.

At the sight of uniforms Mr. Swierski retired to his home and locked the doors. The police put up the ladder and Mr. Mendrala came down, shouting for vengeance. But there could be no arrest because Mr. Swierski was in his own home and there was no warrant. Altho several spectators told the police about the iron pipe, it seemed Mr. Swierski had threatened no one in particular and was only defending the sanctity of his own premises.

And there the matter rested, tho Mr. Mendrala announced vehemently that he will have Mr. Swierski arrested today—for something.

Survives Two Torpedoings, Killed by Freight Train

Martinez, Cal., Oct. 7 (AP).—Harry M Weston, 42 years old, survivor of two torpedoings at sea, went to work six days ago as a painter for the Southern Pacific railroad. Last night he was hit by a freight train and killed.

Robbery, Rape and Kidnaping Laid to Soldier

WANTED BY POLICE!

Irwin Kadens, 32 years old. Height, 5 feet 8 inches. Weight, 150 pounds. Has black hair, bushy eyebrows, protruding ears, a long and prominent nose, a large mole on his right upper lip and two other moles on his left cheekbone. Information leading to his arrest wanted by Chicago police and Federal Bureau of Investigation.

BY CARL WIEGMAN.

Irwin Kadens.

The strange case of Irwin Kadens, who at the age of 32 abandoned a life of respectability, a wife and two small daughters, and the honored uniform of the United States army for a life of robbery and rape, was told last night by the police.

Kadens is being sought by the police of Chicago and Detroit, Mich.; by the FBI, and by military police. All officers have been warned that he is known to be armed and "shoots on sight."

Three months ago Kadens was a soldier at Camp Grant. A promising army career was opening for him, for previously he had served for eight years in the Illinois National Guard. On July 14 he failed to return from a furlough. Since that time, police said, he is suspected of committing the following crimes:

Aug. 16—Burglarized a policeman's home in Detroit and stole a policeman's uniform, gun, and handcuffs.

Aug. 17—Kidnaped a Detroit couple, forcing them to drive to Chicago. He raped the woman twice, once in Detroit and once in Chicago.

Held Up Mail Truck.

Aug. 27—Held up a United States mail truck at 120 North Union avenue and forced the driver to surrender his gun and a sack of registered mail.

Sept. 20—Exchanged shots with a deputy sheriff at Bucyrus, O.

Sept. 23—Kidnaped a young man and woman on the west side, drove them to Winnetka, and unsuccessfully tried to rape the woman.

Sept. 24—Kidnaped another couple at 1221 South Trumbull avenue and robbed them.

Sept. 27—Kidnaped a young man and woman, tied them with rope, drove to Melrose Park, and attempted to rape the woman.

Sept. 28—Shot Policeman Joseph Krysinski in front of 1729 Monroe street when the policeman sought to question him about a stolen automobile.

Assaulted Another Girl.

Oct. 6—Kidnaped another young couple on the west side, drove them to the forest preserve near River Forest, and raped the young woman.

Oct. 7—Robbed Richard W. Coburn, a purchasing agent, of $120 and took his car after accosting him in his garage in the rear of Coburn's home at 4854 North Rockwell street. The car later was recovered in front of 2731 Carmen avenue.

In six of these cases, police said, Kadens' picture has been identified as that of the criminal. In the others evidence has been found linking him to the crime. Thus, he is wanted on two charges of rape, two charges of attempted rape, one charge of kidnaping under the Lindbergh act, one charge of burglary, one charge of assault to kill a policeman, one charge of mail robbery, and several addi-

So workmen installed a bathtub in the offices yesterday, the only one in the building, just in case Ickes wants to splash.

UMWA FOLLOWS EDICT OF LEWIS, SEVERS CIO TIES

Choose Between Us, Convention Told.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 7 (AP). — The United Mine Workers of America late today voted almost unanimously to withdraw from the Congress of Industrial Organizations to complete a two year steadily widening breach.

John L. Lewis, UMWA chieftain and former CIO president, virtually told the miners in a 56 minute speech to decide between him and the CIO. Altho most speakers, previous to Lewis, asked delegates to vote against the split, only a scattering of delegates stood after the majority had shouted their approval of Lewis' stand.

"I think this convention, in honor to itself and in honor to its officers, should adopt this report," Lewis declared, referring to the committee on officers' report, which recommended withdrawal.

Ovation from Delegates.

"If you do not adopt this report, then you do not want a man like me as your president," he added. "You want a man with more rabbit in him than I've got."

This statement ended the debate and set off a roof-shaking demonstration.

The committee report said "We . . . commend the officials for their forthright analysis of the effect of the prevailing attitude of the officers of the CIO as not being constructive nor in the best interests of organized labor.

"Your committee believes that the United Mine Workers of America should not further condone such action by members who are officers of the CIO, or any one of the affiliated units, while furthering a policy of public opposition to the United Mine Workers of America and its officers.

Cut All Official Ties.

"Your committee, therefore, recommends to this convention that the United Mine Workers of America now officially withdraw from the CIO and direct its subordinate units and members to withdraw from any official participation in the affairs, or affiliation with any unit of the CIO, until such time as the CIO sees fit to correct its errors, desist from its policy of denunciation and antagonistic attitude toward the United Mine Workers of America, and recognize its valid financial obligations."

The international officers' report charged the CIO with owing the UMWA $1,665,000 in negotiated loans, resulting in the UMWA's refusal since last spring to pay a per capita tax to the CIO.

Charges Smear Campaign.

Lewis, in his second public speech in nearly two years, asserted that CIO leaders are conducting a campaign to discredit him with his own union and with President Roosevelt.

"There can be no unity unless your adversary wants it," Lewis shouted. "The CIO has been out to destroy district 50, trying to get local unions 'to join that pure organization, the CIO.'

"Do you want to pay dues to an organization and have it use the money to destroy your union? I sometimes wonder how much some of our members will take."

Ready to Discuss Unity.

Lewis declared that the UMWA will be ready to discuss unity with other labor groups when they are ready.

"Last February I suggested conferences with the American Federation of Labor and the CIO," he reported. "The AFL accepted the invitation, bad as their record is and foolish as Old Bill Green [AFL president and former UMWA organizer] is on some subjects. But the CIO said 'No' and its officers rushed to Washington to ask the President to save them from that terrible man John Lewis."

Not AFL Matter: Green.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 7 (AP).—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor said tonight the withdrawal of the United Mine Workers of America from the CIO would have "no bearing on the deliberations or actions of this convention," and that the break was solely a matter between the UMWA and CIO and did not involve the AFL.

HUNT DESPERADO FOR 1-MAN CRIME WAVE IN MIDWEST

Rape, Kidnaping and Mail Robbery Laid to Him.

tional charges of robbery and automobile theft.

The police section of the hunt is directed by Capt. Louis Klatzco of the Fillmore street station, Capt. George Teeling of the stolen auto detail, and Sergt. Patrick McShane. Their search was intensified after the rape-kidnaping Tuesday night, which showed Kadens still was operating in the Chicago district.

The police have pieced together the shocking story of Kadens' recent life as follows:

He was born on the west side of Chicago, the son of a tailor, Jacob Kadens, who now lives at 2732 Potomac avenue. When Irwin was a small boy his parents were divorced and his father remarried. Irwin attended the public schools and was graduated from high school with a good scholastic record.

Promoted in Postoffice.

In 1935 he got a job as a clerk in the main postoffice, and two years later was promoted to money order clerk. He was married, and two baby girls were born. They are now 5 and 2.

In this picture of a normal, useful citizen, police investigators found only one flaw. Several years ago Kadens started to gamble heavily on the horse races. He got into debt, deeper and deeper, as he borrowed from one finance company to pay another. Eventually he owed $1,800.

Fellow workers noticed he became moody and erratic in his behavior. Sometimes he talked wildly about killing himself; again he would talk about joining the army and say: "I'll never come back."

When the National Guard was inducted into federal service Kadens resigned because he had to support his wife and children. Last spring, however, when the pressure of his debts seemed unbearable, he decided to seek refuge from them in the army. His wife, Jeanette, signed a waiver, and he volunteered for service in June. Mrs. Kadens got a job in a west side war plant.

Listed as Deserter July 14.

On his first furlough from Camp Grant, Kadens came back to see his family in their home at 3301 Polk street. He never went back to Camp Grant. The army listed him as a deserter on July 14.

There was no clew to Kadens' whereabouts until Sept. 20. On that date, a deputy sheriff in Bucyrus, O., exchanged shots with a soldier who tried to force a filling station operator to buy an old automobile tire. The man escaped on foot, leaving his automobile. In the car police found a Detroit policeman's uniform.

Detroit police quickly identified the uniform as the one stolen by a burglar, and connected the burglary with the kidnaping of the Detroit couple, who said their abductor had worn a uniform.

The couple then picked out a picture of Kadens from the police gallery of army deserters in Chicago. Meanwhile, on Aug. 27, a mail truck had been robbed in Chicago by a man wearing a police uniform. The driver reported the robber seemed thoroly familiar with the methods used in handling the mail sacks. This seemed curious to Chicago police until they learned of Kadens' connection with the Detroit and Bucyrus crimes, and noted he was a former mail clerk, and at that time, had a stolen policeman's uniform.

The shooting of Policeman Krysinski later was linked to Kadens when police searched a stolen car found near the scene. In it was the title to an automobile belonging to the Detroit policeman whose home was looted.

On Sept. 23 the series of kidnapings began in Chicago. One after the other, the victims picked out Kadens' picture, explaining his appearance was unmistakable. They also told how he behaved, his mannerisms and commands, which indicated to police Kadens was the kidnaper in each case.

For a desperado wanted for a series of crimes, Kadens' behavior on these kidnapings was astonishingly careless, police said. He would order the couple into the back seat, tie their hands behind their backs, and then drive the car away himself, leaving his pistol on the front seat beside him.

Almost Led to Undoing.

In the kidnaping and rape attempt in Winnetka, this carlessness almost led to his undoing. The young man and woman victims, seized at Keeler avenue and Lake street, were tied with light string. After the young woman had successfully resisted the rape attempt, her escort broke the string bonds and grabbed the pistol.

Altho the car was in motion the kidnaper left the wheel and lunged back to recover the gun. In the struggle the young man fired all the shots in the weapon before the kidnaper took it from him. The car rolled into a ditch, and the couple fled on foot, knowing the gun to be empty.

In the kidnaping that led to Melrose Park, the abductor took the girl into a cornfield, and tried to rape her. She screamed and he took her back to the car. Then he forced her escort to get out and drove to a Maywood station of the Garfield Park elevated line. Abandoning the car, he got on the "L" with the terrified girl, paid her fare, and rode with her to Laramie avenue, where he got off. She rode to another station near the home of friends, who called police.

Follows Same Procedure.

The kidnaping-rape on Tuesday night was conducted in almost exactly the same way, except that the kidnaper stopped on the way to the forest preserve and offered to buy his victims some sandwiches. They refused, so he went into a restaurant, bought a sandwich for himself, and ate it.

All the victims described the kidnaper as a neatly dressed man, who spoke softly and courteously most of the time. He told most of them he had seized them to get money so he could get out of town.

Last night Mrs. Kadens was working on the night shift at a war plant. In her third floor flat another woman was taking care of her two little girls.

ANNA B. JAMES.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 7 (AP).—Anna B. James, 22 year old hotel manicurist, was ordered held under $5,000 bond today by Circuit Judge James Chenot "on suspicion of murder" in the death of Clyde A. McCoy, Fort Wayne, Ind., attorney, believed poisoned in a hotel room party last Friday night.

Prosecutor William E. Dowling had asked the court to continue a writ of habeas corpus and after fixing the bond, Judge Chenot continued the hearing to Oct. 15.

Dowling said that a least a week would be needed to complete an examination and analysis of McCoy's vital organs to determine whether he actually was poisoned. Miss James told police that another woman, yet unidentified, placed "knockout drops" in his soft drinks during a party in McCoy's room.

Meanwhile, a search continued for the second woman, described by Miss James as red haired and about 40 years old.

PAPER THUNDERS UNDERGROUND TO TRIBUNE PRESSES

Fast Railway Links Docks, Warehouses, Plant.

(This is the fifth article in a series describing The Tribune's vast achievements in the fields of graphic arts and newspaper production in the 71 years since its plant was destroyed in the great fire of 1871, whose 71st anniversary is being observed this week.)

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

You stand at the forks of a narrow tunnel. On your right the passage is dark, but the left fork is lighted and it climbs swiftly into the distance.

Gradually from the far end comes sound; a steady rattling that rises harshly as steel wheels clash against the tracks that line the floor. A white cylinder six feet long and more than three feet across is hurtling toward you down the tunnel, the noise of its coming swelling swiftly into a reverberating roar. You leap back involuntarily as it thunders past.

You are just below the intersection of Hubbard and St. Clair streets, in the tunnel that connects THE TRIBUNE's Michigan avenue plant with its vast paper warehouses along the Chicago river. Before sunrise the 1,800 pound juggernaut that just roared by will have been printed, cut, and folded into more than 10,000 TRIBUNES. The papers—it's component parts—will be lying on doorsteps and in hallways in many parts of the city.

Hundreds Pass Nightly.

Every half minute one of these big spools, containing 18,000 feet of white newsprint — paper — will boom down the tunnel to the pressroom. Six nights a week 340 of them go past. On a Saturday night—when the big SUNDAY TRIBUNE is on the presses — you can count 832.

Seventy-one years ago tonight Chicago was burning. The next night, Oct. 9, 1871, all the Tribune's physical properties had gone up in smoke. Two days later the paper was publishing again and had started it's fight to survive amid the ruins of a flame shattered city. How well that fight succeeded is attested by a mighty gothic tower that symbolizes THE TRIBUNE's growth.

Another great spool thunders down the tunnel. And it is a reminder that THE TRIBUNE of '42 prints in a month three times the number of papers issued in a year by THE TRIBUNE of '71. It is a reminder, too, that the old TRIBUNE didn't even use paper on rolls; that crews standing high on runways fed single sheets into the thumping presses of that day.

Miles of Paper a Yardstick.

There are many ways of tracing THE TRIBUNE's rise. But its mushrooming need for white paper is as dramatic and probably the most graphic medium, now that the reader has visualized the immensity of one week's consumption of newsprint and the vast amount of white paper contained in one of those 1,800 pound rolls.

It was in 1873, a year after this newspaper had moved into its new 5 story home at Madison and Dearborn, that single sheet paper was discarded with the purchase of a press that required rolls. The circulation then was 28,500 4 page papers a day and three rolls were needed to print them.

Circulation went up steadily, however, and by 1900 the circulation was 84,000 papers of 12 to 16 pages with up to 68 on Sundays. About 300 rolls a week were fed into the presses.

Fred von der Horst, superintendent of Tribune warehouses, who has handled TRIBUNE newsprint for 41 years, recalls that at least five wagon loads—11 rolls to the wagon—were hauled four days a week from the Lake Shore railroad freight house, Taylor and Clark streets. Unloading was an arduous task, requiring the help of many men in addition to the mechanical aids such as trucks, hoisters, trolleys, and dollies that had been devised. Storage capacity then was about 70 rolls. A surplus of 400 stayed at the depot.

Build Mill on Welland Canal.

In the years that followed manufacturers customarily stored paper THE TRIBUNE had purchased. In 1913 a mill at Thorold on the Welland canal between Lakes Erie and Ontario was built and its output began coming in. In 1917 warehouse expansion began with the leasing of a warehouse at Erie street and the river, so that paper could be unloaded from ships and barges. A tiering machine was acquired to stack paper more than one roll high and thus increase storage space. This was an innovation.

By 1920, when the Michigan avenue plant was occupied, storage was a real problem. The building was especially designed to facilitate paper handling and storage and a railroad spur was built to the plant from a warehouse on East Illinois street just north of Ogden slip, in which six storage floors had been rented.

The plant basement provided space for a vast amount of paper and this was kept filled by motor trucks, which now were in use, shuttling between warehouse and platform. When the tower was built in 1924-'25 storage for 1,900 rolls was available. An ingenius device to facilitate handling was designed and patented in 1925 by Von der Horst. It was a chute system which carried the rolls by gravity from the loading dock to the reel room beneath the presses.

Unload 16 to 18 Cars in Day.

By this method 16 to 18 cars of 40 rolls each could be unloaded in an eight hour day. And paper was coming in fast now.

Late in 1915 the Ontario Paper Co. had obtained control of 300 square miles of pulp timberlands on the north shore of the gulf of St. Lawrence in Quebec province, Canada, and these lands were now supplying the newspaper's mill and presses.

It was in 1927 that the huge Canadian Atlàntic warehouse at North Water street and the north bank of the river—a few hundred yards east of Tribune tower—was leased as the first unit in what now is a line of seven great storage centers along the waterway.

Two years later THE TRIBUNE leased the steamship Bennington to bring rotogravure paper from its mill at North Tonowanda, N. Y., during the summer months and the first shipment of 900 rolls was received at the new warehouse June 25, 1929. The experiment was so successful economically that in that same year THE TRIBUNE contracted for the motorship Thorold, specially designed to carry paper.

Unusual features of the ship were its enormous cubic capacity in the holds and its paper trunk built above what ordinarily would have been the main deck level. The vessel could carry 3,200 tons of newsprint and was powered by two diesel engines.

Six Ships in Fleet Now.

The Thorold was launched in January, 1930, at Hull, England. It landed its first cargo of 2,290 tons of newsprint at Tribune dock on June 24, 1930. The vessel soon proved the economy of water transportation and it was the first of a fleet of six vessels that now serves THE TRIBUNE, its associate, the New York Daily News, and their mills in Canada and the United States.

All of which, of course, multiplied the problems of Von der Horst. More warehouses were leased, but newsprint was arriving in unheard of quantities. And this was necessary to lay in a supply against the winter when ice would halt shipping.

The great need now was for a faster and more economical method of handling paper within the warehouses, both from unloading docks to storage bays and from there to points where trucks were loaded for trips to the plant. So Von der Horst built himself a railroad.

It is known as the East-West road and runs the length of the chain of warehouses, with automatic switches leading to the storage bays. After a roll of paper on a dolly truck has traveled entirely by gravity to its designated spot it is seized by a tiering machine which stacks it. The empty dolly is switched automatically to a return track and goes back for more.

Brings Up Another Problem.

This took care of the warehouse and storing problem so efficiently that it threw into bold relief another bottleneck—the delays arising thru trucking paper from the warhouses to the plant several hundred yards away. Weather, traffic, and rehandling all contributed to the delay.

A remedy was found by constructing the tunnel in which this story began. In 1934 a contract was signed with the Chicago Tunnel company, which operates a freight and ash removal service on a narrow gauge railway that runs thru a maze of subterranean passages to serve the loop business district. Their tunnel at that time entered the Tribune Tower boiler room after curving west from the south, where it passes under the Chicago river.

A descending shaft was driven from the warehouses to connect with the Chicago tunnel shortly before it entered the boiler room. In the new passage, two sets of narrow gauge—12 inch—tracks were laid. Under a plan devised by Capt. M. M. Corpening of THE TRIBUNE, these led across a corner of the heating plant to a loading platform, from which the rolls could be routed directly to the presses or to storage bays in the subcellars below Tribune Tower and the plant.

Lines Up Delivered Rolls.

As it operates now, a roll is placed on a special tunnel truck in the warehouse and is started down the incline toward the plant. An endless chain device holds it back for a time, then lets it go. After its rumble thru the tunnel the loaded truck encounters a retarding device near the entrance of the plant and moves thru the boiler room at slackening speed to a platform where a tipping arrangement, designed by Tribune engineers, tilts the truck and gently deposits the roll in an even line with others.

The empty truck settles back to a normal position on the tracks, a compressed air plunger gives it a shove, and it hits an automatic switch which sides it to the return track. Another plunger sends it on its way to the power driven, endless chain which takes it back to the warehouse.

When a Tribune boat is being unloaded, part of its cargo streams directly down the tunnel to the reel room [from which the presses are fed] without rehandling. An automatic device affixed to the tracks counts each loaded truck. It will not count an empty one.

All this is explained as the paper rolls thunder past at half minute intervals.

Hark Back to Great Fire.

Seventy-one years ago tonight THE TRIBUNE's accumulated properties of 24 years were doomed. Tonight THE TRIBUNE's properties in this section of the city alone number millions of square feet of floor space and are part of the world's greatest newspaper enterprise. In addition to the tower, the plant, and the warehouses, there is the stereotype annex at Illinois and St. Clair streets, and the home of radio station W-G-N, which fronts on Michigan avenue.

On Ontario street at McClurg court is the vast coloroto plant where the Sunday pictorial section and the Graphic magazine are put to press. Nearby is the plant that supplies ink for the scores of presses.

Then, too, in the 300 block on North Water street, there is one of the finest truck garages in the world to house THE TRIBUNE's big fleet of trucks and other motor vehicles. It is a modern concrete building, 450 feet long and 79 feet wide, with a three story central section containing offices, washroom, and shower facilities for personnel, and huge one story sections on either side with storage and repair facilities for approximately 100 trucks.

At 232-34 East Grand avenue are the stables, long in disuse, but now rehabilitated for the horses that will draw Tribune wagons until the war is over. There are other stables at 610 West 58th street.

At Madison and Dearborn streets stands the 18 story former home of THE TRIBUNE, which serves now as its loop public service office. And near Roselle, Ill., is the transmission plant and towering antenna of station W-G-N, the voice of a great newspaper and the voice of the people.

Another giant white spool booms down the tunnel now, nearing the end of its journey from vast timberlands in the northern fastness—to your breakfast table.

REDS POUND NAZI FLANK TO NORTH OF STALINGRAD

Hold Firmly to Positions Inside Volga City.

MOSCOW, Oct. 8 [Thursday]—(AP).—The Russian army continued its 45 drive against the German left flank northwest of Stalingrad yesterday and held all positions inside the battle scarred city against the huge mass of men and tanks the Germans have thrown into the battle, the soviet midnight communique said today as the 45th day of the siege began.

[In London the British news agency Reuters quoted an Italian radio report as saying Russian forces attacking the German flank above Stalingrad had thrown pontoon bridges across the Don river and sent troops to the west bank of that stream.]

Earlier reports said Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's relief offensive northwest of Stalingrad had ripped into a line of hundreds of Nazi "tank forts" and overrun a stronghold, wiping out 1,200 Rumanian troops.

Repel All Nazi Attacks.

The communique's reference to this action said simply that "northwest of Stalingrad our troops have been conducting operations for the improvement of their positions."

Inside Stalingrad the battle raged on fiercely, but the soviet communique indicated the Red army had not withdrawn anywhere.

"All attacks of enemy tanks and infantry have been repelled with heavy losses," it said. "Our troops are holding their positions."

During this fighting, it was stated officially, the Russians killed about 500 Germans and destroyed 19 tanks.

In the Mozdok area, in the Caucasus, the Russians retired to new positions at one point after a fierce engagement. At another point, the communique said, 12 German tanks managed to penetrate to the rear of a soviet detachment, but 11 of the tanks and about a company of German troops were wiped out.

Nazis Rush Up New Troops.

Meanwhile, fresh enemy reënforcements were thrown into the Caucasus battle. The communique said a new Rumanian division had arrived in the area southeast of Novorossisk, German-held Black sea base, and had been fighting for two days.

"Two Rumanian battalions have been surrounded and annihilated," it said.

The only other major action mentioned in the communique was on the northwest front, between Moscow and Leningrad. In this area, it was said, the Russians repelled four enemy attacks and killed about 800 men.

But these fronts all remained subordinate to the great battle for Stalingrad.

Soviet battle reporters gave this picture of the strong German defenses on the steppe:

"The Germans attempt to hold their lines at any cost. They have built many blindages and blockhouses and dug in hundreds of their disabled tanks, using them as fire pits. They burn the dry grass in an attempt to check our onslaught."

The Germans were employing strong air units above the steppe. One Russian anti-aircraft battery was credited with downing 10 planes in a single day.

Claim Capture of Town.

BERLIN, Oct. 7 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The German high command today announced the capture of Malgobek, which is south of the Terek river in the Caucasus, about 40 miles from the oil city of Grozny and slightly less distant from Ordzonikidze, start of the Georgian military road which leads across the main Caucasus mountains to the oil city of Tiflis. Malgobek is 20 miles south of Mozdok.

Of the situation northwest of Stalingrad, the Germans claimed "a bottleneck was tightened around enemy forces encircled there." There was no mention of the fighting inside Stalingrad.

EVANSTON NAVY OFFICER CITED IN ACTION AT SEA

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 [Special].—Ensign Walter J. Gudat, 23 years old, 560 Lincoln street, Evanston, Ill., was one of nine officers commended by the navy today for outstanding conduct in action.

The Evanstonian was among four commanders of gun crews commended for leadership of men on merchant vessels attacked by enemy planes and submarine and praised for their courage, endurance, and devotion to duty. No details of the actions were released.

Others commended were four submarine officers and one pilot of a patrol plane, none of whom was from the middle west.

TRUCK DRIVER ROBBED OF $92.

Joseph Montesi, 1481 West Grand avenue, a driver for the Lichtafield Cartage company, reported to police last night that two men had curbed his truck at Ohio and Sacramento streets yesterday and robbed him of $92.

ALLIED VICTORY YEAR AWAY, DR. PALYI TELLS RESTAURANT GROUP

Dr. Melchior Palyi, internationally known economist and one time economic adviser to the German Reichsbank, predicted an allied victory over the axis in about a year, at a luncheon meeting of the Wartime Emergency conference of the National Restaurant association yesterday in the Palmer House.

September marked the turning point of the war in favor of the allies, he said, explaining Germany was halted in Egypt, and now in Russia.

The economist, commenting on Wendell Willkie's recent visit to Russia, said: "Good will can be carried too far, as it was by Mr. Willkie, who allowed it to lead him to kiss the ballerina on an open stage and, forgetting the opinion of the country he represented, assume the views of the country to which he was an envoy."

BRITISH VESSEL SUNK BY SUB IN CARIBBEAN; 5 DIE

New York, Oct. 7 [Special].—The navy announced today that five crewmen perished in the 485 sinking of a small British merchantman by a submarine in the Caribbean nearly two months ago, but 42 others were picked up by an American naval vessel and landed at a friendly port.

Survivors said the cargo carrier capsized and sank five minutes after the torpedo exploded. The submarine remained submerged during and after the encounter.

The sinking raised to 485 the Associated Press score of announced western Atlantic ship losses since Pearl Harbor. A total of 3,216 persons have died in these sinkings, 1,856 are missing, and 14,613 were rescued.

THREE NAZI SPIES SEIZED IN CHILE TO BE DEPORTED

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 7 (AP).—The arrest of three Germans accused of transmitting espionage information by secret radio was announced today by the Chilean government, which still maintains diplomatic relations with the axis.

Interior Minister Raul Morales has ordered them deported. A Chilean, Carlos Robinson, must stand trial. The investigations department said the Germans were part of a spy network operating thruout the Americas with connections in the United States, Cuba, Brazil, Mexico, Argentina, and in Spain.

It identified them as Alfred Kleider, branch manager of a German bank in Santiago; Ludwig Russ and Wilhelm Dorbach, who, officials said, pretended to be fishermen.

POST-WAR TRIALS FOR AXIS CRIMES PLEDGED BY F.D.R.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7.—Punishment of Hitler, Mussolini and Hirohito and their satellites for barbaric crimes against civilian populations was envisioned today by President Roosevelt.

In a formal statement the President pledged the united nations will demand the surrender of war criminals at the victorious close of the conflict for trial before a commission of allied nations.

Mr. Roosevelt promised that this time just and sure punishment will be meted out to those guilty of atrocities. He said the united nations will not embark on wholesale reprisals, and that the number of those to be punished will be small in proportion to the total population of the nations involved, but that the ringleaders will get their just deserts.

British Propose Commission.

LONDON, Oct. 7 (AP).—The British government has proposed creation of a united nations commission for the investigation of war crimes, Viscount Simon, the lord chancellor, disclosed today in the house of lords.

Lord Simon said the proposal had been communicated to several other nations, including Russia, China, the British dominions, India and the "Fighting French," with a view to obtaining their concurrence.

BOMB JAP CITIES AND TAKE BURMA, CHINESE PROPOSE

Give Willkie Message for American People.

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 7 (AP).—Further American bombings of Japanese cities was suggested in a six point memorandum presented to Wendell L. Willkie today by the Chinese-American Institute of Cultural Relations.

The memorandum was written after Willkie expressed interest in knowing what message the Chinese people would like him to take back to the United States.

H. H. Kung, Chinese finance minister and president of the institute, sent the memorandum to Willkie with a letter asking him to convey the contents to President Roosevelt and the people of the United States.

The points:

1. America should keep as large an air force in China as can possibly be maintained with supplies, as the present strength is far from sufficient to support the Chinese army in any effective counteroffensive.

Coöperation in Peace Sought.

2. The united nations should make concerted efforts to retake Burma at the earliest possible time.

3. America should send further bombing squadrons to Japanase cities to bring the war to Japanese soil.

4. In allied global strategy, the China and European fronts should be considered as of equal importance.

5. The Chinese people will never lay down arms until their cause and that of the united nations is won decisively.

6. America and China should coöperate to the fullest possible extent, not only in winning a military victory but in rebuilding a new world order in which no war of predatory conquest should ever be allowed.

Chats with Flyers.

WITH UNITED STATES FORCES IN CHINA, Oct. 7 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie traded information with officers and men at an American army air base today after winding up his Chungking visit with a declaration that he was speaking for himself, when he made statements such as his Moscow call for a second front.

Replying to questions at a press conference, he said he had been commissioned by the President to do certain things, and that in anything connected with them he was the President's representative and acted accordingly.

"But when I speak for myself," he added, "I'm Wendell Willkie and say what I damn please."

SIGH OF RELIEF

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7.—White House repudiation of statements by Wendell L. Willkie urging immediate second fronts in Europe and Asia evoked a mighty, tho uneasy, sigh of relief in Democratic cloakrooms on Capitol hill today.

President Roosevelt's blunt dismissal of his former opponent's demands for "all-out offensives everywhere" as speculative and not worth reading, should, according to majority members, relieve the administration of much of the blame for his activities.

They admitted, however, that the White House cannot escape full responsibility because Willkie received permission from Mr. Roosevelt to make the trip abroad and carried a White House portfolio containing letters from the President to united nations leaders. In their private conversations, they did not try to conceal their uneasiness on this score.

Known as "Marco Polo."

Meanwhile, in the house, Willkie, who has become known among capital wags as "Marco Polo," after the famed Venetian traveler, drew another stinging rebuke from Rep. John E. Rankin [D., Miss.]. The handclasps which the southerner received as he left the floor attested to the general agreement among his colleagues with his remarks.

"From the morning press we learn that Marco Polo Willkie is still in China or was until yesterday," said Rankin amid of chorus of snickers. "By now he is probably kissing his way down to India along the Burma road. I notice that it is also stated that the President declines to take responsibility for what Mr. Willkie said. The American people will certainly back the President in that attitude 100 per cent.

Assails "Wild Statements."

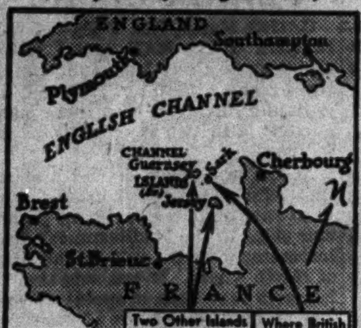
"I also note that Mr. Willkie says he will say what he damn well pleases. That may be campaign oratory, I do not know; but I think the people of the orient ought to understand Mr. Willkie before they take him too seriously.

"He has already brought more embarrassment to the allies than any other living man by his wild statements abroad."

Dispatches from Chungking, which quoted Willkie as saying he was traveling as an individual "whom for some reason 23,000,000 Americans voted for," drew broad smiles from Republican congressmen.

Raid Revealed

(Story in adjoining column.)



Scene of a Commando raid on the night of Oct. 3 to obtain information concerning suspected ill treatment of British residents of channel islands, according to London.

10 COMMANDOS STIR UP A FUSS OVER MANACLES

Germans Accuse British of Tying Up Captives.

LONDON, Oct. 7 (AP).—A 10 man commando raid last Saturday night on Sark, smallest of the German occupied channel islands, gave rise today to an exchange of nearly 800 sharp and hostile words in official British and German communiques as to whether the British are handcuffing their prisoners.

By all accounts it was a very small affair—just another of the little night operations which seldom receive any publicity at all—with the 10 commandos slipping ashore to get some information about how the Germans were treating the people on the island, and capturing five prisoners, four of whom were shot while getting away.

Nazis Threaten Reprisal.

The German high command waxed indignant, threatened reprisals, and devoted 400 of the 650 words of its communique to the raid and its repercussions.

The Germans said there were 16 raiders who captured five prisoners, bound them in fetters and then shot and stabbed two dead and wounded a third. Then the communique quoted these orders issued by the high command:

"1. From Oct. 8 at noon all British officers and men captured at Dieppe will be fettered and this measure will remain in force until the British war office proves that it intends in the future to issue true statements regarding the fettering of German prisoners of war or that it has full authority to have its orders executed by British troops.

"2. In the future, all British or allied terrorists and sabotage troops not conducting themselves as soldiers but like bandits will be treated as such by German troops and will be ruthlessly killed in battle."

British Deny Charges.

The British war office, in a special announcement, denied any prisoners of war has been so treated, and said the German government could verify this by interrogating prisoners thru neutral representatives.

If the Germans carried out their threats, it added, the British government would consider a few measures of its own. The British hold 285,000 axis prisoners—262,000 of them Italian—and admit to only 115,000 British prisoners in German and Italian hands.

This was the second flareup over alleged fettering of prisoners. After the Dieppe raid of Aug. 19, the Germans made the accusation, and a German order to retaliate was rescinded when the British war office issued a denial. Today the Germans declared this denial was not made in good faith.

Find Men Deported.

As if this war of words was not enough, responsible London quarters added a few remarks. They said the threat to put British prisoners in chains was a "piece of pure blackmail," and was deliberately worded so the British could not carry out the German stipulations by noon tomorrow.

As for the attack on Sark, a 3½ mile long island, with a population of barely 600, it netted some information which permitted the British to make some accusations of its own.

The expedition had found, commando headquarters said, that every male between 16 and 70, not a native of the island, had been forcibly deported to work in Germany. Two of the 11 men so rounded up committed suicide, the communique said.

At Guernsey and Jersey, the larger neighboring channel islands, labor conscription also is going on, with 900 mobilized in Guernsey alone, and even more expected to be sent from Jersey.

The WHOLE truth is: She'd LOVE some Mrs. Snyder's

Mister . . . take the stand. You're glad you married her, aren't you? There's nobody like her, is there? She'd like to know it, wouldn't she? You ought to tell her, oughtn't you? You could take her a sweet, courtin' box of Mrs. Snyder's now and then, couldn't you? Okay! Case dismissed!

U. S. BOMBER RAID ON GREECE TOLD BY EYEWITNESS

Ships in Bay Blasted; 5 Axis Planes Downed.

we get into formation and soon are winging over the sea to our goal. This is a great armada of monster planes that looks like a naval fleet which suddenly has sprouted wings.

For a long time the sky is clear and the sun shines brightly on the sparkling blue water beneath us. Then we run into heavy cloud banks which are rare in this section. So much to the good; they screen us.

For hours we fly. Then, as we near our goal, we ascend to the designated altitude. We all look a little like Mickey Mouses in the black snouts which are oxygen masks. It is cold up here and I see that a fly which has come with us has expired for lack of air.

It will not be long now. Our copilot, Lieut. David S. Watt, of Lancaster, Pa., signals me. Then we see land, land which embraces the almost land locked bay of Navarino at the southwest tip of Greece.

Sight Big Supply Ships.

We see ships in this bay; wrecked ships of previous raids, dummy ships of concrete set in the water to deceive us. We also see two real ships moored almost side by side—big ships laden with supplies for Rommel. Those are the ships we want. We go in.

But our commander, Kane, is not satisfied with our formation so we go out again, swerve around in a big circle and in again. This time it is just what he wants. The kill is on.

Around those two ships is a geometric line and our job is to make all our bombs fall inside a square formed by that line. We have so many bombs to drop and such big ones that if we all do this the ships cannot escape.

Our bombardier, Lieut. George J. Lyons of Conimicut, R. I., lets them go. In quick succession, these big ugly packages of death leave the plane.

I am in the very last of many planes going over the target. This means I have the best grandstand seat of all the correspondents. It also means that our plane is the likeliest to get attacked and the likeliest to get into the way of ask-ack [anti-aircraft fire].

Bombs Splash Around Ships.

Below I can see the bombs, splashing into the water all around the ships. In the middle of one ship is a great black blotch which may be smoke or a gaping hole. Then I see a red tongue which looks like fire. From this height and at this speed it is difficult to see exactly what is happening below. I only know that it must be hell for any one down there.

I see black bursts of ack-ack shells. I am just thinking how glad I am they are not near when a jolt almost knocks me off my feet, then another suceeds in doing so. I see two bursts as shell explode just beneath us.

Our pilot, First Lieut. John R. Muehlberg of Montclair, N. J., swerves and dives to get out of the ack-ack fire. The mountain peaks in the distance dance all around us and I am not sure whether I am standing on my head or my feet. I only know that Muehlberg is a pilot I would bet on any day.

In Close Formation.

Somehow, we are in a closely knit formation again, so close we can almost reach out and touch our companion planes.

All our planes bear the unofficial names given them by their crews—something like the names of race horses. In our v-shaped final element of this raid is "Snow White." Our plane is the "Jersey Jerk."

They come at us—enemy pursuit planes. There are at least four of them. One charges in while the others cautiously hang outside. He comes at us, the final plane.

Our tail gunner is Sergt. Norman F. Brandt of Manitowoc, Wis., and Norman is ready for him. He puts up a fire which beats him off. The glass above Norman's head cracks as a bullet, presumably, glances off it. That was the only scar we got. I owe my life to Norman.

Enemy Planes Come In.

But on leaving us, the attacking plane goes for "The Witch," which is just ahead of us to the left. Then other enemy fighters come in. One is an Italian Macchi, the other is a German Messerschmitt and they are after "The Witch."

At this second I cannot see the attacking planes, but I can see "The Witch's" side being drilled with holes—27 holes as later proved by count.

We all fire at the attackers. Big bullets, half an inch thick, are flying all around. The output of 15 guns from our planes is concentrated on them.

"The Witch" is taking the brunt of the attack. A big window on its side is open. There stands the gunner, exposed from the waist up, firing at them. A bullet crashes into "The Witch's" side and goes right thru the gunner's knee. He does not flinch. He sticks to his guns and keeps firing.

He is Sergt. Norman Frost of Miami, Fla.

Two other men in "The Witch" are slightly wounded. They are Technical Sergeants Joseph E. Farmer of St. Charles, Va., and Marvin L. Breeding of Dallas, Tex.

Among others on "The Witch" are Lieut. Robert T. Golberg of Blooming Prairie, Minn., and Sergt. Joseph Byrne of La Crosse, Wis. The pilot is Glade Jorgensen of Provo, Utah, a former dance band trombonist.

In their compartment is Henry Gorrell of the United Press, whom I have known and competed with since the days of the Spanish civil war. For the first time, I feel sorry for Henry. But not need to. He is splattered with Frost's blood, but he is not hit. He puts a tourniquet on Frost's leg. The other two wounded sergeants help and only when the job is finished do they reveal that they are injured [altho not dangerously], too.

All Guns in Action.

We are flying close together and every gun we can train on the attackers is in action. Blood has been drawn on our side and all our sergeant gunners are angry, swearing as they shoot.

One of the attacking planes goes down in smoke, the pilot descending to the sea by parachute. The other goes down in flames. The pilot bails out, but his parachute does not open. The pair which attacked a formation such as this are death or glory boys and they got the former.

We now sweep across the southern stretch of Greece and out to sea. All our bombs have fallen in the harbor. None has fallen on the soil of Greece.

The navigator of "The Witch" is Second Lieut. Peter L. Vlahafles of Newark, N. J., who is getting his first glimpse of the land of his ancestors and we are bombing only 50 miles from the town his father left 30 years ago to go to America.

For me, this is a special day. A year and a half ago I was bombed from the Olympus line to Thermopylae, then to Piraeus, bombed again at sea, dive-bombed in Suda bay, and machine-gunned as I slept under olive trees in Crete. I finally arrived in Egypt with a brave but defeated army so "bomb happy" I could hardly write the story.

Attack in Two Formations.

I felt then we would return to Greece one day. But I never thought it would be like this—to be taken there by our own American planes, to be with Americans like these, and to be on the giving instead of the taking end of a bombing.

But our task is done and we have only to get home. To do so, we must fly over danger zones and it still is broad daylight. We must fly within range of enemy fighter bases. They do not attack us but they tackle the forward elements which have gone on some time before us.

We attacked Navarino bay in two big formations. It was the first formation that was attacked going home and the result was the same as when we were attacked: one German and one Italian fighter plane shot down and no losses of planes on our side. In these two planes neither pilot even bailed out. They went right down into the sea.

Then nature, as tho jealous of what man has done in her air this day, puts on a show of her own. Equinoxial storms, almost two weeks late this year, are upon us. This means that the south wind which blows up to now clashes with the stronger north wind from Europe. One of the results are waterspouts rising in the sea as the sun casts its last fading glow.

Blown Off Course.

Now the sun sinks and a moonless night throws its protecting cloak around us. But the weather is not so kind. These new winds, strange to the Americans who have been flying here only in past months, come up and blow us north. We do not realize that we are being shoved off our course.

It is hours later now and we are over land but we cannot see it. All we can see are stars. The storm has raised dust from the land and blown in mist from the sea. We are trying to land under black-out conditions and can see no signal lights.

For one hour we circle about, then we see the lights we are looking for and our pilot put the plane down in the neatest landing on the darkest field I ever saw.

We go to dinner. To the airmen it was just a day's work.

BRITISH BOMB GROUNDED AXIS PLANES IN CRETE

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 7 (AP).—Medium bombers of the RAF raided Malene airdrome on Crete last night, concentrating the attack on grounded aircraft and leaving at least three planes burning, a British announcement said tonight.

At the same time, it was disclosed that United States bombers alone have sunk or damaged more than 40 axis ships in the Mediterranean in an increasingly active rôle in the battle of North Africa. It was said that the bombers have been dropping an average of 1,000,000 pounds of explosives a month on lines of supply by sea and land.

TO MEN OF 18 AND 19 THE U.S. ARMY ANNOUNCES NEW ENLISTMENT PRIVILEGES

"It is not enough for our Army to be as big and as well-equipped as the enemy's—it should also be as well-balanced in age groups. The Army invites American youth to answer that challenge."

LIEUTENANT GENERAL BREHON B. SOMERVELL, Commanding General, Services of Supply

YOU men of 18 and 19 now have the right to choose any one of 13 branches in which you want to serve. Action! Adventure! Rapid advances in pay! Splendid training and experience!

Have you stopped to think that our enemies have said they'd write the peace of the world in your own capital—Washington, D. C.? You don't have to guess what kind of a world you'd live in under that treaty.

A good many million two-fisted American men have stepped up to say "NO" to that boast. But are you going to be satisfied until you've had your say in the matter?

Right now, before you reach your 20th birthday, you have an opportunity open to men in no other age group . . . the right to enlist immediately and select one of 13 different branches of the U. S. Army.

Until now, you've been able to choose one of the 8 combat branches—Air Forces, Corps of Engineers, Coast Artillery Corps (Harbor Defense or Anti-Aircraft), Signal Corps, Field Artillery, Cavalry, Infantry and Armored Force.

New Army policy gives you the privilege of enlisting in 5 additional branches: Quartermaster Corps, Ordnance Department, Chemical Warfare Department, Medical Department, Corps of Military Police.

If you want adventure and action, if you want training and experience to prepare you for the future—the sooner you join the Army the more you'll learn and the faster you'll advance.

Men of your age group who can qualify are encouraged to apply for Officer Candidate Schools, and many have become commissioned officers.

Talk this opportunity over with your parents. You certainly want to be there when the Axis banners come down and Old Glory is raised into the clear blue sky of a free world. This fight is for your country. You must make sure it's your victory too!

For full information about the branch in which you are interested, call at the nearest Army Recruiting and Induction Station.

83 ARMY FLYING CADETS QUALIFY; RECORD FOR DAY

One Out to Avenge Wife's Suffering in Poland.

Qualification of 83 men yesterday for army aviation cadet training established a record for the Chicago board and raised to 11,052 the number of cadets enlisted in Chicago since Sept. 1, 1941. The army's goal is 20,000 cadets.

Among the Chicagoans qualified yesterday was Jerry C. Walters, 22 years old, 724 Elizabeth street, an employé of the Chicago Tribune circulation department since 1933. Walters will report for duty Oct. 21.

Another Chicagoan accepted was Zane D. Pozulp, 25, of 6600 South Sacramento avenue, part owner and general manager of the Cherry Meat Packing company, 4538 South Marshfield avenue. Pozulp wants to qualify as a combat pilot to avenge the suffering of his wife, Irene, at the hands of the Nazi invaders of Warsaw.

On Bread and Water 19 Days.

Mrs. Pozulp, now a government employé, was studying in Warsaw in 1929 under a scholarship as Irene Niedzialkowski. She and Pozulp planned to be married in Warsaw, but the German invasion of Poland prevented him from getting there.

Mrs. Pozulp lived on bread and water in the basement of the United States embassy in Warsaw for 19 days during the siege of the city. The Germans later permitted her to return to the United States by way of Berlin and Denmark.

Twenty-two naval aviation cadets were accepted yesterday by the navy cadet selection board headed by Lieut. Comm. Carl G. Olson.

Name Squadron for Wrigley.

Comm. Olson also announced two Chicago squadrons of navy air cadets will be named in honor of the late William Wrigley Jr. and the late Comm. Lee Hammond, the first naval aviation officer in Chicago and the second man in the city to fly.

The first aircraft owned by the United States navy were gifts from Mr. Wrigley, founder of the chewing gum company and former owner of the Chicago Cubs. In 1917 he gave two pontoon equipped Curtiss ships to the navy, and these were assigned to the 15th regiment, then headed by Comm. Hammond. P. K. Wrigley, son of the plane donor, also was a member of the 15th regiment.

Applications for additional cadets to make up the Wrigley and Hammond squadrons are being taken by the naval aviation cadet selection board in Room 302, Board of Trade building. Applicants 18 to 26 years old who have a high school education are being accepted.

A special office has been opened in room 300, Dowie building, Michigan avenue and Roosevelt road, to recruit railroad men up to 45 years old for a new organization—the 715th Engineers, Railway Operating battalion.

TRAIN KILLS SALESMAN, 76.

William Strodel, 76 years old, a hosiery salesman of 522 West Burlington street, La Grange, was killed by a freight train at the Highland station in Hinsdale yesterday. There were no witnesses to the accident, but police believed the aged man failed to see the approaching train and stepped into its path.

Vichy Film Ban Imposed on Gossip from Hollywood

VICHY, France, Oct. 7 (AP).—Hollywood gossip was added today to the list of things Frenchmen must do without. Because of the ban on presenting or shipping American films within France after Oct. 15, it was announced that French newspapers and other periodicals, including movie magazines, will cease all mention of American or British films and actors.

15 MORE SLAIN BY NAZIS IN NORWAY REIGN OF TERROR

LONDON, Oct. 7 (AP).—Hitler's executioners took the lives of 15 more persons today at Trondheim, Norway, the Oslo radio announced, as Nazi administrators continued their reign of terror.

Along with lawyers, editors, a ship owner, and other prominent citizens totaling 10 who were executed yesterday, the total was brought to 25 as the result of a state of emergency imposed upon Trondheim and a coastal strip of 400 miles.

Two others today were sentenced to 10 years at hard labor, while one of 18 brought before a court martial was acquitted, the radio said. All were charged vaguely with "criminal offenses," sabotage, and transportation of arms.

Oslo, too, was reported to have come under German repressive measures with the levying of a $500,000 fine on individual Norwegian patriots to pay for the damage done to Vidkun Quisling's headquarters in the British mosquito plane raid of Sept. 25. Individuals were reported assessed amounts ranging from $200 to $6,000.

CLIPPER PLANE LANDS AT MIAMI WITH 39 ABOARD

Miami, Fla., Oct. 7 (AP).—A Pan American trans-Atlantic Clipper arrived here tonight with 39 passengers, some of them taken aboard at stops en route.

Among the passengers was Mrs. Devota Shaw Payne, wife of a missionary, with her three children, the oldest aged 3, who were born in Nigeria and were making their first trip to the United States.

Herbert Vandersall, formerly of Canton, O., an instructor of physics at the American university at Cairo, was on the Clipper with his wife, their son, Lloyd, 17, and their daughter, Myra, 14. They are going to Chicago, Vandersall being on leave to study at the University of Chicago.

Rockford Draft Board Member to Enter Navy

Rockford, Ill., Oct. 7 [Special].—F. Hugh Ward, 48 years old, a member of Rockford draft board No. 2, will join the navy Oct. 22 as a lieutenant [senior grade]. Ward, father of three children, was a seaman, second class, during the World war and was discharged in 1921 as an ensign. A son, Jack Ward, is an ensign in the navy.

'FORTRESS' DIVES INTO SEA; SEVEN AIRMEN RESCUED

Flyers Are Adrift 7 Days; Here's Their Story.

Plane Sinks in 2½ Minutes.

"The plane sank in 2½ minutes. While we had been going down, we had left the radio key on 'urgent' so that they would know our location. When the radio quit, they would know that we had hit the water.

"We rationed the water, a swallow in the morning and a swallow at night. We had just enough to wet our tongues. We drank the last drop on the day we were picked up. We would pass the bottle and let each man take his alotted sip. No one ever made any attempt to take more.

"The first day we saw a navy plane and shot a signal pistol, but the plane crew did not see us. The second day we just drifted. The third day an army transport plane went by, but its crew did not see us either. We felt pretty low. The fourth, fifth, and sixth days we saw only water.

"Corp. James Hosegood, 33, of Detroit, the tail gunner, died the night before we were picked up. He just slipped away in a few hours. We had thought him to be just as well as the rest, altho when we saw that he really was ill two of the others held him across their legs to keep him out of the water.

Leaps Over Wall of Raft.

"Then Corp. Lucien D'Amour, 25, of Beverly, Mass., one of the gunners leaped over the side of the raft. He accidentally knocked Sergt. R. P. Anderson, 23, of Brookline, Mass., into the water with all the remaining rations. We lost the rations and saved Anderson, but D'Amour, who had been out of his head, swam away and we could not save him.

"We said a prayer.

"It was an informal prayer asking that the men be accepted into heaven. I can't remember the exact words.

"The following day—we had been seeing planes all morning—a cruiser plane finally circled overhead and we knew that we had been seen. I think that all seven guys started to bawl, and there was a feeling as tho we were going to swell up and burst with relief.

Every Drop of Water Gone.

"Every drop of water was gone and the rations had been gone since the preceding night.

"That flyer [apparently the flyer of the cruiser plane] hit it right on the head."

All three of the men who told the dramatic story agreed that they had not slept at all during the ordeal because sleeping meant flopping forward and overturning the raft, on which nine and then seven kept alive in a space meant for four. The raft did tip over several times.

Anderson continued:

"We sat around the edges with our feet in the center. And every wind hit us in the tail and the wind was cold. On the last night I was chilled so badly that I was delirious myself and Darden lay over me to warm my body from his. I thought that I was done for."

Shoots Two Sharks.

Anderson then told of sharks attacking the raft and of how he shot two with his 45 pistol and bent a paddle hitting a third shark. He said:

"The third day a shark followed us, kept following us all night, and in the morning finally made a pass at us. I waited until it was real close and then shot it between the eyes. It flopped around and flopped away. We wanted it for food, but we couldn't row against the waves. The next shark followed us all the fourth night.

"We could see phosphorescent streaks as its fins cut the water and we could hear it nibbling at the paddles over the side. The fifth morning it got up its courage and made a pass at the boat. I shot it in the belly as it rolled over. I didn't see it die, but it never came back. I learned later that it had ripped a gash in the botton of the boat, but had missed the air compartment.

Catch a Flying Fish.

"The last day we caught a flying fish and divided it into seven parts and ate it raw. I can still taste it, but it sure made us feel better. We caught it with a line and a tinfoil lure. A couple of hours later we were picked up.

Taking up the story, Darden said:

"The flyer who found us set down in the water to say that help was coming. He had to make three passes before he got off again. We sure were glad he made it. During the trip our conversation concerned home cooking, especially the favorite dishes made by our mothers. We also talked of the party which the officers promised the crew after our rescue. It was to be sparkling burgundy."

Tells of a Dream.

Van Haur said: "Most of the conversation concerned a dream one of the crew had, which the others believed was a true happening. They thought a tug stopped during the night and the captain gave beer and cigarets to us. They even remembered where it had been stowed and looked where they thought it was. Finally we talked them out of the idea. The bombardier looked for half an hour for the two packages of cigarets which he thought had been put in his pocket during the night."

Van Haur also remembered a tragic conversation with the man who leaped overboard. Van Haur said:

"He asked, 'Have we any cigarets or food or water with us?' We told him we did not. Then he asked, 'Then what the hell am I doing here?' And he tried to go over the side, but we stopped him then.

"The rescue was the biggest emotional thrill of my life. I know my voice cracked and I figured that if I spoke I would weep, so I just shut up."

When the destroyer which picked up the men came alongside, some one aboard shouted, "Taxi?" and Van Haur answered feebly, "Yeah, man." Once aboard ship, Van Haur apologized as he passed thru the mess hall, saying, "Pardon the interruption." He says that he has not the faintest idea why he said that now.

Ask for Coffee.

All the men agreed that the first thing they would ask for would be coffee and cigarets, which they did. They also got a shot of liquor that "liked to knock me out for all time," according to Van Haur.

Anderson and Darden were especially anxious that other pilots profit by their experience. Anderson said:

"All life rafts should be checked daily. That is the important part of the maintenance crew's job. Also, they should be sure that there is fresh water and food in the rafts and that the rafts be equipped with 45s for sharks. And the pilots should land with their flaps down."

New Developments in the Aleutians

HEADQUARTERS ALASKA DEFENSE COMMAND, Oct. 6 [Delayed] —(AP).—Sixteen officers and men believed lost in bomber raids over Japanese occupied Kiska Island early this summer have been awarded the purple heart decoration by Maj. Gen. Simon Buckner, commanding general of Alaskan defenses. The men failed to return to headquarters and it is not known whether they are dead or prisoners of war.

Included among the 10 men in one bomber which went over the target once but was shot down on its second trip, were Corp. Edward P. Dwelis, engineer, 6922 S. Rockwell street, Chicago; Corp. Hubert D. Smith, radio operator, Lineville, Ia., and Pvt. Robert G. Brown, gunner, Niles, Mich.

The other six men comprised the crew of a bomber sent on a photographic mission. The plane made its last radio report while near the island and its wreckage later was sighted against a 200 foot cliff.

Gen. Buckner also announced the award of air medals for "meritorious acts of essential service in making repeated day and night over-water instrument flights during icing conditions in the western Aleutian area to attack the armed enemy of the United States in action" to 21 men. This group included among others First Lieut. Richard E. Leow, bombardier, Port Clinton, Ia., and Second Lieut. Frederick A. Albanese, navigator, 9044 East Prairie road, Skokie, Ill.

BRASS HAT DEPT. ORDERED ALL OUT FOR ROOKIE DRILL

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—War limped grimly into the war department today and sat down wearily at the desks, just one big charley horse in uniform.

Pressed for details, the war department revealed that officers assigned to duty here whose previous military experience is lacking or limited, are getting the works that every buck private knows well. It's right face, left face, and all around the drill ground at Fort Myer, Va., where the majors, lieutenants, colonels, and the rest are being taught to suck in their stomachs and tuck in their chins. They also are taught close order drill, the military salute, and the manual of arms. Nobody would say who started the painful process.

THEATER OWNER ROBBED.

As Henry Banbara was driving homeward from the Mayfair theater, 5722 West 63d street, which he owns, he was forced to the curb by another car at 62d street and Major avenue and robbed of $69 by its two armed occupants, he reported to police.

BRITISH STRIKE AT NAZI RAILWAY, INDUSTRIAL ZONE

LONDON, Oct. 7 (AP).—British royal air force heavy night bombers last night struck at Adolf Hitler's strained railway and industrial facilities at Osnabrueck in the fourth raid on Germany so far this month. Six British planes were lost out of the strong force involved, probably 120.

Among the RAF squadrons was the newly formed French-Canadian bomber unit of the royal Canadian air force, which thus was over Germany for the second successive night.

'INCREDIBLY HARD' MOUNTAINS SLOW UP AUSSIE DRIVE

"Insuperable" Problems Told by MacArthur.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Oct. 8 [Thursday]—(AP).—The allied ground offensive thru the Owen Stanley mountains of New Guinea has been slowed by the difficulties of the terrain, a communique said today.

The official war bulletin from southwest Pacific headquarters explained the slackening pace of the 10 day advance with the comment:

"This incredibly difficult range of mountains presents almost insuperable complications in maintenance of supply lines for troop units of any size.

"The enemy, as we expected, has discovered his supply problems, aggravated by our constant air attacks, were impossible of immediate solution.

No Loss to Allies.

"His dislodgment at his farthest point of advance and pursuit of his exhausted forces have been accomplished with practically no loss to our troops up to the present time. The same difficulties of terrain are now progressively slowing down the advance of our ground troops."

Scarcely any enemy resistance was encountered in the 10 day march up the southern side of the mountains from Ioribaiwa, 32 miles by air line from Port Moresby.

One of the mysteries of the Japanese withdrawal was the finding of a number of enemy dead whose bodies bore no wounds, as tho they had died of illness or starvation.

There was no indication of extensive illness among the Japanese, however, and the pace of their withdrawal suggested they still were able to move in fair order.

Aussies in the Pass.

A correspondent of the Melbourne Herald said that Australians, who on Tuesday pushed up the range beyond Kagi, within four miles of the Port Moresby entrance to the gap, had ad-Moresby entrance to the gap leading to Kokoda, had advanced early yesterday within two miles of the far end of the pass—headed for the downslope.

Allied airplanes virtually ruled the sky over the line of advance and the repeatedly bombed Japanese supply line back to the Gona-Buna region on the northeast coast of the island.

Some Japanese fighters have tried to protect these bases, but for days there have been no Japaneses bombing or straffing offensive moves against the allied thrust.

Indians Appeal to F. D. R. to Help Win Freedom

NEW DELHI, India, Oct. 7 (AP).—Appeals to intervene in favor of formation of a national government in India have been cabled to President Roosevelt and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek by a special committee of the Hindu Mahasabha party.

BRITISH SUBJECTS HELD IN 8 INTERNMENT CAMPS BY JAPANESE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the house of commons today that eight internment camps, containing 145 British subjects, all there were in Japan, have been set up at Tokio, Kobe, Yokohama, Nagasaki, and Sendai. The food generally is adequate, he said, and rations can be supplemented from the outside. No criticism of the sanitary conditions was received, Eden said. The facilities for exercise are limited and visits to internees are forbidden with the exception of one camp.

In Hongkong, Eden said, the conditions are improved, but the general health of the internees has suffered seriously from lack of proper food and medicines. From Malaya, information is practically unobtainable. The only information from the Netherlands East Indies is that 15 British subjects were interned and are being well treated.

In the Philippines all British subjects, numbering nearly 2,000, are interned except the natives of Ireland, but temporary passes to reside outside the camps have been granted to men over 60, expectant mothers, and children. The majority of Britons are interned at the University of Manila. They receive a minimum of food from the Philippine Red Cross, but are able to supplement this outside. Conditions are less satisfactory, Eden reported, in camps at Baguio, Davao, and Cebu.

OHIO FLYER LISTED AS MISSING.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 7 [AP].—Sergt. Jack Elwood Evans, son of G. E. Evans of Akron, O., was listed in a royal Canadian air force casualty list today as missing after air operations.

EDGE SAYS SNUB OF VICHY WILL WIN FRENCHMEN

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—Walter Edge, former ambassador to France, asserted today that withdrawal by the United States of recognition of the Vichy French "puppet" government would solidify 95 per cent of the French people behind the united nations.

Edge, emphasizing in an interview that he was speaking as a private citizen, said it was "unfortunate that the government seems to feel it necessary to continue recognition" of the Vichy régime.

With interest in this country centered in the fighting French, he said, "It must be very discouraging to see their overlords recognized by this country."

"There may be many things that warrant continued recognition that I know nothing about," he said, but he added that only a small percentage of the French people was in sympathy with the Vichy government.

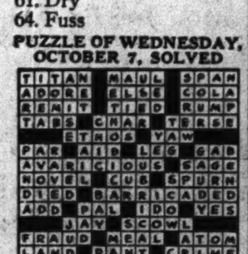
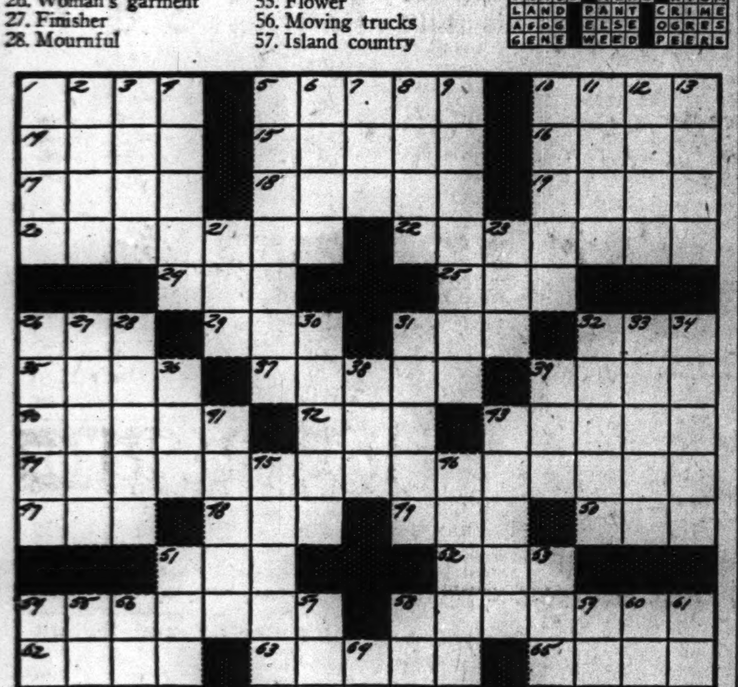
PUZZLE OF WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 7, SOLVED





SENATE SLASHES TAX EXEMPTIONS, THEN IS STALLED

Doubt Cast on Legality of Municipal Bond Levy.

BY JOHN FISHER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7.—Senate debate on the pending tax bill today became snarled when grave questions of constitutionality were raised over the right of the federal government to tax the income from state and municipal obligations.

Prior to the creation of this entanglement—in which northern Republicans joined with southern Democrats in opposing a provision in the senate bill for taxation of future issues of such obligations—the senate had speedily approved two important provisions of the new revenue bill. These were:

1. The senate finance committee's recommendation for a cut in individual income tax exemptions for dependents from $400, as allowed by present law and retained by the house bill, to $300.

2. Approval of combined normal and surtax rates on corporations of 40 per cent on surtax net income over $50,000. This was the rate recommended by the committee and compares with a combined 45 per cent levy in the house-approved bill.

La Follette Plan Rejected.

Before adopting the senate committee's version on corporate taxes, the chamber soundly thumped an amendment by Sen. Robert M. La Follette [P., Wis.] that the combined rate be raised to 50 per cent on surtax net income above $25,000 thru a surtax of 26 per cent in addition to the normal tax of 24 per cent.

Senators Walter F. George [D., Ga.], chairman of the finance committee, Robert A. Taft [R., O.], Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], and Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] took the floor to warn in stirring appeals against such a high levy, saying it would endanger the war program and private enterprise in America.

However, debate reached its highest tension late in the day as the ancient controversy over reciprocal taxation of federal, state, and local obligations was revived, and southern Democrats filed in to protest against possible encroachment upon states' rights.

Recesses Without a Vote.

They were arguing in support of an amendment by Republican Sen. Harold H. Burton of Ohio to strike from the pending measure all provisions for federal taxation of the income from state and local obligations issued after Dec. 31, 1942. The senate recessed for the day without coming to a vote on the Burton amendment.

The real tangle came when Sen. John A. Danaher [R., Conn.] proposed that not only future issues of state and local obligations be made subject to federal income taxation but also all such obligations acquired by the taxpayer after Feb. 1, 1942, regardless of when the securities were issued.

Danaher argued that taxation of future issues would cause a boom in the market for outstanding issues of such obligations and protect the wealthy individuals who have salted away part of their wealth on tax exempt state and local securities.

He was supported by Sen. Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], who declared "when we're taxing the little fellows with income of $600 or $700 why should we hesitate to tax the big fellows?" Sen. Prentiss M. Brown [D., Mich.], leading debate for taxation of future issues, said he also favored Danaher's proposal, as did Sen. Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.].

50 Per Cent Tax Beaten.

La Follette's attempt to boost the levy on corporations to 50 per cent was defeated 75 to 9, after which the committee proposal for the 40 per cent rate was approved by a voice vote.

He argued that larger corporation taxes were needed now to offset higher earnings, to help finance the war, and to provide a larger postwar credit to cushion the effect of the reconstruction period. George resented La Follette's efforts to deal with postwar credits now, declaring:

"The senator from Wisconsin knows very well that we put in the bill power to appoint a committee to study the whole question of postwar credits, and he also knows very well, does he not, that if we are to have any postwar compulsory loans or postwar credits, the program must be integrated with the individual and corporate rates?"

Corporation earnings are already subject to double taxation—both on corporation and the stockholder—and even 40 per cent on corporation profits seems too high, Taft said.

Pilot in Poland's Air Force Tells Prison Camp Horrors

Sergt. Tadeusz Wojciechowski, young Polish air force pilot, credited with shooting down four enemy planes in Africa, took time off yesterday from six days of sightseeing in Chicago to describe the three months he spent as a prisoner of war in the infamous Dachau concentration camp near Berlin.

"Every morning we buried a number of dead, victims of exposure and inadequate diet," the 21 year old flying veteran related in broken English and thru an interpreter. "We just dug a hole in the ground and covered them up. It seemed nearly always they would die in the night."

Prisoners Were Stoned.

Wojciechowski told how his group of prisoners was stoned by women and children, shouting that the Poles had been killing their husbands and brothers, as the prisoners marched to the camp from a railroad station. No supplies were issued at the camp, he said, and despite temperatures as low as freezing the only shelter was a building, with roof but no walls, and large enough to accommodate only a few of those interned.

"Breakfast was a cup of soup, usually potato soup," he continued. "At lunch we had soup and tea without sugar. Dinner consisted of tea without sugar and one-fourth pound of bread. Any one who complained was shot immediately."

Polish officers, interned at an old fort near the camp, he saidi, were fed arsenic in their food in increasing amounts, and then sent home to die. "I know that is true," he emphasized, "because I talked to several Polish doctors who examined their bodies."

Few Dared Kindness.

"Occasionally one of the older Germans would show some kindness," he said. "But this was seldom, for they knew if caught they would go to a concentration camp themselves. With these rare exceptions, we were called Polish swine and treated like swine."

Wojciechowski, who learned to fly in a glider when 12 years old, was a veteran of 3,600 flying hours when Germany attacked Poland Sept. 1, 1939. He watched his plane destroyed on the ground during the unexpected early morning attack on the Warsaw airport, where he was assigned as a fighter pilot.

His father, a group captain in the Polish air force, attacked six German fighter planes on the fourth day of the war. As his ship was damaged critically, he left it in a parachute, only to be killed by machine gun bullets as he floated toward the ground.

Wojciechowski left his mother in Warsaw to pilot an old plane in the Polish ferry service. He transported wounded soldiers and supplies, until the ship became hopelessly out of order. He joined the Polish motor transport service, was captured near Lwow Sept. 28, and then was taken to Dachau.

After three months at Dachau, he escaped while working on a German farm and worked four months on a farm in Poland. Learning the Gestapo was on his trail, Wojciechowski fled thru Hungary and the Balkans to Palestine, then joined a royal air force Polish squadron in Egypt. In fighting there he downed two German and two Italian fighter planes.

In Canada two months as a flight instructor, Wojciechowski took advantage of a brief leave to visit the United States for the first time. When he returns to Canada he would like nothing better than to be assigned to a fighting unit in England. Already he's tired of teaching other fellows to fly.

DIES OF HEART ATTACK IN HOTEL.

Theodore Schnitzler, 52 years old, 4121 West Martin drive, Milwaukee, was found dead yesterday in his room in the Clayton hotel, 2026 North Clark street. Police said the death was apparently due to a heart attack.

LABOR IS URGED BY PATTERSON TO STAY ON THE JOB

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 7 (AP).—Robert P. Patterson, United States undersecretary of war, praised labor's contribution to the war effort today but said the job ahead would require 100 per cent observance of the no-strike pledge.

Robert P. Patterson.

"In over two years," he told union leaders at the American Federation of Labor convention, "you have never failed us."

Pointing out that the United States had built an army of 4,000,000 in two years, Patterson said: "To equip an army of the size we have and that we contemplate and at the same time furnish our allies with equipment, is the biggest production job we have ever tackled.

"Production of this armament will require suspension of many of our peacetime standards as to hours and conditions of labor. It will require that there be no deviations from the pledges that there will be no strikes or stoppages of war production."

Patterson paid a tribute to the Canadian forces' courage and sacrifices at Dieppe.

HURT BY FALL IN SHAFT.

NOT REGISTERED? DOWNSTATE VOTE LEGAL: BARRETT

Law Providing Right Is Officially Cited.

Thousands of voters in the new permanent registration territory downstate who failed to enroll themselves before the deadline Tuesday night were told yesterday that the law provided a method by which they might cast their ballots on Nov. 3.

In reply to a flood of inquiries, Attorney General George F. Barrett sent to the county clerks and state's attorneys of all 101 counties affected a bulletin calling attention to a special provision of the 1941 permanent registration act for "incomplete registration" on election day. There is no such provision in the laws governing voting in Cook county and the nine downstate election board cities.

Barrett Notifies Officials.

In calling attention to this phase of the law, the attorney general asked the 101 state's attorneys and county clerks to permit unregistered but otherwise qualified voters, regardless of party, to vote under this provision.

Essential parts of the attorney general's bulletin follow:

"I believe it is extremely important that you call the attention of the electors coming within the provisions of the new permanent registration act to the fact that they have not lost their right to cast a ballot at the November election by reason of their failure to register as provided in said act."

Essential Section Pointed Out.

The bulletin quoted from section 21 as follows:

"An otherwise qualified elector not registered under the terms of this act may, upon compliance with this section, vote in one, but not more than one, election prior to that on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1946.

"An unregistered voter applying for a ballot at any such election shall take the oath required by section 10 of this act and shall execute under oath in duplicate a card containing all information required by section 8 of this act to be upon the registration card."

Later the same section provides:

"Upon the execution of said card, the applicant shall be permitted to vote upon signing an application blank provided by the county clerk for such purpose. The card executed by him in duplicate shall be treated as an application for registration and shall be marked as 'incomplete.'"

Statute Operation Simple.

The section contains a provision for an affidavit that the applicant had not voted at any previous election by "incomplete" registration, but since this is the first election held under this statute that procedure is unnecessary on Nov. 3.

Barrett explained to the county officials that operation of this new feature in Illinois election law would be simple.

"The blank form for incomplete registration," he said, "will be furnished at the polling place on election day by the precinct election officials. The filing of an incomplete registration by a qualified voter entitles that voter to a ballot. Qualified but unregistered voters should go to their polling places and ask to vote under 'incomplete registration' as provided in section 21."

PAROLEE POINTED OUT AT TRIAL AS LABOR SLUGGER

Harold E. Erlandson, a paroled convict, was identified yesterday before a jury of seven women and five men in the Criminal court as the alleged labor goon who six months ago slugged a rebel member of local 1 of the Gravel Roofers' union.

"He busted my skull with some object in his hand," testified Lawrence Belles, 41 years old, victim of the slugging.

The trial is being held before Judge Harold G. Ward. Erlandson, 34, is charged with assault to kill. The slugging occurred in the doorway of Belles' apartment at 553 Oakdale avenue on April 2, shortly after his return from a national convention of the union where he had demanded an audit of his local's books.

The sons are Harry R., 25 years old, who enlisted last December but will not go on active duty in the army until he receives his medical degree at the University of Illinois Research and Educational hospital next March; Leslie J., 23, who has just earned a lieutenant's commission and is about to go overseas, and Byron, 18, a freshman at the Citadel, Charleston, S. TONY, TOM MIX'S HORSE, NOW 40, GETS REPRIEVE

San Fernando, Cal., Oct. 7 [Special].—A postponement until Saturday of the mercy death scheduled for Tony, 40 year old horse that shared movie fame with the late Tom Mix, was announced today by Attorney Ivon D. Parker, to whom Mix willed the famous animal. The delay was due to the breakdown of a taxidermist's truck, Parker said.

Tony.

Off his feed since the death of his master, Tony is now nearly blind and is suffering from rheumatism, Parker explained. He plans to have the animal mounted and placed on exhibit with the cowboy actor's effects.

It is a legend in movie circles that Mix bought Tony from a junk dealer for $12. The actor used to credit Tony for the success of his screen career which at its height saw the pair earning $10,000 a week.

DREISER ASSAILS CRITICS OF HIS RAP AT BRITISH

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—Theodore Dreiser renewed his criticism of England's "titled and moneyed class" today in a formal reply to a recent denunciation of him by the Writers' War board for anti-British remarks he allegedly made in a Toronto interview last month.

The Writers' War board on Sept. 24 issued a statement condemning the 71 year old novelist for reportedly asserting in the Canadian interview that he would rather see Germans in England than the "aristocratic horse-riding snobs of the existing régime."

Rex Stout is chairman and Pearl Buck, Clifton Fadiman, Franklin P. Adams, and Carl Carmer are among author members of the Writers' War board.

In a letter answering the board, Dreiser accused it of allying "me with Hitler and against the allies" without "troubling to investigate the facts concerning my remarks" at Toronto.

"I did not ally myself with Hitler and I did denounce the titled and moneyed class of England which I held and still hold to be responsible for the allies' failure to aid Russia," Dreiser wrote.

"What I said was that if due to this titled and moneyed class Russia was defeated I hoped that Hitler would attack England and abolish that titled class."

2 BOMBS EXPLODE AT NO. IRELAND POLICE BARRACKS

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Oct. 7 (AP).—Two bomb blasts occurred close to the Cullingtree road police barracks, an area of strong nationalist feeling, tonight, the second Belfast bombing in two nights.

One blast was at the back gate of the barracks and did no damage. Later a larger bomb exploded outside the main entrance. It tore a hole in the pavement and injured a 17 year old boy.

Nineteen persons were detained by police in the investigation of a bomb explosion in a nearby street last night in which five persons were injured.

A Letter to

HENRY J. KAISER

DEAR MR. KAISER:

For several days the New York newspapers have been running stories on your spectacular drive to find 25,000 additional workers for your shipyards. I know where there are a half a million men. Let me turn your eyes to the one untapped source of labor in America.

There are in this country nearly 5,000,000 American citizens who are handicapped by hearing trouble. They include able-bodied men and women, skilled workers as well as unskilled, trained minds and trained hands who have had to retire or give up their occupations or take less important jobs because their hearing was under par.

Most of them have never done anything to correct their hearing deficiencies, because they were afraid that if they wore a hearing aid to work, they'd label themselves as "deaf" and probably be fired. Unfortunately there have been (and still are) manufacturers who put the bars up against hard of hearing employees.

Today under war pressure, that prejudice is beginning to disappear. There are many progressive business executives who take a more liberal attitude toward their employees' hearing troubles. But there is still too much talent, training, experience and ability going to waste when America needs it most. And if you, who have already smashed so many records in America's industrial life, would smash this prejudice . . . if you would let it be known that any qualified hard of hearing man can find a job in your shipyards or plane plants, provided he wears a properly fitted hearing aid . . . you'd work another miracle for America. And you'd uncover a lot of new labor for yourself and set a lot of Americans free from an undeserved handicap.

There are a number of good hearing aids made in this country. Naturally we think Sonotone is the best, because it represents 14 long years of scientific research and an ocean-to-ocean service organization with 139 offices. But this is no time for selfish, competitive thinking. I honestly don't care which hearing aid a man buys, as long as he buys one if he needs it, and gets back to his full working, fighting efficiency.

You can do that job of waking up this country's employers and employees to a saner view of hearing. Will you?

SMASH MACHINE RULE IN OFFICE OF SHERIFF: CARR

G. O. P. Nominee Assails Democratic 'Graft.'

The sheriff's office under Democratic rule catered to the gambling fraternity and the underworld and left decent citizens to shift for themselves, Leo Carr, Republican nominee for sheriff, charged yesterday in the opening statement of his campaign.

Carr, former Chicago police captain and now on leave from his post as chief of the Illinois highway police, combined a seven point pledge to Cook county with his attack on the "graft and corruption" of the Democratic machine.

"To elect another Democrat is to merely change the name on the door of the sheriff's office," Carr's statement said. "The same personnel, the same policies will continue. There can't be any changes in the office if my opponent is elected because it is operated by machine politics and he is a handpicked candidate of that machine.

Sees Public Up in Arms.

"If we are to smash machine politics, rid our county of vote thieves and stop making this community a haven for criminals, then the people must elect the straight Republican ticket. The people of this county are up in arms—this administration has gone too far.

Carr's pledge to the voters was:

"1. Under my administration the sheriff's office will be run in the interests of all citizens and not for a select few.

"2. We'll smash the alliance that exists between the present sheriff's staff and the criminals of the underworld.

Clear County of Dives.

"3. We'll clear the county highways of dives which cater to 'teen age boys and girls, selling them liquor and tempting them with vice of all types.

"4. We'll rid the county of syndicated gambling and slot machines which are owned and controlled by the underworld.

"5. We'll transform the county highway police department into a modern crime fighting unit.

"6. I'll use the entire resources of my office to rid this county of vote thieves and ballot box stuffers.

"7. I'll use my 27 years' experience on the Chicago police department to give the people an administration in crime fighting of which they may be proud."

Northwestern university's program of compulsory physical education for all male undergraduates, designed to prepare them for military service, was demonstrated publicly by a class of 250 men on the Evanston campus yesterday.

The demonstrators scaled an eight foot wall, scrambled over horizontal bars and used ropes to cross a 9 foot ditch as they raced over an obstacle course. Another activity in the expanded physical education program was running while carrying a fellow student.

The course is compulsory for the 2,800 undergraduates taking 12 or more hours of classroom work. They spend 4½ hours a week in physical education, including exercises, swimming and sports designed to build up endurance. A modified program is provided for those phyically handicapped.

3 MORE RACING SHEETS RETURN TO N. Y. STANDS

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—Three more racing form sheets, which have been under ban from the newsstands by License Commissioner Paul Moss, will reappear on the stands tomorrow.

Jacob Brenner, counsel for William Armstrong Daily Sports, the National Racing Program, and the Daily Green Sheet, announced tonight that Supreme Court Justice Morris Eder has signed an injunction temporarily restraining the commissioner from interfering with sale of the three publications.

The three were banned along with the Morning Telegraph, the Daily Racing Form, the Daily Racing Guide, and the Daily Racing Tab earlier this week as part of Mayor La Guardia's campaign against gambling on the horse races. The last four publications already had returned to the newsstands.

'Need' G. O. P. County Ticket; Women Pledge Straight Vote

Voices Plea for Brooks

The importance of the county slates in the Nov. 3 election was emphasized yesterday by Charles O. Rundall, Republican candidate for county judge, in a talk before the Women's Republican Club of Illinois at the La Salle hotel.

"More people live in Cook county than in any one of 37 of our 48 states," he said.

"The assessed valuation of property in Cook county is greater than in any one of 34 states. The duties of Samuel Workman, Republican candidate for treasurer, will be greater than those of many state treasurers.

"The responsibilities of William Busse, when he is elected president of the county board, will exceed those of governors of many states, and the business that Loyd C. Larson, next Republican county clerk, will handle is more than the combined affairs of several secretaries of state."

Calls for Brooks' Reëlection.

"Good government at home is the foundation of good government in the state and in the nation," Rundall said. "In these trying times it is of paramount importance that Sen. Wayland Brooks be returned to the United States senate and that all Republican congressional candidates be elected by such an overwhelming majority as to leave no doubt about the attitude of Illinois voters.

"It is likewise important that we repair our own fences in Cook county. We county candidates are running against Democratic office holders, whose public records smell to high heaven.

"When William Busse was president of the county board some years ago, its affairs were run on a cash basis, it was amply solvent. Since the board came under the boss ridden influence of the Democratic party, it has made such a record of financial extravagance, mismanagement and inefficiency as to be well nigh incredible.

Lauds State Administration.

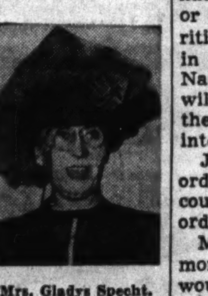
"Contrast the record of the county with that of the state of Illinois. The state's condition is the best in its history, not by accident, but because of a Republican legislature and a Republican executive who promised an economical administration — a pledge that has been kept.

"In less than two years public confidence has been restored to our party thru the performance of our distinguished leader, Gov. Dwight H. Green. We county candidates are committed to the same program of efficiency and economy in the government of Cook county."

Laud 2 Party System

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

The Women's Republican Club of Illinois opened its campaign program with a pledge to support the straight Republican ticket and preserve the two party system as the basis of the democratic way of life yesterday at a meeting in the La Salle hotel.



Mrs. Gladys Specht.

One hundred and fifty women from all parts of the city and suburbs attended to meet the candidates for whose return they will work. Mrs. Ethyl G. Kennedy, newly elected president of the club, presented the candidates and stressed the importance of the issues in the coming elections.

"Because we women are the guardians of the American home, the foundation of the democratic way of life, we must fight to preserve the two party system," she said. "It is only thru the constructive criticism of the Republican party that the war effort can be executed successfully. We must vote and work for the straight Republican ticket to maintain the democratic system of checks and balances."

Stresses Women's Power.

Mrs. Gladys Specht, only Republican woman candidate for Cook county commissioner, stressed the voting power of the women today.

"Women today have 60 per cent of the voting power," she said. "If we do not vote the Republican ticket in this time, the bungling of the war effort can be laid in our laps and will be." Mrs. Specht, long active in public welfare work, pointed out that there is a place for a woman on the county board. Women's interests are tied up with such county agencies as the Cook County hospital, Oak Forest infirmary, and the juvenile home, she pointed out.

Organized women must get behind the Republican ticket and defeat the socialistic trends of the New Deal, Ralph E. Church, former congressman nominated to regain his seat in the 10th district, told the club members.

Blasts Socialistic Trend.

"After six years in Washington, D. C., I know what our opposition is," he said. "It is socialism. We believe in winning this war by effective action and to do so politics is out. But we are fighting for our fundamental form of government and unless the constructive criticism of the Republican party can be heard we will come out of this world struggle as a socialistic state."

Other Republican candidates who spoke before the meeting included Charles S. Stewart, candidate for county superintendent of schools; Henry R. Leadaman, trustee for the sanitary district; Theron W. Merryman, candidate for county assessor; Stanley R. Pulaski, candidate for judge of the Probate court, and candidates for Cook county commissioners.

RETAILERS JOIN FIGHT ON BILL TO DROP FOOD TAX

The fight to defeat the amendment Nov. 3 which would allow lifting the sales tax off food in Illinois, took added strength yesterday as the Illinois Federation of Retail associations announced it would carry its opposition to the bill to all affiliated organizations in the state.

Contending removal of the sales tax from food would lead only to "more taxes some place else," the federation addressed a five page mimeographed letter to retail agencies over the state reaffirming its stand against the amendment. The proposed change is sponsored by Gov. Dwight H. Green, who favored the constitutional amendment procedure as safest against court tests.

In its letter, the federation asserted: "We believe the amendment should not pass. Our basic reason, frankly, is a fear of heavy replacement taxes, and we believe we have the right to express this fear."

SAYS DEMOCRATS COERCED KANTOR HEARING WITNESS

Joseph Esposito, son of the late Diamond Joe, in whose home Vito Colucci, notary, testified he had taken the sworn acknowledgments of between 400 and 500 signers of the nominating petition of Ted Kantor for sheriff, complained bitterly yesterday because he couldn't testify at the electoral board hearings on the petitions.

Esposito said Colucci told him he had to say he had notarized the petitions in Esposito's home because he had been instructed so to do while being quizzed in a political inquisition in the Morrison hotel, Democratic headquarters.

Esposito also said Frank Colucci, a deputy sheriff and brother of Vito, had subpenaed him but when he reached the hearing room they wouldn't let him take the stand.

The hearings will be resumed today.

Roosevelt Signs Bill to Guard Soldier Rights

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—Legislation to safeguard the civil rights of service men while they are fighting was signed today by President Roosevelt. Known as the soldiers' and sailors' civil relief act, the legislation provides in average cases for stays of court proceedings, foreclosures, and evictions and for protection of private life insurance policies. The insurance provision guarantees payment of premiums on private insurance up to a face value of $10,000.

FINED $100 FOR MOLESTING GIRL.

Regenal Yunnie, 32 years old, 673 Sheridan road, a British subject, was fined $100 and costs yesterday by Judge Oscar S. Caplan in the State street court on a charge of molesting a 19 year old girl in a Randolph street theater.

MRS. TEGTMEYER GETS 5 DAYS TO PUT UP $22,312

Mrs. Daisy Tegtmeyer, the forgotten woman of the county jail, was ordered yesterday by Circuit Judge Benjamin P. Epstein to pay $22,312 into a trust fund of which she had been trustee, or $9,250 in securities held for her in the La Salle National bank will be sold and the money put into the fund.

Mrs. Daisy Tegtmeyer.

Judge Epstein ordered the payment on petition of counsel for the bank, based on an order from the Appellate court.

Mrs. Tegtmeyer was in jail for more than five years because she would not tell what she had done with more than two-thirds of the $32,000 trust estate of her father-in-law, who died in 1923. In the course of the long court battle since 1934, she took the case to the Supreme court three times, to the state Supreme court once, and to the Appellate court five times. She has been out of jail since the spring of 1941.

Lend-Lease Output Leaps; U. S. Food Getting Scarce

ALLIES DRAW HEAVILY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7.—American food and other farm products delivered to docks in August for lend-lease shipments amounted to 391,397,810 pounds, making a total of 6,751,000,000 pounds consigned to the united nations under lend-lease since April 29, 1941, the department of agriculture reported today.

The August total was 204,000,000 pounds less than the 595,253,000 pounds delivered to docks for lend-lease shipments in July. Officials said the decline was accounted for by seasonal factors affecting farm output and by a reduction in available shipping which varies from month to month.

Lend-lease deliveries of food to docks in June were 586,000,000 pounds, and in May 201,000,000 pounds. No figures on the dollar value of the products were made available.

Canned, cured, and frozen pork is the largest single food item being sent to the united nations, the department reported. Pork deliveries to docks in August were 75,439,000 pounds, bringing total pork consignments to 941,715,750 pounds in the last 16 months. This is in addition to 636,000,000 pounds of lard delivered for shipment.

Grains and cereals allotted to Russia under lend-lease have totaled 187,000,000 pounds since April, 1941. This is 11 per cent of the total grain and cereal products sent to all united nations.

Officials reported shipments of vitamin products are being steadily increased.

Deliveries to docks from April 29, 1941, thru Aug. 31, 1942, follow:

Food.	Weight in lbs.
Dairy and egg products	1,231,227,713
Meat, fish, and fowl	1,133,409,671
Fruits, vegetables, and nuts	976,975,600
Grain and cereal products	1,738,231,612
Lard, fats, and oils	693,349,005
Other foodstuffs	54,092,016
Nonfoodstuffs	924,020,703
Total	6,751,306,320

WARNS ON HOARDING

Many foods now plentiful on grocers' shelves may be available only in limited quantities next spring, Chicago food authorities warned yesterday. Government demands for supplies and shortage of labor to harvest many of this year's crops are responsible.

"Almost all foods are affected," Hugh Jones, vice president of the United Buyers corporation, said yesterday. "Fairly large stocks are still on hand, however, and the public will not actually feel the shortages until February or March. Substitutes will be available." Housewives were urged not to hoard foods or to start runs on grocery stores, depleting their stocks. Mrs. Rose Marie Kiefer, secretary of the National Association of Retail Grocers, made the appeal.

Mrs. Kiefer told a special senate committee investigating the problems of small business on Tuesday that unless federal regulations of food production and distribution are cleared up, shortages may become acute within 18 months.

Stocks of imported foods such as coffee, tea, spices, Spanish olives, and cocoa have been dwindling for some time.

Canned peas, corn, and citrus fruits have been affected by the shortage of labor for harvesting, Mrs. Kiefer said.

STIMSON FINDS AMERICA'S WAR EFFORT AMAZING

Shreveport, La., Oct. 7 (AP).—America's war effort since Pearl Harbor has been amazing, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said here today. He declared it was remarkable that so much could be accomplished in so short a time.

The secretary, accompanied by Robert A. Lovett, assistant secretary of war for air; Maj. Gen. A. D. Surles, chief of the army public relations bureau; Maj. Gen. Barton K. Yount, commanding general of the flying training command; Lieut. Col. W. H. S. Wright, aide to Stimson, and Brig. Gen. Carlisle Wash, 3d air force commander, made an inspection of Barksdale field this morning.

LIGHT PATTERN CHANGE CALLED AID IN DEFENSE

Aerial observers were "much impressed" by the Chicago metropolitan area's first general test of trick lighting as a camouflage against air raiders early yesterday, Ralph H. Burke, deputy civilian defense coordinator for the area, said. He declined further comment, except to say the test will lead to much further study of this method of confusing attacking planes.

Seventy-five representatives of the army, navy, and the civilian defense organization studied effects from six airplanes as the test was in progress from 2:30 to 2:45 a. m. They had studied the city's normal light patterns from the air for about two hours before the test got under way.

Several thousand civilian defense workers aided in disguising the city and suburbs. Some lights were blacked out, including advertising signs, window displays, and some street lights. Portable lights were set up to create fake light patterns. Some thorofares were darkened and traffic diverted to other streets. Street cars and elevated trains were halted.

ENGINEER DIES ON STREET.

James W. Wilson, for 22 years an engineer for the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad, died of a heart attack yesterday at State and 11th streets. He was 62 years old and lived at 5669 South Fairfield avenue.

FINDS POLITICS DELAYS CHICAGO LAKE FLOW BILL

Mayor Reveals Large Bacteria Increase.

Dangerous conditions in the far south side's water supply were revealed yesterday by Mayor Kelly on his return from a conference in Washington, D. C., on additional diversion of lake water.

The figures the mayor quoted yesterday were the same he had presented to the rivers and harbors committee, headed by Rep. Joseph J. Mansfield [D., Tex.]. The bill before the committee is sponsored by Rep. Adolph J. Sabath of Illinois.

September counts of coliform bacteria at the Dunne crib averaged 6,907 per 100 cubic centimeters of water. The safe maximum of this type of bacillus is 50 per 100 cubic centimeters.

Rose to 300,000 Sept. 17.

On one day, Sept. 17, the count reached the astounding figure of 300,000 bacteria. Water engineers blamed a huge slick of polluted matter which drifted toward the crib from industrial plants.

"I am confident something will be accomplished as the result of this conference in Washington," the mayor said. "The bill to increase diversion and stop this dangerous condition is now before the rivers and harbors committee of the house. Hearings will be held on it just as soon as there is a quorum."

Away Seeking Votes.

Reporters asked the mayor why no quorum had been obtained.

"The members, most of them, are out running for office," he said.

The rivers and harbors committee is composed of Rep. Mansfield and Representatives Joseph a Gavagan [D., N. Y.], Lex Green [D., Fla.], Martin F. Smith [D., Wash.], William T. Schulte [D., Ind.], Hugh Peterson [D., Ga.], C. Jasper Bell [D., Mo.], Graham A. Barden [D., N. C.], John E. Rankin [D., Miss.], Frank W. Boykin [D., Ala.], Jerry Voorhis [D., Cal.], Michael J. Kirwan [D., O.], Anton F. Maciejewski [D., Chicago], Clyde T. Ellis [D., Ark.], Alfred F. Beiter [D., N. Y.], and Anthony J. Dimond [D., delegate from Alaska].

We could not, of course, foresee war. But we did have the vision to anticipate the growth of American industry and recognize the need for still faster, more efficient transportation. So we built accordingly, with one objective in mind—to keep Rock Island Lines in the forefront of American railroads.

During the past six years we have adhered to a program of Planned Progress, constantly building for the future. As a result, when war came, we were prepared. So well prepared, in fact, that today we are capable of carrying even more vital war freight than the millions of ton-miles per day we have been so far called upon to haul! Given sufficient materials to continue, we shall make even greater progress in the service of America.

Our program of Planned Progress has achieved many extensive and enduring improvements.

GRADE REDUCTIONS over all of Rock Island Lines have proved one of our most important accomplishments. For reduced grades mean increased speeds for the munitions of war and vital passenger travel.

HEAVIER RAILS, heavier ballast and heavier cross-ties permit heavier loads! These and many other improvements have made Rock Island Lines one of America's great railroad systems.

EQUIPMENT AND FACILITIES are improved. Speedier, more powerful locomotives—cars of latest design—many innovations accelerate freight operations and provide the expedited service now so vital.

BOARD AFFIRMS PAST PAY RAISES IN PRICE BATTLE

Flour Ceilings Assailed as in 'Bad Faith.'

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 [Special]. —Today's developments in the anti-inflation maneuvers in which the administration and congress are engaged were:

1. The War Labor board affirmed all its past wage increases and gave provisional approval to any voluntary raises between Sept. 13 and Oct. 3.

2. Senate farm bloc members challenged—as a violation of the new price control law—the President's executive order directing the OPA to make deductions of government farm subsidies in fixing parity ceilings for farm commodities.

3. President Roosevelt appointed six men to represent agriculture, management and labor on the new Economic Stabilization board.

The action on wage increases cleared the way for a start from scratch as of Monday under the President's new anti-inflation order of Saturday which froze prices and wages, generally speaking, as of Sept. 15.

Byrnes to Rule Lower Brackets.

William H. Davis, chairman of the board, said the board will not make any formal request to be notified of raises granted between Sept. 15 and Oct. 3, but added, "we have little birds to tell us" of such increases.

Davis said the board lacks jurisdiction over salaries of less than $5,000, and that it will be up to James F. Byrnes, economic stabilization director, to deal with excessive increases to employés in salary brackets below $5,000.

The board's approval of wage increases put into effect prior to Oct. 3 reserved the right for the board to order discontinuance of such increases which it later finds to be inconsistent with the policy of the executive order or any policy formulated by Director Byrnes. The board's order also enlarged its jurisdiction to include labor disputes in all industries.

Sen. Reed Assails President.

The challenge to the President's order relative to farm commodity ceilings was led by Sen. Clyde M. Reed [R., Kas.], who assailed the order as "a plain violation of the law" and "the most flagrant exhibition of bad faith I ever have seen."

The Kansas senator cited figures purporting to show that the temporary maximum price ceiling on flour, fixed Saturday by Price Administrator Leon Henderson, will permit a price of only $1.02 a bushel to farmers for their wheat, while the parity price is $1.34. He emphasized that the price of $1.02 is below the 1942 government loan rate for wheat, which is 85 per cent of parity, or $1.14 a bushel.

The loan rates on cotton, tobacco, rice and marketing quota peanuts were increased from 85 to 90 per cent of parity today, in accordance with provisions of the new price control law, but the department of agriculture announced that there will be no change in the corn and wheat loan rates of 85 per cent of parity. It has been estimated that a 5 per cent increase in the corn and wheat loan rate would increase the cost of production of meat and dairy products to the extent of adding 650 million dollars a year to the nation's food bill.

Represent Two Viewpoints.

Named to represent farmers on the new economic stabilization board are two agricultural leaders who have taken opposite sides on many questions. They are Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, which largely represents farm owners and large scale operators, and James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers union, an organization composed largely of farm tenants, laborers, renters and small operators.

Representing management are Eric A. Johnston, president of the Brown-Johnston and the Columbia Electric and Manufacturing companies, who became president of the United States Chamber of Commerce last year, and Ralph E. Flanders, mechanical engineer and president of the Jones and Lamson Machine company of Vermont, former adviser to the NRA and other government agencies.

Labor is represented by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

I want to preach a sermon...

I have no explanation for turning this family pew into a pulpit, except, just now, the spirit moved me.
With your permission, I want to say what others, later on, may say better, but what I feel must be said now!

The time I lost my job we ate beans six weeks in a row.
But I got back on a payroll!
The day the banks closed, I felt like I'd been hit with a ton of bricks.
But I got up and dusted my pants off!
The year I worked my fingers to the bone, and took a cut instead of a raise, I swore I'd quit.
But I stuck!
The night we got the telegram about our boy,
we thought the sun would never shine again.
But . . . we're carrying on!

It seems to me, somebody's got America sized up wrong.
This country was born at Valley Forge!
This country outgrew the grief of Gettysburg!
This country came to manhood at the Marne, and in the shattered forest of the Argonne!
The point I want to make is . . .
We've been through the hardships and the heartaches all before!
Our only trouble is that when it comes to making war, we're a little short of practice.
But what we haven't any shortage in, is courage . . .
fighting spirit . . . and the will to win!
That's why we want to know the truth about this war,
The whole truth and nothing but the truth,
plain . . . unvarnished . . . with the bark on!
That way we all can figure out how big the job is and buckle down to lick it.
So, let's have it!
If we need sugar to win this war, take it.
If we need rubber to win this war, take it.
If we need steel to win this war, take it.
If we need cash to win this war, take our money and buy War Savings Stamps and Bonds!
Take everything we've got to win this war, and welcome!
Because there's one thing no one's ever going to take from you and me, so help us God,
And that's America!

I'm not talking for myself alone, or for my family.
I'm talking for all Americans.
So, the words could just as well be yours as mine,
And I say: We'll live on bread and water,
if we have to,
And we'll like it . . . fine!

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1942.

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or of the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances. —First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

MR. BIDDLE AND CIVIL LIBERTIES.

The resignation of Justice Byrnes from the Supreme court to become director of economic stabilization comes at a time when the court has shown the closest possible division in its most important function, that of interpreting the constitutional protections of civil liberties.

Times of war are always precarious times for civil liberties. A necessity for certain restraints which would not be tolerated in peacetime is admitted by all, but those in authority are tempted to extend the restraints beyond any real necessity, for the political advantage of the party in power. And public opinion, always excited and sometimes hysterical, will approve the harshest treatment of those minorities that make themselves unpopular by deviating from the standardized opinions of wartime.

Mr. Manly of THE TRIBUNE's Washington staff is thus quite correct when he reports that the future of freedom of speech, of press, and of religion, may well depend on whom the President nominates for the Byrnes vacancy. The future of civil liberties is black, indeed, if, as is reported in the capital, Attorney General Biddle has the inside track for the vacancy on the court.

Biddle is in the forefront of the Roosevelt administration's effort to destroy the protections of the 1st Amendment as a means of silencing its critics. There is no stronger link in the chain of evidence that this is its intent than the language used in the indictment which Biddle and his staff obtained in Washington against 28 persons charged with a conspiracy to injure the morale of the armed forces.

"The defendants," it was urged in this indictment, "conspired to seize upon, and use, and misuse the right of freedom of speech and the press to spread their disloyal doctrines, intending and believing that any nation allowing its people the right of freedom of speech and of the press is powerless to defend itself against enemies, masquerading as patriots and seeking to obstruct, impede, break down, and destroy the proper functioning of its republican form of government under the guise of honest criticism."

That is rattlesnake language. It seeks, behind a screen of windy pseudo-patriotism, to make it a crime to dispute the arguments of the political party in power, even in time of peace. Many of the overt acts charged against the defendants in this case occurred before Pearl Harbor and are characterized in the indictment as "written and printed opposition and sabotage against any and all efforts of public officials to arouse the military and naval forces and the people." It was a crime, this indictment contends, to oppose in time of peace the efforts of those who sought to put us into a war for which, subsequent experience has shown, the administration had failed to prepare adequately.

No one will undertake to defend the activities of a large number of defendants in this case. Some are crackpots. Some have been convicted of seditious actions. A number have been guilty of most obnoxious activities designed to stir up racial hatred in this country. It may be noted, however, that these latter were not indicted for spreading race prejudice but for criticising the administration.

Their records, however, are immaterial to the larger aspects of the case. The indictment, with its attempt to smear the patriotic leaders of the America First committee, many of them now in uniform, by association with the crackpots and the seditionists, may be regarded as Mr. Biddle's credo on civil liberties. He is their enemy, as all men are who seek to fasten one party government on a people. That kind of government cannot live under free criticism any more than free men can live under that kind of government.

If Mr. Biddle gets onto the court, America's danger of falling under a totalitarian government will be immeasurably increased.

WHY IT'S CONFIDENTIAL.

Rep. Albert J. Engel of Michigan, it seems, has a much too inquiring disposition. The war department knows him of old. The last time Mr. Engel started nosing into things, he discovered that whereas it cost 206 million dollars to build the cantonments that housed 4 million men in the first World war, it cost 800 million dollars to build the cantonments to house the first 1,400,000 men in this war. Mr. Engel not unnaturally concluded that a good many dollars had gone down the drain pipe.

When Mr. Engel recently started to nose around the new war department building in Arlington, he got onto much the same sort of situation, only this time the war department was ready for him. The department provided the information on costs of construction that he asked, but everything was marked "confidential." He was told that army public relations had ordered none of the facts to be made public—and that apparently was to go for congress, too. Mr. Engel, terming the business "a shameful waste of the taxpayers' and bond buyers' money," proceeded to make them public anyway.

Gen. Somervell and other high officers of the army had testified that the building would cost 35 million dollars and would comprise 5,100,000 square feet of space, of which 4 million feet would be net office space, housing 40,000 employés. It turns out that the building now nearing completion will cost 70 million dollars, and while the space has been increased to 5,776,352 square feet, the net office space has been reduced to 2,362,580 square feet, which will be sufficient to house only 23,000 employés. Thus, for twice as much money as the original estimate, the government gets about half as much office space and room for about half as many employés. The cost of gross space is raised from $7 to $11 a square foot and of net office space from $9 to almost $30 a square foot.

The war department explains that 20½ million dollars of the added cost is for parking lots, access roads, bridges, and landscaping, altho Gen. Somervell testified in July, 1941, that all of this except the cost of the parking lot, which he could not estimate but which was expected to cost around 1 million dollars, was comprehended in the 35 million. Incidentally, the parking lot is to be 299 acres, which would seem to indicate there is no dearth of automobiles among the burocracy, despite the rubber shortage and gasoline rationing.

Mr. Engel informed his colleagues that he could not figure out why, if the figures on the original and cheaper estimate for the building were not considered confidential, those for the present more costly and inefficient structure were to be so considered. Mr. Engel and his colleagues in congress are, of course, only catching up with the real purpose of the censorship. The newspapers have long been aware of it. It is used to conceal incompetence and waste in the management of the war, and not only in the war, but in other things as well, if it can be made to stretch.

$25,000 A YEAR.

In his anti-inflation message to congress on April 27, President Roosevelt asked congress to place a ceiling of $25,000 on individual incomes after taxes. Congress refused to adopt the recommendation of the President. Shortly afterward Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and his tax expert, Randolph Paul, presented to the ways and means committee of the house of representatives a proposal for a super tax levy on incomes of single persons over $25,000, and on incomes over $50,000 of married couples. The house committee quickly rejected the plan.

In his message to congress on Labor day, the President again asked for a top limit on incomes to be set by congress at $25,000 in the tax bill. The measure is before the senate, but it contains no $25,000 provision.

In his proclamation last Saturday, creating the Office of Economic Stabilization, Mr. Roosevelt defied congress by ordering the director of the new agency to issue regulations limiting salaries to $25,000 per year after the payment of taxes. The regulations are to make allowances for insurance premiums on outstanding policies and payments on existing debts. The treasury is told to disallow salaries in excess of the $25,000 net, as a deduction from the income tax. The OPA is to ignore such salaries in determining costs for the determination of maximum prices. They are not to be allowed on cost-plus government contracts.

The order is going to impose a burden upon corporation auditors. If companies are to escape penalties the personal affairs of every employé receiving over $25,000 have to be inquired into thoroly to determine what amounts each such employé can receive above $25,000 for insurance premiums and old debts. The Office of Price Administration, whose sphere of action has been greatly widened, will also have to determine ceilings for every employé of every company which pays one or more employés more than the ceiling.

It is to be noted that the limitation is on salaries and not on total income. There is a maximum for the man who works for his money, but no similar limitation upon the one whose income is a return upon inherited wealth. The favored treatment will be especially welcome in Washington, where there is only one officer—the chief executive—who draws more than $25,000 gross. Wealthy men in the cabinet, who draw small salaries but have vast other income, such as the secretary of the treasury, the secretary of commerce, and the postmaster general, and the many wealthy men on the commissions and boards, and especially in the WPB, are exempt from the ceiling order as to the bulk of their income.

The salary limitation has not the slightest relationship to the prevention of inflation. When Mr. Paul was before congress he said that only 11,000 persons would be hit by his scheme and only 184 million dollars would be collected a year, less than a day's outgo for the government. The national income is running at something like 120 billion dollars a year. A few hundred million dollars one way or the other won't affect prices.

Having once placed the limit at $25,000, there will be demands to cut it to $10,000, $5,000, and $2,500. One of the department of agriculture radicals has long urged that the government see that incomes of $2,500 a year be available to every one. Prof. Harley Lutz of Princeton university recently pointed out that Huey Long in his "share the wealth" demagogic campaign set a limit of $100,000 a year. The President, at $25,000 a year, has gone Huey Long $75,000 better. Says Prof. Lutz: "The only logical stopping place for this movement is a completely communistic equalization of incomes on a straight per capita basis." We are being taken rapidly toward communism, not by acts of congress, but by executive edict.

SEWARD'S SENSE.

[Boston Herald.]

Long truck convoys will be moving vast tonnages of military supplies over Alaska's Burma road next December for the defense of what Gen. William Mitchell called "the most important strategic place in the world"—or for a drive on Tokio. For by Dec. 1 the 1,600 mile highway that links Canadian railroads with Fairbanks will be completed, months before schedule, and the acquisitive traits of a late secretary of state named William H. Seward will be justified far beyond that gentleman's most robust dreams only 75 years ago. Under the spur of war we have achieved still another amazing engineering feat.

To push thru the road in nine months at the rate of about six miles a day, the United States army engineers had to transport crews and equipment deep into the wilderness so that construction could be carried on simultaneously at various points. But, assisted by aerial surveys and by big bulldozers and tractors, the engineers have traced the long gash thru virgin stands of timber and across dreary acres of mud and muskeg until completion is in sight. The fears of those who opposed the present location of the highway that it could not be completed in time are happily unfounded.

The sheer immensity of Alaska and its vast potential wealth have been appreciated by few Americans, for few have penetrated beyond the fringes. But the military exploitation of that land, the air fields, the bases, and the new communication lines, will give us after the war a vast new frontier already prepared for an impressive economic development.

To the 49th state: Alaska! Once called Seward's Folly, it has demonstrated its value in a way never dreamed of by its sponsor, William H. Seward.

A FORGOTTEN CARTOONIST.

At long last a forgotten man breaks into history: Harold R. Heaton, "THE TRIBUNE's first artist," according to Charles Leavelle [Oct. 7] in describing the mechanical development of this newspaper. The question of priority is debatable, but perhaps he was the first artist regularly employed. There is quite a story about him, but it has never been written.

It may have been 1885 when Heaton joined the Tribune staff as an illustrator, and he must have worked like a Trojan, for his work is scattered all over the issues of that era. Several of his full-page decorative designs for Sunday issues have been framed for permanent exhibition in the present editorial rooms—elaborate, fussy, old-fashioned work, but first class for its time. From such chores he rose to the position of first-page cartoonist, and his signature, H. R. H., won for him the nickname of "His Royal Highness." Once a year he held an exhibition in his studio, and the carriages of Prairie avenue cluttered the adjacent curbing.

Heaton was riding high as the forerunner of McCutcheon, and then he suddenly vanished from journalism. That was when William Gillette was giving Chicago its first glimpse of "Sherlock Holmes," in the winter of 1900. Heaton had run away from newspaper art to join Gillette's company in a small rôle [a curate]. He played that part in the London première of "Sherlock Holmes" a year later. [Vincent Starrett, Sherlock Holmes historiographer, please note.]

He wrote a play which had a New York opening and a two weeks' run; then he floundered in the current of Broadway life, occasionally getting an engagement. He was not much of an actor; high-piping curates were his "line."

In 1908 or thereabout Heaton had a second incarnation in Chicago journalism as cartoonist of the Inter Ocean. His style was out of date, but his ideas were good. He remained with that paper until its extinction in 1914. Then he returned to Broadway's chancy life. In 1927 we caught a glimpse of him as a chorus man in a Shubert operetta. In 1931 we saw him for the last time, acting a waiter in "The Greeks Had a Word for It."

* * *

When his brief obituary was printed a few years ago, the fact that he had been THE TRIBUNE's first cartoonist was completely forgotten.

THE BARGAINER.

I bartered a song for a penny,
  I traded a dream for a mite;
The buyers were not very many,
  My sales were scanty and light.

But I bought content with my dreaming,
  I won three friends with my song.
O, I am a master at bargains
  In a market that never goes wrong!

History of the Gold Coast.

(Printed out of historical order in this series to mark the anniversary of the Chicago fire.)

The summer of 1871 had been very dry. As early fall set in, the dryness became drouth. Nowhere thruout the city was this more apparent than in the north division. By the first week in October the trees of the old forest had shed their leaves, which lay strewn over the ground or raked into large piles. Day after day the scorching sirocco of the Great Plains blew over the city.

At 9:21 p. m. Sunday, Oct. 8, the people of the north division heard the booming of the courthouse bell striking 3-4-2, the number of the fire alarm box at Canalport avenue and Halsted street, about three miles to the southwest. Just another fire on the west side. They paid no attention to it. A few minutes later the bell boomed out the second alarm. Going to the windows, they saw a baleful red glare across the southwest sky and heard the clanging bells of the A. C. Coventry engine company No. 11, on Michigan street near North State, and of the John Huck hose company No. 3, North Dearborn near Superior, as they rolled out of their quarters.

People were now hurrying to the fire. The more sedate prepared to turn in for the night. But the courthouse bell kept up its booming and the young ones were stirring uneasily in their sleep. A shower of sparks was streaming over the neighborhood and it was as light as day. At 1:30 a. m. there was a flare-up from the Huck brewery at Superior and the lake shore, where the paint shop took fire from the sparks and burned in a few minutes.

The more prudent, seeing that the entire city was threatened, waked the youngsters and gathered their valuables, some burying them in their yards, others piling them in the family buggy, carryall or wagon, and prepared to make for the prairies to the west. From the water tower the entire city to the southwest appeared to be a mass of flames. All hoped that the fire would be stopped at the river, but at 2:30 a. m. their hopes were ended as a train of cars at Kinzie and North State, containing kerosene, were fired from a brand. In a few minutes Wright's stables on Kinzie were aflame and from them the fire tore off to the north on a wild revel thru the stately homes of the old settlers. Half an hour later the Rumsey house at Huron and Cass streets was blazing, and at 3:20 a. m. the roof of the waterworks took fire. The structure burned so fiercely that the main stream pipe to the engines melted. The city, now without water, was doomed.

PERIODIC ATTACKS OF NUMBNESS.

EVERY little while a patient will complain of a sense of numbness particularly in the extremeties, remarking, "My skin feels as though it were dead." Occasionally, tingling or pricking will be experienced.

Ofttimes the disorder will become a night prowler. Many a victim will explain that he wakes up in the middle of the night with lifeless arms. As a rule, manifestation will wear off later in the day. When aching is present, vigorous rubbing may bring partial relief, but the discomfort will return with the cessation of massage.

The onset is slow and gradual. There is no loss of muscular power and no noticeable tenderness. There is no tremor, disturbance of speech, or other sign of nerve damage. It is not writer's, milker's, or other type of cramp associated with nerve fatigue. Sometimes there will be a history of asthma or eczema. In such circumstances, allergy may be responsible. The ailment is not serious, altho it is annoying and may persist for years. By and large the symptoms will not appear until adult life—in the 40s or 50s. In general, the sufferers are robust and well nourished.

Activity plays a rôle. In fact, the condition may come on subsequent to prolonged exercise. On the contrary, rest and quiet will shorten an attack. In only a few instances will swinging or beating the parts prove helpful. In this respect, the situation differs from a leg or an arm "going to sleep." Some patients will assert that their seizures follow sewing, knitting, writing or playing the piano. One victim could not comb her hair. She was unable to pick up the hairpins, because of clumsiness. Not infrequently the difficulty accompanies the menopause, disappearing shortly after the change of life has been well established.

While disease of the spinal cord may exist, apparently it is not the basic cause. There is reason to believe that the phenomenon can be explained on the ground that the glands of internal secretion are out of balance. In consequence, the contraction of the blood vessels surrounding the nerve endings in the epidermis give the sensations of tingling and numbness. On the theory that there may be an upset thyroid secretion, iodine in the form of Lugol's solution has been recommended. It should be said, however, that only a few individuals have been benefited by the administration of this drug.

The case is reported of a 42 year old woman who suffered from periodical paroxysms. She could provoke the trouble almost at will by carrying an armful of bundles from the neighborhood store to her home—approximately 8 blocks. At housecleaning time she was obliged to relax at intervals otherwise she would not be able to obtain a good night's sleep, free from pain. She learned to drop her arms and allow them to remain in that position until recovery occurred. Naturally alert, she found that she could keep going only by employing numerous 30 minute rest periods.

While the affliction may be chronic it need not become disabling or occasion the slightest concern since it does not influence general health.

EYES AND EARS.

R. M. writes: Will a chronic abscess in the ear cause the eyesight to be impaired?

REPLY.

Toxins absorbed from any part of the body may injure vision. Do not allow the condition to persist. Your physician may advise the use of one of the sulfonamide drugs.

NERVOUS BREATHING.

G. H. writes: What would cause difficulty in taking a long breath at times? The pulse is normal.

REPLY.

The cause is not heart disease. Neither is it obstruction. For the most part, upset emotions are responsible. A discussion of this condition will appear on October 19.

WHAT MONEY IS WORTH.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Referring to "E. E. K.'s" letter of Sept. 30, I quote the first sentence therefrom: "It is a known fact that our monetary system is based on gold and that because of this gold our currency has its recognized value."

In reply, I refer to "Hearings before the committee on banking and currency, house of representatives, on H. R. 7158, June 17, 19, 1942," at which Mr. Eccles, governor of the federal reserve system, was interrogated. I quote conversation between Mr. Eccles and Rep. Frederick C. Smith of Ohio:

Mr. Eccles—"I do deny that the amount of the gold reserve, the gold requirements have anything to do with the price level, which means it has nothing to do with the value of the currency."

Mr. Smith—"Aren't you in effect saying there is no relation whatever of the gold in this country to our currency?"

Mr. Eccles—"That is right."

Mr. Smith—"There is no relation whatever?"

Mr. Eccles—"That is right."

Mr. Smith—"You then take the attitude we are completely off the gold standard?"

Mr. Eccles—"Yes, completely."

Scarcity of goods plus an abnormal volume of money equals inflationary prices. Money only has a normal value when it is properly balanced by commodities purchasable. It is not the material of which money is made that gives it its value nor can only one commodity [gold] give it its value.

If the debts of a nation are good security on which to base its monetary system, why is not its wealth better?

AN AMERICAN ISN'T A GERMAN.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—F. D. Willerton writes that we are fighting all Germans. I wonder if he ever gave one thought to the millions of loyal Americans of German extraction? Our family, for instance, had two of its members in the last war, and in this war one brother is in government service, one is enlisted in the marine corps, a nephew is in the army, and another brother is closing up his business preparatory to enlisting in the marines. I, like millions of other German people living here, am American born and therefore care nothing at all for Nazi ways and ideas. So can any one say that we are fighting all Germans?

DELIVERY OF BONDS.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Will some one in authority at the Chicago quartermaster corps depot advise me why an employé of the Q. M. C., after paying for a defense bond by the pay roll deduction method, has to wait 90 days after the last payment for delivery of the bond? Private concerns give their employés the bond a week or so after the last payment has been made. Is this just another case of army red tape?

WASHINGTON PAPER MANIA.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—If you want to really go for a ride on the Washington merry-go-round, just file an application for a necessity certificate, which is for the purpose of allowing depreciation over a five year period on defense facilities. I sent for the application and with it was a three or four page mimeographed form letter that was loaded with "whereases," "with respects," and references to subsections of evasive paragraphs. So I ignored it and made out the application as per printed instructions, and what a headache that was. The whole thing is a super-pain in the neck.

Since sending in this application I have had letters referring to it from eight different individuals in as many different departments—all of them asking for information that is practically impossible to furnish. Not all ask for the same information, but each one of them has a pet to appease. What is a poor guy to do when he is trying to deal with Washington? Just ride the merry-go-round, I suppose, and if you get too dizzy, fall off and forget all about it.

SCRAP, IF THEY WANT IT.

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 30.—I get a little tired reading about the exertions of those who are gathering scrap for steel production and urging citizens to coöperate. In the basement of my home in Evanston is between 500 and 1,000 pounds of scrap, including a discarded boiler and a radiator. It is too heavy for me to move. I have been trying for three months to get rid of it, but nobody will take it. In your paper of Aug. 31 I saw a notice to the effect that the street commissioner of Evanston would pick up such contributions. I wrote him the same day, but had no answer, and the scrap is still in my cellar, notwithstanding the fact that only last Saturday Evanston had another clean-up day in which citizens were told that the street commissioner would see that contributions too heavy to be handled would be moved. I hope some one interested will see this and do something about it. There must be many others who have had the same experience.

"A USELESS APPENDAGE."

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 1.—I sincerely enjoyed your editorial, "The Forgotten Man," on the plight of the small business man. Being one myself your comments hit home. Even a small retailer who has been reasonably successful in business for 30 years or so and who has gained some recognition in his own province welcomes a version of his own experience as expressed by some one else.

Last January, being urged by the office of the National Retail Grocers association, I made application for a job to the OPA. In March I received an acknowledgment, stating that when a vacancy occurred they would let me know. In May I again wrote them and received a similar reply. I take it, then, that the retired independent merchant does not fit into the OPA setup. Where, then, is the small business man to apply his talents? Apparently he is just a useless appendage for the duration.

JUDGMENT.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If a person lives in Illinois and then moves to another state [1] can he be held for a judgment which is outstanding against him in Illinois?

2. This judgment was obtained without notifying the party involved and while he was ill. The judgment is for $130 and costs.

3. This party signed a note and put up security and was told that is all he would lose.

4. Is the judgment legal since it was obtained three months after the 10 year limitation period?

D. F.

1. Yes, in the sense that by new court proceedings there a judgment could be obtained on the basis of the Illinois judgment.

2. This implies that it may have been a judgment by confession on a lease or note containing a judgment clause. If so, the debtor would have opportunity to present defenses if he acted diligently.

3. Which party?

4. As far as the facts stated are concerned, the judgment settles the amount that is owing. If there was a defense, such as the statute of limitations, that defense should have been presented. Nevertheless, your statement does not cover all of the possibilities, and we suggest that you have a personal interview with an attorney.

DR. H. A. POTTS, FAMOUS ORAL SURGEON, DIES

N. U. Professor Emeritus on Staff 34 Years.

Dr. Herbert Anthony Potts, a leader in American oral surgery, died yesterday in his home, 1241 Hinman avenue, Evanston. He was 69 years old.

Dr. Potts, who was a doctor of medicine as well as a doctor of dental science, was professor emeritus of oral surgery at the Northwestern university medical and dental schools. He retired in 1939 after 34 years of service at the university.

Medical and dental authorities said last night that he was one of the ablest men in his field Chicago has ever had and that he had done much to advance the science of oral surgery. His methods of repairing fractured jaws are widely used.

He was credited with introducing to Chicagoans the use of procaine for lessening the pain of dental extractions.

Dr. Potts was senior oral surgeon at St. Luke's hospital and former oral surgeon of Cook County hospital. He served as a major in the medical corps in the American expeditionary forces in World War I.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Anne Schreil Potts; a son, William Marshall Potts, and a daughter, Miss Suzanne Potts.

WHEATON FLYER KILLED IN CRASH; RITES TOMORROW

Funeral services for Lieut. Rudolph Edward Neubauer of Winfield, Du Page county, who was killed in the crash of an army pursuit plane in California, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 120 North Hale street, Wheaton. He was 22 years old, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Neubauer, and was a graduate of Wheaton High school.

Lieut. Neubauer had been reported missing since Aug. 25, when he and another pilot took up two planes for a practice flight from their base. During the flight the other pilot noticed that Neubauer no longer was following him, and he returned alone. A long hunt by ground and air searchers failed to locate the missing plane. Last Friday Neubauer's body was found in a small river. Nearby, in a lonely section, was found the wrecked plane.

The body will be returned home by Lieut. Raymond Klein of Wheaton, who enlisted with Neubauer in the air force a year ago.

KNOWS A BULL'S DISLIKES AND THAT'S ENOUGH

Deputy Sheriff Robert Jenkins of Lake county knew precisely what to do yesterday when he was sent out to reason with a bull that was posing as a traffic cop. He found the bull with the stop signal set against motorists from both directions in Skokie highway, four miles west of Zion.

Jenkins told Deputy Geno Palmeiri to arrest him. The bull chased Palmeiri down the road and got back in time to prevent traffic from moving.

Jenkins climbed the nearest fence and began waving a red handkerchief at the bull. It worked. The bull jumped the fence and traffic moved on. But Jenkins had to climb a tree. Palmeiri returned and stood outside the fence shooting into the air. The bull, becoming frightened, ran to the other end of the field.

Jenkins climbed down and accepted the congratulations of his partner.

FALSE TEETH
And True Love
(OR) HOW GERTRUDE GOT HER MAN
Although Miss Gertrude Gaines had planned
To wed within the year,
Her gay romance was nearly wrecked.
The reason? Lend an ear:
1. Her false teeth, scrub them as she might,
Got dingy, dull and dirty.
Twixt "Denture Breath" and ruined smile,
They made her "old" at thirty.
2. "Get POLIDENT!" her dentist said.
"Its no-brush, no-scrub action
Makes plates and bridges 'look like new'
Gives instant satisfaction."
3. So straightway Gert got POLIDENT.
Her wedding? Very nice!
THE MORAL: All who wear false teeth
Should take the same advice!
Cleans, Purifies Without Brushing
Do this every day: Add a little POLIDENT Powder to half a glass of water. Stir. Put in plate or bridge 10 to 15 minutes. Rinse, and it's ready to use.

SPEEDING AT 70 IN COUNTY COSTS TWO DRIVERS $50

Teeth were put into the unofficial state law yesterday against driving faster than the wartime speed of 35 miles an hour when Judge Edmund K. Jarecki of the County court fined two Elgin youths $25 and costs each for driving between 70 and 75 miles an hour.

The charge against them, however, was not speeding. It was reckless driving. This is the most convenient charge which state police can lodge against speeders until the state speed law is amended to make 35 miles the maximum speed.

Those fined were Douglas Mapes, 20 years old, 507 Morgan street, and Floyd A. Meyer, 19, of 550 Wilcox avenue, Elgin. They were seized Monday by state police on U. S. highway 20, in a no speed limit zone east of Elgin.

In the Traffic court of Judge John Gutknecht, 25 sailors and marines flanked the bench as an example to 200 young speeders, for whom a special court day was held. Several of the young speeders were fined. Most were sent to the county hospital to see injured victims of automobile accidents.

U. S. Buying British Gold to Appease Colonies; Mine Areas Here Bemoan WPB Shutdown

Vaults Are Full

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7.—All mining of gold in the United States is being halted to divert men and equipment to mines producing vital war metals such as copper and lead, yet the government is buying expensive mining equipment for Great Britain so that her South African mines can produce more gold to sell the United States.

That is the seemingly paradoxical situation described here today by fuming western senators who charged that closing the domestic gold mines will serve no useful purpose. They asserted that some 4,500 men, providing the means of livelihood for an estimated 20,000 persons, will be thrown out of work by the latest administration order.

Sen. Edwin C. Johnson [D., Colo.] said the western states senators had been informed by War Production board officials that gold production in British South Africa is being expanded constantly, month by month.

U. S. Sends Equipment.

Mining equipment, made of such strategic and scarce metals as chrome, tungsten, and other components of high alloy steels, and supplied by the United States to Britain thru the lend-lease program, is making this increased South African gold output possible, Sen. Johnson declared.

"We are taking almost the entire South African gold production," he said. "For it we are paying Britain $35 per ounce. Today's statement of the treasury department shows that the United States already has buried in its vaults over 22¾ billion dollars worth of gold, most of which came from abroad.

"Britain is employing some 400,000 men in its gold mining operations as compared with about 4,500 in this country. And we are paying Britain to mine this gold so that she 'can keep the natives happy.'

"Political Matter."

"When the western senators asked WPB officials why our gold mines should be closed and Britain's should be permitted to operate at our expense, we were told it was a political matter over which it had no control. They said it was a state department problem.

"According to WPB officials, the state department's explanation is that Britain wants to keep the South African mines operating to keep the natives happy. This also provides a means of giving Britain a dollar balance in this country to buy those materials not given her under the lend-lease program."

Latest figures on gold production showed that United States output in 1940 aggregated 4,106,000 ounces, having a total value of $143,710,000. When Alaskan and Philippine Island production is included, total production was 6,003,000 ounces.

Philippine Output Large.

The bureau of the mint showed in its annual report that the Philippine Islands produced 1,140,000 ounces of gold in 1940, ranking second only to California with a 1,444,000 ounces output. Alaska was the third largest United States producer, miners recovering 757,000 ounces.

Of the states producing gold, they rank in order of production behind California, as follows: South Dakota, 587,000 ounces; Nevada, 380,000; Colorado, 369,000; Utah, 352,000; Arizona, 299,000; Montana, 273,000; Idaho, 145,000; Oregon, 114,000; Washington, 84,000; New Mexico, 39,000, and others, 20,000.

The order to close the gold mines will be issued under the President's war powers, delegated to WPB in the order creating it. The order will be issued in a day or so, a WPB spokesman said. It will direct all gold mines to halt production at some date soon.

Canada Follows

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 7 (AP).—Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell's forecast in Toronto last night that "upwards of 10,000" gold miners will be transferred to base metal mines and other industries, coupled with official employment figures, indicated today that the government is aiming at a cut of more than one third in Canada's gold production.

Latest complete figures—for 1941—show 32,551 employés in the gold mining industry. It is believed that the present figure is slightly below the 1941 total.

Already the movement of men out of gold mines has begun. Mitchell described this as an "evolutionary movement toward the same goal" as that of the United States, which, it is reported, will halt gold production within a few days.

Almost the entire $200,000,000 annual production of Canadian gold mines goes to the United States.

Canadian Shares Slump.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 7 [Canadian Press].—Fear that Canada might follow the lead of the United States and close gold mines prompted fairly active selling on the stock exchange today and prices slumped to a new low for the last nine years. Individual losses ranged up to $2 in the senior list and some of the secondary issues were off 15 to 25 cents.

The need of workers in more essential industries than gold mining fostered selling sentiment. McIntyre was down $2 to its low for the year at $36, Dome weakened 75 cents to $13.25, Lake Shore was off 7 to $6.80 and medium price issues weakening 10 to 25 cents included Preston, Wright Hargraves, Teck Hughes, San Antonio, MacCleod Cockshutt, Pickle Crow, Kerr Addison, Malartic Gold Fields and others.

Gold Stocks Tumble.

New York, Oct. 7 [Special].—Prices of gold stocks tumbled here today on the heels of an announcement by the War Production board that an order soon would be issued barring further mining of gold in the United States. Homestake broke five points on heavy turnover at the opening of the market and recovered only fractionally later. Other issues were proportionately lower.

A week ago, when a report went thru the financial district that mining would be halted, gold shares sold off sharply. A few days later, when the order had not been issued, shorts covered and there was a moderate recovery. Last night the impending order finally became a reality and the selling followed.

Black Hills Blue

Lead, S. D., Oct. 7 [Special].—Dismay spread thru the gold mining area today as residents surveyed the effect on their economic life which will be caused by the closing of the entire northern Black Hills' backbone industry.

The great Homestake mine, largest on the continent, will be hardest hit by the War Production board's announcement yesterday that it will soon order all gold mining halted in the country. The purpose of the action is to make the miners and some equipment available to nonferrous metal mines, such as copper, for more vital war production.

J. L. Curran, chairman of the board of Lawrence county commissioners, said the shutdown will have a disastrous economic effect upon the county since more than 50 per cent of the county's tax income came from the mines.

Cuts Mining 88 Per Cent.

More than 2,300 men are employed directly in this vicinity's gold mines which expend $10,000,000 annually for pay rolls and supplies, in addition to taxes.

It was estimated that closing the gold mines will curtail South Dakota's mineral production 88 per cent. State Mine Inspector H. H. Steward recently announced preliminary estimates on the value of all minerals produced in the state showed 1941's total as $24,349,827, of which gold and silver accounted for $21,000,000. All silver mined in the Black Hills came out of gold mines.

About 20 of the 21 million dollars worth of gold and silver mined in the state came from the mammoth Homestake mine, which employs 2,100 of the 2,300 miners in this area.

Worked Continuously 65 Years.

The mine, which has been operating 24 hours a day for 65 years, is the economic backbone of the towns of Lead and Deadwood, "twin cities" of the northern Black Hills, whose total population is more than 11,000.

In addition to its main properties, the mine maintains a large lumber mill and mine timber plants at Spearfish, also in Lawrence county; operates a power plant at Kirk, south of Lead, and has a coal mine at Gillette, Wyo., to supply fuel for the power plant.

The mine has been in continuous operation since it was incorporated in 1877, the year after it was discovered. It has eaten away whole mountains in the hunt for gold and has absorbed dozens of other mines in this vicinity.

LABOR SHORTAGE PERILS '43 FARM FOOD PRODUCTION

Cultivation to Be Cut from 10 to 25 Pct.

BY GAIL COMPTON.

A survey of the farm labor situation in the middle west reveals the nation's good production next year is endangered because of an acute shortage of farm help. These are the facts:

1. Farmers and agriculture authorities predict a cut of from 10 to 25 per cent in next year's production as a result of the drain of skilled labor into the armed forces and high paying industries.

2. Taxed to the limit to harvest their bumper crops this season, the farmers now are planning to put fewer acres under cultivation next year. They will plant only what they can handle themselves.

Hundreds of Farms Sold.

3. Hundreds of farms are being sold and herds dispersed thruout the corn belt. Drafted or discouraged by the prospects of price ceilings and lack of labor, farmers are selling out now while they can still receive favorable prices.

4. A perfect growing season this year contributed largely to the record harvest. Authorities term it unlikely the farmers will see another such season, and for this reason a further cut in production may be expected.

5. The farmers are one of the most patriotic groups in America, and are eager to produce as much as they can. Given an adequate labor supply they promise to produce more food than the nation and our allies can consume.

Farmers interviewed during a trip of more than 2,000 miles thru the corn belt did not hesitate to say they had reached their peak of production this year. Good weather and what little help still remains enabled them to complete their bumper harvest, they said, and from now on they will only be able to produce less and less.

Few Can Afford Help.

Farm labor that has not been drafted or answered the lure of big money offered by the factories now is demanding such high wages that few farmers can afford help. Many hired hands are getting up to $80 a month with room and board.

To offset the lack of labor, many farmers are investing in expensive machinery, putting themselves in debt, in an effort to get as much work done as possible. They are pooling their equipment and labor, as never before, in order to get the job done.

Wives, daughters, and elderly farmers are in the harness working long hours every day. Agricultural experts state they fear a physical breakdown among the farmers as a result of overwork. Toiling from "kin 'till can't," a 15 hour day has become the rule on the farms.

Gasoline Rationing Problem.

Gasoline rationing and the shortage of rubber also threaten to hamper next year's production. Truck and fruit farmers who depend to a great extent upon migrant workers to handle the harvest estimate they will be able to get in only about 50 per cent of their crops next year.

Altho most draft boards have been fairly lenient in deferring farm workers, the deferments have been granted only until the present harvest is finished. After that, farm youths have been told, they will be called. This means the farmer will be left without help in the spring, when he starts the new crop season.

Authorities estimate that next year a million and a half persons will have to return to the farms to compensate for the numbers that have left. Unless this happens, they said, the farmers will not be able to match their 1942 production, let alone reach the government goals for next year, which are expected to be even higher.

INDICT GARDENER AS AID TO NAZIS LANDED BY 'SUBS'

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—A federal grand jury today returned an indictment charging treason against Helmut Leiner, 33 years old, a Queens gardener and German citizen. He is one of the five New Yorkers arrested for allegedly aiding eight Nazi saboteurs landed on the United States coast line last June by a submarine. Conviction under the indictment carries a possible death penalty.

Arraigned before Federal Judge John Bright, Leiner pleaded innocent and bail was fixed at $50,000 for trial on Oct. 13.

Leiner, the second of three alleged aides to be charged with treason, was born in Germany, came to the United States in 1929, and has been a member of the Nazi party since 1928, United States Attorney Mathias F. Correa said.

Today's indictment charged that Leiner aided Edward John Kerling and Werner Thiel, two of six Nazi spies executed after a court martial in Washington recently. Kerling and Thiel landed on the Florida coast.

TWO SEIZED IN GAMING RAID.

Leon McDonald, 61 years old, and Sam Wolfe, 53, were arrested yesterday by a squad from the police commissioner's office in a gambling raid in the rear of a cigar store at 2206 Madison street.

SCRAP SHORTAGE MEANS TRAGEDY TO GARY CITIZENS

20 Plants Join Drive to Collect Metal.

Scrap Pouring In

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—Donald Nelson, chairman of the War Production board, tonight said the American people were responding admirably to the current drive to collect metal scrap and urged patience with local boards and collectors in getting the material to processing channels. "Reports indicate that patriotic Americans are responding admirably to the appeal by the newspapers to give scrap metal immediately in order that our steel mills may operate at capacity," Nelson said. "If trade channels cannot immediately buy and start processing the victory stock piles the government will do so, because all of the material is urgently needed."

Gary, Ind., knows what a scrap shortage means, its industrial leaders agreed yesterday.

It means cold furnaces, closed down because scrap iron and steel are not available. It means no bread and butter for thousands of Gary families whose breadwinners work in the biggest steel mill in the world. It means fewer guns, tanks, airplanes, and ships for American boys fighting the war.

In these terms, 20 Gary industrialists sat in a room at the Carnegie Illinois Steel corporation and talked of the coming tragedy this winter if the mills cannot stock a two months' reserve of iron and steel scrap by Dec. 1.

Scrap Pile Dwindling.

Steve M. Jenks, red haired, youthful general superintendent of the Gary works, spoke tersely:

"In the scrap yard back there [waving toward a railroad siding overshadowed by the structure of a traveling crane] we have only one-twentieth of the supply we had last year.

"The pile is only a few feet high. Last year it reached to the first beam, at least 20 feet high. That's what we mean when we talk about scrap shortages."

Harvey T. Hill, regional chief of the War Production board's industrial salvage section, said that Gary's steel is helping to win the war but that it can't produce steel without scrap.

"If we do not accumulate adequate reserves of scrap in the next 60 days we may see the mills caught in the unfortunate predicament of having to let their furnaces grow cold while waiting for scrap," Hill said.

Seek Idle, Old Machines.

The industrialists gathered at the request of Jay T. Osler, board chairman of the Continental Roll and Steel Foundry company and industrial salvage chairman for Lake county, Ind. The meeting was arranged to organize the industrial salvage drive in Gary as part of the nation-wide WPB salvage program to dig up all idle and obsolete machinery and equipment from industrial plants.

"Gary has a challenge to meet as the steel center of the region," Hill said. "Gary should set the pattern for the entire region to follow. Industry must provide 70 per cent of all the scrap needed."

Hill said the current scrap supply in Chicago district mills ranges from almost two weeks to a six weeks' reserve. He said the flow of scrap to the mills must be accelerated.

Jenks credited the newspaper campaign on behalf of the scrap drive as a "most effective weapon in winning the war." Evidence that the newspapers are inspiring scrap collections came from John Nuveen Jr., regional WPB salvage chief.

Nuveen said that Chicago scrap dealers are processing 4,000 tons of scrap a day, compared with a daily average of 3,000 tons at the end of August.

In the school salvage campaign, Mount Greenview elementary school, 10841 South Homan avenue, led with a collection of 60,000 pounds. The public high school division was headed by Calumet, 8131 South May street, which collected 41,400 pounds.

In the Catholic school campaign the leader was the St. Thomas Aquinas school, 116 North Leclaire avenue, which had gathered four large mounds of scrap in its yard.

Employés in the general purchasing offices of the Chicago and North Western railroad have recovered more than 100 pounds of miscellaneous scrap from desk drawers and tops, E. A. Clifford, general purchasing agent, said.

Salesmen to Seek Metal.

Two hundred steel company salesmen in Chicago will organize a drive to move dormant industrial equipment into scrap channels, L. C. Reed, Chicago district sales manager of the Inland Steel company, said.

The gravity of the scrap shortage was stressed by Wilfred Sykes, president of Inland Steel, in a report to the newspaper scrap campaign. He said that Inland was forced to close two furnaces during September because of the lack of scrap.

Standard Oil Company of Indiana reported that scrap collection in its plants produced 7,500 tons of scrap metal in the first seven months of 1942. The Whiting plant accounted for 5,000 tons of the total.

Divorce Revealed

[Maurice Seymour Photo.]

MRS. WILLIAM DALE BOST.

Mrs. William Dale Bost, 29 years old, wife of the president of the Orange Crush company and the Bost Toothpaste company of Indianapolis, Ind., yesterday obtained a divorce from him in the Chicago Heights courtroom of Judge John J. Wallace.

Mrs. Bost charged cruelty, citing several instances in which she said her 50 year old husband twisted her arm. They eloped to Waukegan for a secret marriage in 1935 and separated a month ago. She is now living at 2130 Lincoln Park West.

Bost said that the court approved a $200 monthly alimony and a private property settlement which he estimated at $50,000.

Mrs. Bost, the former Marguerite Parsons, made her singing debut in a Grant park concert last summer after studying under Rosa Raisa, Metropolitan Opera company star.

COURTNEY CALLS FOR DR. GECHT'S RETURN TO STATE

Speedy action was hoped for last night by the state's attorney's office following the sending of a telegram to Gov. C. L. Olson of California demanding the immediate removal of Dr. Max Gecht, Los Angeles sanitarium operator, to Chicago on abortion charges.

The demand reopened a battle pending between Illinois and California since May. First the governor held there was no evidence that Dr. Gecht was in Chicago at the time indictments charged that he and nine others had conspired to commit abortion. Then the governor reversed himself. He said he would allow extradition. But nothing was done.

Olson is said to be swayed by two considerations: Pleas by Gecht that he is ill, and California's insistence that an assistant state's attorney be sent from Chicago to handle the case. Policeman Ralph Anderson of Courtney's staff is in California, ready to act for the prosecutor. He reported that Dr. Gecht is well enough to drive an automobile.

200 NORTH MICHIGAN AVENUE

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Dear Boss:

"Yesterday you asked me to get Mr. Hale on the phone. Now, Mr. Hale is a nice guy. I like him. You like him. And the sales manager likes him just plenty since that last order which rocked the office like a torpedo.

"Agreed then—we all like Mr. Hale. But what do we do? I call the number, get his secretary, pull him out of a meeting to speak with you . . . and where . . . WHERE are you? You've just stepped out of the office. So sorry . . . my mistake. Five minutes later [at your request] I again call Mr. Hale. And you . . . you are busy on another wire! He waits, none too amiably, while I chirp hopefully that you'll be 'thru in a minute.' I'm embarrassed. He's annoyed. He reminds me that he is a busy man and NOT to call him again until you are ready to talk. With that, he hangs up.

"Later in the morning you ask me to call Mr. Williams. And blessed if we don't go thru the whole routine again! By noon I'm in that 'O why does everything happen to me?' state of mind and dash out for a bite of lunch and a bit of indigestion.

"So now, I'm asking you, isn't there some way to overcome this 'You first, my dear Alphonso' tangle of telephone calls? Isn't it presumable that your business associates regard their time as being fully as valuable as yours? Isn't it poor business to keep a good customer waiting when obviously your purpose is to save YOUR time? And isn't it tough on . . . THE GIRL WHO ANSWERS THE BUZZER?"

The Backward Glance.

Two old prints of Chicago's longest established business college, founded five years before the Civil war and 15 years before the invention of the typewriter, arrived in the morning mail. A different business world they portray, especially "State Street, Looking South from Randolph." A long skirted pair, in pretty dismay, turn back from the mad race of the horsecars, which, like Whirlaway at the finish, dash past the old Music hall.

More intrepid souls brave the traffic while a few loiterers hang around the corner eying elegant carriages at the curb. But it is an advertisment of the business college which entrances with its list of subjects including "elocution" and its optimistic assurance: "While attending this institution there is little opportunity for going astray. . . ."

White Collar Citation.

She doesn't go to an office because she's seen some 70 summers. Every day, however, she contributes her share to the morale of the stenographers . . . and clerks . . . and salesgirls . . . and beauty operators who pass the corner of Belmont and Kostner avenues. Each morning, at sunrise, Mrs. Julia Godfraiux hoists the American flag and each evening, at sunset, she lowers it. By the time loop bound workers set forth to their jobs the flag is flying . . . has been flying, in fact, since dawn as eloquent evidence of one woman's part in the war.

Homemaker.

Several suggestions have been tendered that the proper substitute for the word "housewife" is "homemaker." "This innocent bystander," writes a "hapless male," "has never liked the sound of 'housewife' or the even more ugly 'hausfrau.' The woman in the home makes it a home in every true sense of the word."

Tribute Is Paid to Superintendent of Infant Welfare

The woman's auxiliary of the Infant Welfare society of Chicago gave a surprise luncheon yesterday at the Arts club for Miss Sara B. Place to commemorate her 25 years of service as superintendent of the society. After luncheon the woman's auxiliary presented to Miss Place a silver tray, and Philip D. Armour dropped in to present a silver pitcher in the name of the board of directors.

Wallace, formerly of Middletown, N. Y.

Plans to Form United Church Are Announced

Plans for the formation of the United Church of America on lines of the United Church of Canada were made public yesterday afternoon by the Rev. Dr. Louis W. Goebel, 77 West Washington street, president of the Evangelical and Reformed Church of America. The immediate proposal is the merger of the Evangelical and Reformed churches with the Congregational-Christian churches of the country.

Dr. Goebel and the Rev. Dr. William Pauk of Chicago Theological seminary, were the two Chicago members of a joint committee of the two denominations, which met late last month in Columbus, O. The joint committee statement, made public by Dr. Goebel, pointed to constitutional requirements in each church before the merger would be completed, and advocated a "get acquainted" period for the two denominations.

"The new church is to combine the types of government of the two denominations in such a way as to maintain all essential rights and responsibilities held by the churches and ministers under the separate organizations," the statement read.

"The name suggested for the new denomination is the United Church of America, which parallels that of the United Church of Canada. It would be understood that local names of churches would be preserved in many places. The name of the national body probably would be one that has been in use by both groups—synod.

The statement explained that synod has been used by Congregational-Christian churches since the landing of the Mayflower, and among Evangelical and Reformed churches the word synod has been used since the denomination was founded in this country 250 years ago. The full name of the national body was given as "The General Synod of the United Church of America."

The Congregational-Christian churches have 1,049,575 members and the Evangelical and Reformed churches have 658,571 members. Both denominations were formed from mergers in the last decade.

Another proposed merger of denominations is expected to advance a step tonight as the 33d quadrennial sessions of the general conference of the Evangelical church in Naperville. The conference program calls for discussions of basis for union of the Evangelical church with the Church of the United Brethren in Christ. The Evangelical church, formerly known as the Evangelical association and not to be confused with the former Evangelical church which merged in 1934 with Reformed churches, follows Methodism in polity and doctrine. The Evangelical and Reformed churches more nearly resemble Presbyterian polity and doctrine.

The United Brethren church also follows general Methodist polity, but was founded in 1800 on an evangelistic movement begun by a minister of the Reformed church. The United Brethren has nearly 500,000 members; the Evangelical about a quarter of a million.

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

Pvt. 1st Class James Langan is showing three women pioneers of the Chanute field schools of the army air forces technical training command how to pack parachute shroud lines. Soon to be graduated as instructors, the students are (left to right) Catherine Jeter of Urbana, Mrs. Lorayne Kulik of Parkston, S. D., and Ann Thilmony of Paxton, Ill.

[The Women in War Work department reports on women's activities in war and defense work and answers questions of women wishing to take part in these activities.]

Here's good news for those women who are distinctly airminded as far as in engaging in war work is concerned, and who have not found the niche into which they could fit.

The first women—five of them—to train as instructors at Chanute Field, Ill., are now on duty with the parachute rigging and teletype divisions as part of a program of such training thruout the army air forces' technical training command.

Three of these women will become expert in the care, inspection, and packing of parachutes, as well as the repair of flight clothing and accessories. The other two are studying the maintenance and setting up of teletype communication systems and machines. On graduation all are expected to become instructors, to teach new phases of their new fields to soldier students.

Selection of women for instructor jobs is part of a war department plan to make greater use of women in jobs for which they can qualify and at the same time release men for combat service.

Applicants, who obtain their positions thru the Civil Service commission, must have been graduated from a standard four year high school course or its equivalent, and possess further practical experience, depending on the course sought.

Women are expected to be taken into courses as student instructors in basic machine shop, sheet metal, electrical, Link trainer, vocational training, carburetion, welding, weather forecasting schools—in fact into any of the army air forces' technical training command schools for which they can show the proper qualifications and in which the work is not too heavy.

Those who desire to apply for admission to the courses are asked to write to the public relations office, Chanute Field, Ill.

There has been gratifying response to this week's announcement by Northwestern university of an enlarged program of training men and women in vital war industry jobs, as well as in those requiring only one basic skill.

More than triple the former number of women—at least 200—are to be admitted to this new tuition free group of courses, to be held as evening classes at the technological institute on the Evanston campus. Of particular interest to women are courses in engineering and machine drafting, production processes, precision gauging and inspection, radio, and metallurgy.

Graduation from high school, with two years' work in mathematics is a minimum prerequisite for all the courses, and the more advanced ones require in addition some preliminary college training. No college credit as such is given, but a certificate is awarded for satisfactory completion of a course.

Registrations are being held from 7:30 to 9 o'clock tonight and tomorrow night, and by appointment at other periods. For further information, call University 1900, extension 261, or write the Engineering, Science, and Management War Training division [ESMWT], room 276 of the technological institute.

Everything points to a successful evening at a dinner and game party being given tomorrow night at the Lake Shore club, under the sponsorship of Bundles for America. Moneys raised at the benefit will go toward providing materials to keep the organization's workrooms and various units going at full tilt. Activities of the members include knitting—there is a great demand for warm garments right now—salvaging materials to be made into useful garments, making layettes and packing kits.

Among those who've made reservations for the party are Lieut. Comm. Thomas White, Capt. George L. Hudson, Mrs. James H. Channon, Mrs. Ruth Jones Jarratt, Mr. and Mrs. William De Witt, Mrs. Charles D. Jenks, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Rasmussen, Mr. and Mrs. George Hartford, and Mr. and Mrs. William Brewster. Skeets Gallagher and Buddy Ebsen of the "Good Night Ladies" cast, also will be present, accompanied by their wives.

Opportunities for volunteer services in the Red Cross, American Women's Voluntary Services, Association for Family Living, the Chicago Service Men's center, and the OCD were described by leaders in each group at a luncheon meeting yesterday at the Army-Navy club for Chicagoland community chairmen helping to organize the Association of Army Wives.

The association is for wives and mothers of service men. Mrs. Carter Collins, organizer of the group, said that even prospective wives would be eligible. The entire aim of the association, with branches in several cities, is to help keep up morale at home by helping women to find companionship with other wives and mothers of service men. The association also seeks to help women left alone with family problems or suddenly transplanted into new communities.

BY CECIL SMITH.

"Heaven Can Wait," which opened the season of the Actors' Company of Chicago last evening, is another play in which an author had a good basic idea, but needed a shrewd collaborator to help him make something of it.

When this script was turned into a moving picture, "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," it must have profited by Hollywood's collaboration, for the picture [which I did not see, and therefore cannot compare with the play] won an award. The play, by contrast, quickly loses both plot and character interest, and bogs down so drearily in an endlessly repetitious second act that the trick finish of the third act comes along, too late to save a cause already lost.

The basic idea, as I have said, is clever. Mr. Jordan, whose prototype is to be found in "Outward Bound," is an affable angel of death, attired in modern business clothes. One of his messengers makes the mistake of snatching a young pugilist away from earth before he is dead.

Since the pugilist's manager has had the body cremated, the soul cannot return to its own body. Instead the soul takes possession of the body of a wealthy financier, just murdered by his wife.

You can see how contradictory an arrangement it becomes, with a New Jersey pug's mentality and interests suddenly taking the outward aspect of a sophisticated, double dealing Wall streeter. But the author, having created a situation of very amusing stripe, can think of nothing to do with it. The characters shout and rant, and repeat the same misunderstandings numberless times, and the play dies a thousand deaths.

It is unfortunate that Minnie Galatzer has devoted her directional gifts to a stillborn undertaking, but I daresay good comedies are hard to find; certainly the record of the early Broadway season would substantiate that assumption.

Perhaps an inferior play inspired an inferior performance. Sam Siegel, punchy of speech and picturesque of movement, makes an excellent figure of the prize fighter, and Arthur Peterson's quiet style does justice to the part of Mr. Jordan. The rest of the acting is either lifeless or, worse, forced and hysterical in its relentless attempt to batter laughs out of the cold corpse of the play.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. J. Katzbeck, 1533 Diversey parkway.]

THE QUESTION.

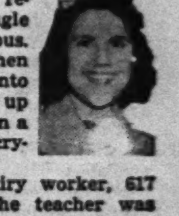
What is the most unselfish act you have witnessed between children?

WHERE ASKED.

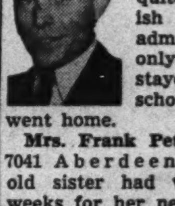
Garrick theater lobby.

THE ANSWERS.

Edith Heller, student, 5025 Woodlawn avenue—One boy on the corner lot baseball team accidentally broke a big window. He hated to face the consequences because it was the second time it had happened. Another boy, who was better off financially, said he would shoulder the blame for it.



Patsy Woolf, student, 5000 East End avenue—The small boy had waited almost a half hour for another passenger to relinquish that high single front seat on the bus. He was delighted when he finally climbed into it, but he gave it up like a little man when a smaller boy started crying for it.



Curtis Stocker, dairy worker, 617 Drummond place—The teacher was going to punish three boys for throwing paper wads. I thought it was quite noble and unselfish of one of them to admit that he was the only guilty one. He stayed an hour after school while the others went home.

Mrs. Frank Peterson, homemaker, 7041 Aberdeen street—My 9 year old sister had waited weeks for her new tricycle to be delivered and was eager for that first ride. I could hardly believe it when she offered to let her much younger cousin ride first when the latter cried to do so.

Mrs. M. E. Hillison, housewife, Windermere East hotel—When my daughter was very young I asked her what she would like for Christmas. She said she wouldn't want one thing herself if I would just give each of the 10 orphan girls in her class a big red hair ribbon just like hers.

Bertha Vandeburgt, Little Chute, Wis.—My brother spent many hours carving a wooden model train and was very proud of it. One of his classmates asked if he could use it for an exhibit with his book report. I thought it was mighty generous of my brother to let him have it.

Rummage Sale Season Is Here; First One Today

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE rummage sale season has arrived and organizations on all sides are making arrangements for sales in the city and suburbs. The North Side Junior center of the Infant Welfare society had its first meeting at the home of its president, Mrs. Fitzmorris Brittingham, Tuesday, and the most important business was a discussion on cancelling or continuing its annual fall sale. It was decided to repeat the sale this year, and the date was set for Nov. 16.

The center's ranks are being depleted this fall. One member, Mrs. Frank E. Pierce Jr., will be leaving Chicago soon as her husband has been commissioned a lieutenant [j.g.] in the naval reserve and is training at Princeton university. Mrs. Pierce is with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Pierce, in their new Walton place apartment, until she goes to Grand Rapids to join her young sons, who are with their maternal grandparents. Dr. and Mrs. Pierce's younger son has been commissioned a lieutenant in the army.

Juniors Are Losing Aid of Several of Their Members.

Mrs. Edmond M. Sullivan will be missing from North Side Juniors' activities this fall, too, for she has sold her Winnetka home and will be departing shortly with her little girls to join Lieut. Sullivan, U. S. N. R., in Oregon. Mrs. Ross J. Beatty Jr. is giving up her membership as she has not been able to contribute much time since she moved to Wayne. Mrs. William P. Hunt probably will not be able to do much work this winter, either, for Mr. Hunt will continue his convalescence from a long illness at their Lake Geneva home, where they will remain for the first part of the winter at least. Their elder son is attending school there. Encouraging news is told of another member, Mrs. Denis E. Sullivan Jr., who has recovered sufficiently to take a house in Saranac, N. Y. She has her children, Wrigley and Carlisle, with her. Mr. Sullivan gave up their apartment and is at the Ambassador, with frequent visits to Saranac.

Infant Welfare Juniors Holding Rummage Sale.

The corner of Davis street and Maple avenue in Evanston will be the destination of bargain hunters today for the Junior auxiliary of the Evanston Infant Welfare society is holding a rummage sale there, opening at 8:30 o'clock. Members of the auxiliary have been busy for weeks gathering good used clothes and home furnishings, and are satisfied they have as good and large a stock as ever.

The last of the merchandise was added on last night at an open house from 7:30 to 10:30 o'clock at the shop, when husbands of members and friends brought bundles of merchandise. Mrs. Charles K. Hunter is general chairman of the sale.

The annual fall rummage sale of the woman's board of Grant hospital will be held next Thursday at the nurses' home, in Webster avenue. Mrs. J. Otto Stoll and Mrs. W. Dennison Dunning are co-chairmen.

Members of the Kenilworth center of the Infant Welfare society have been collecting rummage all summer for the center's sale, to be held on Oct. 19, 20, and 21 at 1518 Howard street.

Miss Priscilla Blackett and Freeman Wood, who are secretary and honorary huntsman of the Longmeadow Hounds, and other members of the hunt will be out in full force on Sunday for the organization's annual hunter trials to be held near the kennels in Lee road west of Winnetka. Proceeds of the day long event will go to the British War Relief society. A feature of the afternoon will be an exhibition run of the Longmeadow hounds at 2:30 o'clock.

Thru the Looking Glass

The red haired beauty who fancies a lipstick not too glaringly yellow or orange is going to be pleased about a new shade created especially for her. It's called "chestnut" and is something of an achievement.

This shade manages to be a lovely, full-blooded kind of red, warm and smart, with nuances of the subtle shading required by the woman with auburn or distinctly red hair. Such women can't use the lip rouge that has decided blue notes, but a great many of them find the blatantly orange shades difficult to wear. And of course it's true that the yellow tones aren't nearly so fashionable as they were some time back.

There is so little yellow in this you're barely conscious of it, but on the lips it is strikingly successful with the skin tones and hair and lash coloring of the red haired. It's dark enough in key to be softening, where the obviously yellow notes often have exactly the opposite effect.

It's as beautiful in texture as it is in color, made by an interesting formula that achieves creaminess without smeariness, if you know what we mean. It wears well, too, and the color remains true.

The case has extremely simple lines—just a black metal sheath on a gold base. Virtually everything about this stick is distinguished and of excellent quality.

The color deserves special praise, we think. The red haired have their makeup problems, as we know, and aren't catered to as much as they deserve to be.

Others inducted were Mrs. Agnes Mac Meekin, Chicago, Areme chapter, associate grand matron; Alex Ruxton, Legion chapter, Chicago, associate grand patron; Mrs. Ethel Breedlove, Arcolo, grand conductress; Mrs. Johanna Thompson, Majestic chapter, Chicago, associate grand conductress; Mrs. Grace Newhaus, Woodlawn chapter, Chicago, grand secretary, and Mrs. Lena Pennington, Queen Esther chapter, Chicago, grand treasurer, all of whom become officers by election.

Inducted to appointive offices were Mrs. Anna Woldt, grand marshal; Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, grand chaplain; Mrs. Edna Carlson, grand organist; Mrs. Vivian Hillis, grand Adah; Mrs. Clara Yorkey, grand Ruth; Mrs. Lillian Jackson, grand Esther; Mrs. Anna Weber, grand Martha; Mrs. Pearl Smith, grand Electa; Mrs. Emily Hardie, grand warder, and Mrs. Olga Johnson, grand sentinel.

War service reports submitted to the convention disclosed that 9,774 Eastern Star women in Illinois were enrolled as Red Cross workers, the largest number representing any single organization in the state. They already have made 100,000 articles.

Funds were voted for the purchase of a station wagon to be used by Mrs. Bertha Eagle, director of Red Cross work, to transport supplies in the Chicago area. Thruout the state there are 2,500 Eastern Star members selling bonds and stamps in theaters. Special recognition was given Mrs. Genevieve Richards of North Shore chapter, the "champion," who alone has sold $1,000,000 worth.

Her home chapter is holding a large reception in compliment to Mrs. Gielow at 8 o'clock tonight in the Rogers Park Masonic temple, 1716 Lunt avenue, and tomorrow night in Rockford Mr. Johnson will be honored by his chapter, Forest City, at a reception in the Masonic cathedral.

Front VIEWS and PROFILES

BY MARCIA WINN

"I Do . . . I Do . . . and I Will."

The telephone rang, and the husky voice of an Irishman began to flow:

"You know what I mean when I say he was a Polack? . . . Well, here is something. Here is a Polack to write a picture of. He made something of the steel mill. He's the only man who could do everything they wanted him to do. 'I do. I do. And I will.' That's all he ever said when they asked him to do something.

"If you ever knew a roller, you knew him. Of course, I'm only a switchman, but I can still say that. He was 6 foot 4, and he weighed 200. Just a tall, good Polack, so good he didn't owe the corner saloon a nickel. Know what I mean?

"Just picture this mill. You start it and you go on and you get a little bigger, pretty soon so big you throw all your scrap in the lake. And then comes a war and you have to get your scrap out of the lake, and you need a man to show you how. That's where this Polack came in. He showed them how. They could ask him anything, and he'd say, 'I do. I do. I will.'

"He kept the mill going. At the mill we always told him that. We'd tell him, 'When you die, the mill dies.' But they fired him 30 days before that. See what I mean? He died. He died this afternoon.

"They fired him, and he went home to his basement. He was a single man, and he lived all alone. He went home and he sat. No job. No job. Too old. No job. He don't do nothing. He was 6 foot 4, and he weighed 200, and there was nothing wrong with him to make him die except a broken heart.

"It was 30 days ago they fired him. He didn't know nothing in the books. He just knew the mill and a bottle of whisky and a cake. A good Polack. See what I mean? So they told him he was too old. 'I do. I do. I will." That was ever his story at all times. . . . This is war, and he don't do nothing, and his heart broke and he died. That is a picture for you. That is something to write."

The Tables Turn.

With monotonous regularity the mail orderly for the medical battalion at Camp Robinson [Ark.] called the name of Pvt. Walter B. Moore every day for a week. After the 90th letter, he made inquiry into the background of this popular private. He found he had been a postman in Clover, S. C.

Ermine Thru the Years.

Operantics, the new weekly brochure of the Chicago Opera company, is out. From it we glean that 50 years ago feminine operagoers wore tiaras, stomachers, and ermine with its tail on; that 25 years ago [1917] they wore simple dresses of navy blue serge, sables and short necklaces of pearls; and that this year ermine, if worn at all, will have no tail, and there won't be a single "perfect 48" in chorus or cast.

Confusion Dept.

From Peter Tuesday, now a radio technician at Great Lakes, comes a tale of Sunday church services at the naval training station. All men are required to go. Breakfast is at 7:40 as usual, and church services are at 9 a. m. However, the men must fall in for church at 8:15. This 45 minute wait has caused grumbling comment, one sailor finally crying, "They're training us for hell, and rushing us off to heaven."

Engagements

At a tea and dinner party recently in their home in St. Louis, Mr. and Mrs. Con Curran announced the engagement of their daughter, Clare, to William Harrison Coulter, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Coulter of Oak Park. Mr. Coulter was graduated from the school of engineering at Northwestern university.

Mrs. Charles D. Helle of Oak Park announces the engagement of her daughter, Helen, to Corp. William W. Raymond, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Raymond of Oak Park. Miss Helle attended the University of Chicago. Corp. Raymond, who studied at Denison university, now is stationed at Fort Brady, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Mrs. Roosevelt Sees Child Care as War Problem

Rising employment of women in industry has created a problem of community responsibility for children, medical services, and housing which only now is being met, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President, told reporters here yesterday on a stop-off air line trip from Seattle, Wash., to New York.

"Management and labor of the country are at last getting together to enable an increasing number of women o take their place in industry," she said. "Women definitely have made good in the various jobs given them and now the plants are crying for two to three times as many women as they already have. This means that nursery schools, day schools, community housekeepers, community laundrys, medical services, and restaurants must be provided. We should have looked ahead and prepared for it six months earlier than we did but I'm happy to say, however, that we are at last beginning to get such institutions organized."

Mrs. Roosevelt arrived abroad a United Air Lines plane from Seattle, where she visited her daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger, and inspected army and navy hospitals.

Milwaukee Painter Wins Australian Art Award

MELBOURNE, Australia, Oct. 7 (AP).—Sergt. F. A. Furumo, United States army, a former lithographer with a commercial art firm in Milwaukee, has been awarded first prize in a student club's competition at the National Gallery Art school here. Furumo, who is 22, exhibited a water color of trees throwing dappled shadows on a marquee.

Girl Should Save Sister from a "Heel"

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I'm desperately in love with a 'heel' of the worst sort. What do you think of a man who dated me once a week for one year, who made love to me every time we met and who gave me hope; and then told me I wasn't his type and that no girl would ever have priority rights on his heart? He was keeping that immune. He even tried to argue me into running away with him without benefit of clergy, which naturally I refused to do.

"Then, thru a strange coincidence I found out that he was married all the time and has a couple of children.

"What I suffered was bad enough but here's the really terrible part of my story. Recently he met my younger sister and asked to date her. She asked him: 'What about my sister?' He said: 'It was you I was hoping to see all of the time. You're my type. Your sister isn't.' Because he is so damnably attractive and can get any girl he sets out to get, she is falling for his line."

She's a younger sister and, no matter how she may act, you must feel some responsibility about her. You wouldn't be writing us if you didn't feel so. If she refuses to believe the man is married, can't you produce proof? In an extremity, you could urge the wife to threaten your sister by letter that she'd better discontinue seeing the man.

Looking at Hollywood . . . . By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 7.—Warners' would like to send a camera crew to Ethiopia to photograph Emperor Haile Selassie, show him delivering the famous speech he made at Geneva when Italy invaded his country. It's one of the greatest pleas for justice and freedom ever made, and had nations paused to listen, the face of the globe would be different today. The scene is wanted for "Mission to Moscow." I saw Selassie many times in London in 1936. He's a great, distinguished gentleman. I was in the house of parliament when Lloyd George defended Selassie for more than an hour, but Eden and MacDonald wouldn't listen. Baldwin wasn't there that day. It was one of the most dramatic scenes I've ever witnessed. It was amusing, too, watching Lady Astor. She tried to get in her 2 cents' worth, but there were so many other speakers, her voice never was heard. . . . Would that Lloyd George were half his age today.

Haile Selassie.

Looking Ahead.

Hedy Lamarr is taking those singing and dancing lessons because she's hoping to do a comedy opposite Bob Hope. She wants to prove she can make people laugh, too, and thinks Bob can turn the trick. That's sound thinking, Hedy. . . . Looks as tho Pat Dane retired Cedric Gibbons' topaz. She's wearing a larger stone from Maj. Litvak, which may mean wedding bells. Pat's grown into a beautiful girl. I'd never know her for the same person Rudy Vallee introduced to me at Lucey's only two years ago. . . . Guess Lynn Bari was right when she said that, as a husband, Walter Kane was a better agent. She has an important part with Alice Faye and John Payne in "Hello, Frisco, Hello."

No Hero at Home.

When Albert Dekker came home and told his family he was playing the romantic lead in "Buckskin Frontier," one of his children said to the other: "See? I told you all the good looking men were in the army." . . . Paulette Goddard's only been gone a month, but we certainly miss her. Not only is she good for a laugh a day, but she's the most generous star. She has no picture scheduled until November. . . . Bob Preston and Betty Jane Hughes have their work cut out for them in "Salute for Three." . . . Claudette Colbert's ideas have been written into the script in "China Skies" and the picture will roll next month if she can take her arm out of a sling. She's still suffering from neuritis.

With Music.

Roy Rogers will present Mayor La Guardia with a pair of silver spurs when he goes to New York for the rodeo, so the mayor can "jingle, jangle, jingle" when he attempts to ride herd over his opponents and the press. . . . Betty Grable and George Montgomery are too young to have seen the old Henderson bar at Coney Island, but the one at the studio for the picture of that name is an exact replica—bar 100 feet long, loaded with hams, bologna, cheese, and pickles—all free.

Wise for Her Years.

Brenda Marshall gives out some good advice about that final farewell to your service man, for the benefit of other "duration widows" like herself. "When he calls up from the station, saying he's off to an unknown destination," says Brenda, "don't take up time saying how you'll miss him—he knows it. Don't make him promise to write daily. If he loves you, he'll write when he can. Don't wave the flag. He's going out to fight or die for it. And don't, above all, cry until after he's hung up. That's not cricket. Let him go away feeling he's still part of the household. Whisper little intimate details of family life. And at the end, you might tell him you love him. He knows it, but one never gets tired hearing it from the right person."

Unable to Hike.

Ingrid Bergman had a couple of days off, so she took a hike to Arrowhead. Every passing motorist wanted to pick her up. Finally an old lady stopped her car and said, "You poor child! You look lost." "But I'm not," replied Ingrid. "I just want to walk." "Well, it's not safe for anybody so young to walk alone on this mountain road." And I'll be darned if she didn't insist upon taking Ingrid home. . . . Dottie Lamour took her mother to Johns Hopkins for a medical examination. . . . A sweet young thing approached John Garfield on "Air Force" set, saw his grease-streaked face, and said, "My! Your makeup is incredible!" "So is yours, lady, so is yours!"

Word to the Wise.

A warning for those players who appear in public when they're "hung over": If you must "hang," do it behind closed doors. One made an entrance at the Beverly Wilshire the other day, and a guest, who has been one of his most ardent fans, writes of her disappointment. Says, "Please, Miss Hopper, tell our favorites to mind their p's and q's when they're in public places." . . . Some months ago Virginia Van Upp started reducing. She's thin as a whippet so now that she's ended a nine years writing contract at Paramount, she'll finish a dress designing course she started 15 years ago. "'Cause now," says she, "I can wear clothes again." . . . I wonder what former Vice President Charles G. Dawes will think of Tommy Dorsey's swing arrangement of his song "Melody in A" for "Dubarry" . . . . Tony Sacco, who used to play at Ciro's, is now Private Tony, of Fort McClellan, Alabama. He's written a song called "We're the Boys from Company A." It's good, too.

Santa Barbara, Cal., Oct. 7 (AP).—Arline Judge, film actress, took Capt. James R. Addams of the British royal air force as her third husband today, shortly after a constable all but trailed her to the altar to serve her with a summons in New York rent litigation. The ceremony took place at the nearby Montecito home of a friend, Thomas R. Joyce Jr., with Peace Justice Lawrence Parma officiating. The suit charged Miss Judge is $1,636 in arrears in rent on an apartment at 875 5th avenue, New York. Domestically grown and prepared spices and seasonings are replacing the ones we imported previous to the war. We still have a few sources of foreign grown spices, such as Central and South America and the West Indies, but we're now growing as many of our own spices as will flourish in the more tropical climates of the United States.

Chili powder, a blend of chili pepper and other spices, is finding its way into other foods than those of Mexican origin these days. California now produces large supplies of chili powder, and while the west coast is the largest user of this seasoning, chili flavored dishes are becoming increasingly popular in other parts of the country.

Most chili powders contain, besides the ground chili peppers, garlic, oregano and cumin seed. Some chili powders are very hot, others are milder.

It isn't often we want a dish as highly seasoned as chili con carne, but there are many milder flavored foods to which a little chili powder can give zest. Scrambled eggs, omelets, eggs poached or baked and served with sauce are examples.

Many meats, especially braised beef dishes, are improved by the addition of a little chili powder. Individual taste dictates how much to use. It is better to err on the side of underseasoning than to overseason. Half a teaspoonful of chili powder adds a lot of flavor to a braised meat or stew.

Macaroni, spaghetti, noodles, and rice dishes all are good material on which chili powder can work its magic.

Shrimps, oysters, and other seafood often may be improved by the addition of chili powder in their preparation. Salad dressings flavored with chili are excellent on mixed greens, avocado salads, and even some fruit salads, orange, grapefruit and melon salads, to name several.

Chili Steak.
[Serves five.]

1½ pounds round steak, cut ¾ inch thick
Flour, salt, pepper
Bacon drippings or other fat
½ medium onion, sliced
1½ cups tomatoes or tomato juice
1 teaspoon [more or less] chili powder

Pound flour into steak, brown on both sides in hot fat, with onion, and season with salt, pepper and chili powder. Add tomatoes, reduce heat, and simmer gently until tender, about one hour. Water or sour cream may be used instead of tomatoes.

Corn Souffle.
[Serves six.]

1 can whole kernel corn
⅛ teaspoon dry mustard
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon chili powder
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
2 eggs

Add seasonings to corn. Blend melted butter and flour over low heat, add milk gradually, and stir until smooth and thickened. Remove from heat. Add beaten egg yolk, stirring rapidly, then add corn. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and pour mixture into greased casserole. Set casserole in a pan of hot water and bake at 325 degrees for an hour.

"Blind Man's Bluff"

By Baynard Kendrick

Copyright 1942: by Baynard Kendrick

SYNOPSIS.

For eight years Julia Hadfield has been separated from her husband, Blake, who has prevented her getting a divorce for fear she will marry Phil Courtney, their lawyer. Two years after the separation Blake, president of a trust company that failed, was shot and blinded by James Sprague, a depositor, who afterwards committed suicide, according to police. Now, Julia's and Blake's son, Seth, is engaged to Sprague's daughter, Elise. Seth and Elise quarrel because Elise feels she cannot marry the son of the man her father blinded. Seth gets drunk and goes to his father for help. Together, at night, they go to Blake's old office in the trust building. Blake seems to have something there that will help Seth in his quarrel with Elise. Inside the office, Blake has Seth get a tin cash box from a wall safe, and then pour the two of them a drink from the scotch in the safe. Seth leaves the office to connect the telephone for his father, and after he connects it, he stops at Elise's desk, where she works for Bentley, controler for the receivership. There he falls asleep. In the meantime Blake telephones Phil, and then Julia, to come down to the office. When Julia enters the building Blake plunges over the eighth floor railing to his death. Almost at the same moment Inspectors Archer and Davis arrive, summoned earlier by a murder call. Seth is arrested. Lawson, investigator of the state insurance and former auditor of Sprague's investment company, brings the case to the blind detective, Capt. Maclain. Sybella Ford, whom Blake left a legacy, comes with Lawson to see Maclain. Maclain, who lost his sight during the first World war, has done important work with the FBI. He calls on Julia, and Phil drops by while he is there. Phil's left arm is in a sling and he tells Maclain he sprained it the night before and because of that he was unable to keep the appointment with Blake.

INSTALMENT X.

MISSING PEN AND MONEY.

Sergt. Archer stared belligerently at Schnucke and shifted uneasily in his chair. The captain had two dogs, Schnucke and Dreist. Over a period of years, Aloysius Archer, despite his record as a most efficient officer, had never been quite able to tell one from the other.

This was likely to constitute a serious if not dangerous error, and the sergeant knew it. Schnucke, trained by the Seeing Eye as a guide, was capable, lovable, and gentle. She adored Maclain and clung to him with a loyalty deeper than death, but viciousness wasn't in her.

Dreist was a weapon. His loyalty to his master was as deep as Schnucke's, but it was an active loyalty trained to defend. Dreist looked on the world with a hostile suspicious canine eye. He was ready to hurl his sinewy tearing strength at any adversary on command, or without command at a threatening gesture, or sight of a drawn gun.

The sergeant nursed a secret fear that some day he might inadvertently, in a moment of weakness, lean down to pat Schnucke and find his wrist in a rending vise of shining teeth that would leave his hand on the floor.

"I wish you'd quit staring at Schnucke, sergeant," the captain remarked idly.

"And I wish you'd go to Washington with Spud and quit pulling things out of the air." The sergeant mouthed his cigar. "Witchcraft won't get us anywhere."

"She lies on my feet when you stare at her," said Maclain. "She doesn't do it with any one else. You must have a particularly malevolent glare."

"He's mad," said Davis, "because Courtney sprang the Hadfield kid and took him uptown. Archer was ready to strap him in the chair."

"Go ahead, inspector, spill it all." The sergeant spoke with respectful sarcasm that badly covered his belligerency.

"Okay," said Davis. "Listen to this Maclain, and then tell me Blake Hadfield committed suicide or sleepwalked over a railing last night or something. Hadfield carried a Braille watch. It stopped at 11:10—smashed to bits. At 10:15, this department received a murder call."

"From whom?" the captain asked.

"Hadfield, himself."

"Hmm!" The captain might have been staring at a brownish spot on the office wall.

"Hmm, what?" Davis demanded.

"Fifty-five minutes. You're speedier than the fire department in answering a call."

"Now wait, captain," Archer interrupted. "This wasn't any emergency. I took it myself."

"Obviously it wasn't," Maclain agreed with relish. "Hadfield was just dead when you got there, that's all."

"Hell and damnation!" The inspector swore fervently. "Quit needling Archer, Maclain, and listen. I was out on a case when Archer took the call. Hadfield wanted to talk to me."

"Are you sure it was Hadfield?"

"Wait until I finish, then tell me if any one else would make such a call. Archer told him I was out, but expected back shortly. Hadfield said there was no hurry, but if I'd come up to his office in the M. T. & T. building sometime around 11, he and his wife and son would be there and he'd show me a neat method of murder."

"He said he remembered the inspector and me from the investigation of the Sprague affair," Archer added somberly. "It was Hadfield all right. Who else knew his wife and son would be there?"

"Somebody who overheard him telephone his wife, and who saw the boy," said Duncan Maclain.

"You've been reading too many Braille mysteries," Davis protested. "Murderers planning to knock off a victim at 11:10 don't give the homicide squad an hour to answer a call."

"No," the captain admitted. "What then?"

"Archer dug out the old Sprague-Hadfield case file and was looking at it when I came in. Attempted murder and suicide. Closed up six years ago tighter than the bank where it happened."

"All right, go on. I have an idea." Maclain placed an elbow on his knee and used one hand as a rest for his square cleft chin.

"Sure," said Davis shortly. "So have I. We drop back six years to the Sprague-Hadfield shooting and begin. It's not what it seems at all. Two men are in a building at night with a watchman, one Dan O'Hare. They've met by appointment, and nobody but the watchman knows they're there. So somebody who doesn't know they're there drops in by accident, bumps one off and blinds the other and rigs up a case that fools us completely."

"You have been fooled at times," the captain reminded him gently.

"Yes," said Davis, "but not for long. It might not be so hard to fool us, Maclain, but what about Blake Hadfield? Don't you think he knew who shot and blinded him?"

"I wonder," said Duncan Maclain. "Has it occurred to you, inspector, that blindness changes a man? That sometimes I discover things even you and Sergt. Archer miss, as good as you are? Suppose Blake Hadfield returned to that office last night because he had discovered something, and when he was sure of it, put in that mysterious murder call."

"All right. Let's suppose it," the inspector said. "You're in the corner I want you in. Now you can start to admit things. You'll admit, won't you, captain, that we reached that building a minute or two after Hadfield's fatal fall."

Maclain smiled and nodded.

"You've already admitted," the inspector plowed on earnestly, "that the railings are too high for any one to fall accidentally."

Again the captain nodded.

"Okay." Larry Davis ran a hand thru his graying hair. "Now I'll spike suicide for you. Blake Hadfield started to write a note———"

"A note?" Duncan Maclain sat erect so quickly that Schnucke moved in disgruntled surprise. "What did he say?"

"Nothing." Davis took a single sheet of paper from his desk and read. "'I came down here with my son tonight———'" He paused for the captain to drink it in. "That's as far as he got, Maclain. It's written in ink, and with all due deference to your writing ability, it slants uphill in a bit of a scrawl, but that isn't the point. The point is, would a suicide start a suicide note and quit it after a single line?"

"Scarcely," the captain muttered, and: "Are you sure of his writing?"

"Now really, Maclain." Davis sounded sad. "Archer and I occasionally get around. We found specimens of his writing in his apartment this morning, and had an expert on them right away."

"I thought maybe you checked the ink with that in the inkwells," Maclain remarked.

Sergt. Archer said, "There wasn't any. The inkwells were washed out and dry."

"O!" The captain sighed and patted Schnucke, who was growing restless. "But you found his fountain pen?"

"No," said Davis shortly. "We didn't. And we didn't find something else—45 cents in change which the kid said his father got back from the taxi driver on the trip downtown. We found the driver and checked with him, and he bore out the boy. Both of them claim Blake Hadfield put that money in his vest pocket and that he had other change there, too, but not enough to settle the cab fare and tip without breaking a bill."

The inspector pushed back his chair and came around the desk to stand in front of Maclain. "There you have your picture, captain. There was no change in Hadfield's pockets. There was no fountain pen. Yet he had change, and he wrote a note with something, and we can prove from several people that he owned a fountain pen."

Fresh Designs Give Costume Jewelry Dash

BY REA SEEGER.

Remember the stunning costume jewelry of shiny gold metal, with the clever and unusual designs achieved in open work or pierce work, that traveled everywhere and anywhere without suffering a dim-out of the highly polished beauty? If you do, news of a collection now on display will be welcome.

This stuff is a superjewelry find, for every piece is definitely individual, each design an original, fresh from nimble fingers and drawing board. Each is the last brain wave from the genius back of it all. This collection is American costume jewelry, designed by an American woman, especially ideal for American costumes. Lapel pins, clips, earrings, and some large picture pieces for single ornament duty on a slim suit or dress comprise the collection.

Brand new arrivals include the gold metal squirrel with the exaggerated bushy tail a most decorative three-quarters of the swank, feather pins in sets, one large, one medium and one small; the head of a French bull pup; a cockatoo with every feather ruffled that measures a good six inches over all, some new flying fish pins, a Great Dane and a snazzy chest pin in the shape of a sporting pinscher.

Sets of pins also are matched with earrings and feature swallows on the wing ready to head west or east on your chest, flying ducks [you pin them in the particular formation you wish] and some long distance marathon pigeons, flaunting a wide wing spread.

Leaf designs are more decorative than ever. Some new models are star shape with pointed ends.

Metal restrictions have brought additional glamour in costume jewelry. The new silver base pieces are, to some, even more effective than the gold metal pieces.

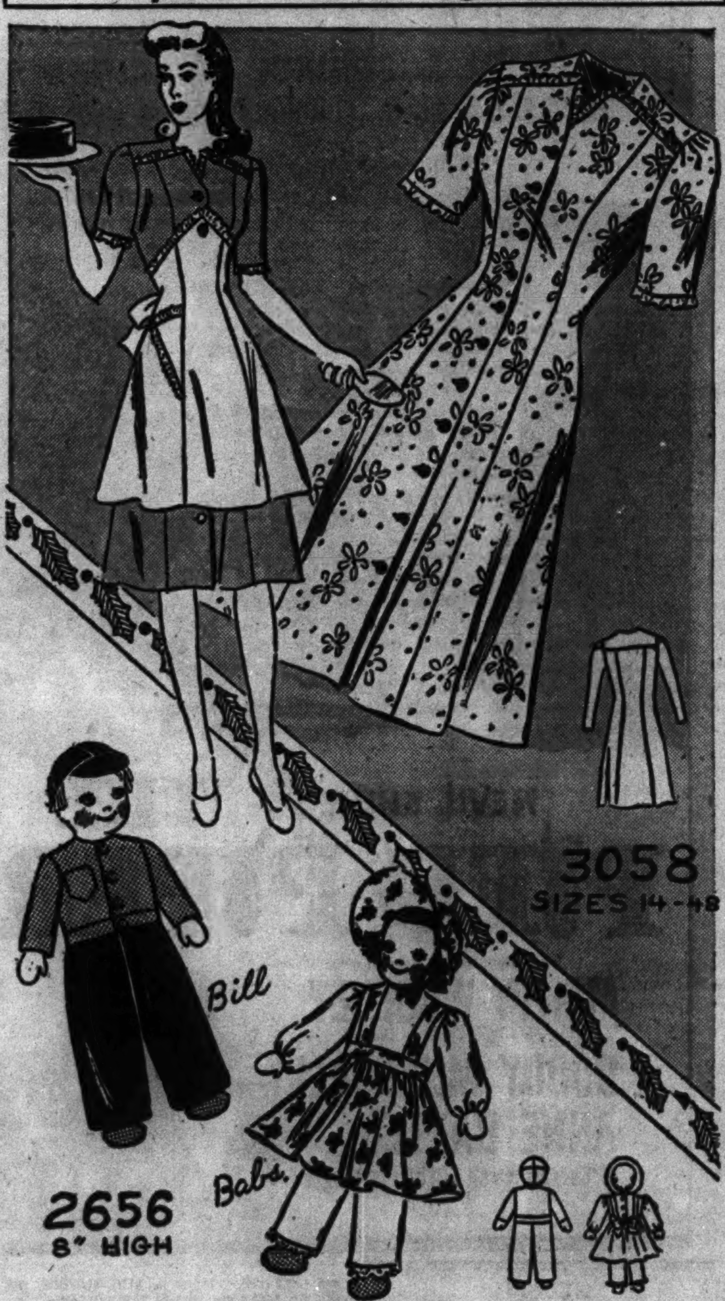
Aprons and Rag Dolls



APRONS AND DOLLS.

This will be a modest Christmas, for obvious reasons, but the children cannot be forgotten. In your precious spare time between now and the holiday, why not begin making dolls for the small fry? And you can find the time, too, to make aprons for friends and yourself.

Style No. 3058 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 35 inch material with 1⅓ yards of ruffling, for dress; 1⅝ yards of 35 inch fabric for apron.

Style No. 2656 creates Babs and Bill, rag dolls. Each body requires ⅓ yard of 35 inch plain fabric. Bill's requires ½ yard of dark with ⅝ yard light colored material.

Each pattern costs 10 cents, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents for mailing costs (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT: Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired and write your name and address plainly. The autumn pattern book costs 15 cents—10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

Sheridan OCD Center Will Dedicate Flag for 800 Service Men

The Sheridan center civilian defense community, on the north side, will dedicate its service flag containing more than 800 stars in a patriotic rally at Wrigley field at 3 p. m. Saturday. Herbert Futran, chairman of the dedication committee, said religious leaders have prepared a nonsectarian dedication ceremony honoring members of the fighting forces of all faiths. Music will be provided by a massed choir and glee club chorus of more than 600 voices under Edgar Nelson, and the Illinois Concert orchestra of 50 pieces, under the direction of Daniel Saidenburg. Representatives of all armed services will appear on the program with several stars of stage and screen. Box seats will be reserved for relatives of the 800 service men. Tickets may be obtained thru the Sheridan center office.

give their parties on different days. One of the largest gatherings will be a community affair planned by four Hinsdale women, Mrs. Ward Castle, Mrs. Eugene Kettering, Mrs. James Walker, and Mrs. Merwin Armstrong, to be held on Oct. 23 at the Hinsdale Community house. There will be a tea and exhibit of Russian wear during the afternoon, and a card party and Russian supper, including bortsch, in the evening. Several pretty young Hinsdale girls will be present in Russian costumes.

Mrs. Harry Street is giving a bridge party next Monday in Hinsdale to aid the project. Mrs. Walter S. Brewster is planning an unusual beer and picnic party for the society, but it will not be given on the 18th either as she wants to hold it in her Lake View avenue home, to which she will be moving from Lake Forest over the week-end of the 18th. She will serve beer and sandwiches, and guests may wander thru the house to enjoy the Brewsters' collection of modern paintings.

Mrs. Arthur Byfield will give a real Russian tea with music on Oct. 25 in Highland Park. Mrs. Marcus Richards, Mrs. Mitchell Dawson, the American Russian Young Woman's club all are planning teas, and Mrs. Harvey O'Connor is arranging a dance at Hull House.

Casino Club Will Remain Open, Mrs. Cochran Says.

To all rumors that the Casino club might be closing this winter, the president, Mrs. John L. Cochran, says, definitely, "No." The club will be wide open and ready to look after any number of parties. Members are responding generously to invitations to participate in a memorial fund to Tony Esser, who was steward of the club for more than 25 years, and whose presence is missed by every one who comes into the smart little gathering place in East Delaware place.

News of interest that will come as a surprise to their many friends concerns the marriage last Thursday of Miss Carrie Kuhnert and Jay C. McCord. The ceremony took place at St. Chrysostom's church, and Mr. McCord and his bride departed immediately for Phoenix, Ariz. When they return in a week or two they will be at home in his apartment at 900 North Michigan avenue.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1942: by Ely Culbertson.]

"Nothing much we could do about it, partner," said West in the following deal, while the opponents were chalking up game and rubber.

"No," East agreed. "We just didn't have the tickets."

The speakers deserved credit for their equable temperaments, but not for their bridge skill. They were wrong—there had been a great deal that they could "do about it."

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
2 clubs	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the spade jack. East won and returned a spade. Declarer took the club finesse; East won and knocked out declarer's last spade stopper. On this trick dummy's club ace was discarded. Now a diamond was led and the nine-spot was finessed. East won with the jack and, seeing that the diamond suit was within a trick of establishment, shifted to a low heart. West's king forced the ace and now the declarer, abandoning the diamond suit, decided to set up his own hearts. He returned the jack. East ducked, but without avail. Declarer now led a club to his own hand and returned the heart ten. East won and exited in hearts, but declarer was now home, with two spade tricks, three hearts, one diamond, and three clubs.

Now observe the difference if East had brought a little more gray matter to bear on this situation. His two returns of spades were, of course, correct, but when one of his diamond stoppers was knocked out, his shift to a low heart did not show much imagination. At this point it should have been clear that if declarer had the heart king there was no hope to defeat the contract. Thus, instead of leading a low heart, East should have boldly laid down the heart queen. This play would have settled declarer's hash. If he held up the heart ace, East would lead another heart, in any case establishing West's king not only as a trick, but far more important, as an entry for his good spades.

This recommended maneuver bears the grandiloquent title of "Deschapelles coup," but a player does not have to know terminology in order to play correctly. He merely has to use imagination and logic.

Child's Love of Country Is Fed by Books

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

It is not only a delight, it is also a great satisfaction to those of us who think American children should know more about their country, to see among the books for children, more and more volumes in both fiction and nonfiction, whose purpose is to feed and deepen and enlighten with knowledge this love of country. The more our children know of their country—its natural resources, its history, its great men, its working out of the great human adventure which is democracy—the more they will love it and be fitted in the near future, when peace is established and when they are men and women, to help it to grow in stature.

Even if book reviewing were my profession, I could not read and evaluate all the new juveniles of this type. But I can list for you here a few that by reputation or competent review seem worthy to be owned [or perhaps merely read] by your boys and girls.

First, one book about America for the very young. An American A B C by Maud and Miska Petersham, published by Macmillan of New York. The price is $2. This is an inspiring book about America in which there is a page of text for every letter of the alphabet and a full color illustration. It is worth your looking over.

Other books for older children are listed below:

A History of the United States for Young People, by Arensa Sondergaard of the Lincoln school, teachers' college, Columbia university. Brilliant text and superb pictures on every page tell the story of the dramatic growth of America. Illustrated in color, $1. Published by Random House, New York City.

Indian Captive, written and illustrated by Lois Lenski. The thrilling true story of Mary Jemison, the Pennsylvania girl who was carried away captive by the Indians and later became famous as the "White Woman of the Genessee." Miss Lenski's many beautiful pictures are the first authentic illustrations of Seneca life. Ages 11 to 16. Price $2, published by Frederick L. Stokes company, Philadelphia, Pa.

For 12 and over, "Look Away, Dixie Land!" by Ada Claire Darby. A dramatic story of a girl nurse in a Union hospital in a Missouri river town during the Civil war. Illustrated. Price $2. Published by Frederick L. Stokes company, Philadelphia, Pa.

For older boys and girls, "The Way of an Eagle," by Sonia Daugherty. Thomas Jefferson's life and times are told vividly and with great understanding. This is the story of an idealist's struggle against the forces destructive to democracy in this country. Published by Oxford University Press, New York, N. Y. Price $2.50.

Paddle-to-the-Sea, by Holling C. Holling. Many brilliant pictures in full color follow the adventurous story down a great river to the sea, giving a rich store of information about the nature of our country. For children from 8 to 12. Publisher, Houghton-Mifflin company, New York, N. Y. Price $2.

The Little Geography of the United States, by Mabel Pyne. The author of the Little History of the United States makes the geography of our country just as exciting, just as much fun as the history. Published by Houghton-Mifflin company, Boston, Mass. Price $2.

The Matchlock Gun, by Walter D. Edmonds [author of Drums Along the Mohawk, and so forth]. A stirring, true story, written for boys and girls from 7 to 11 years, by a famous historical novelist, and telling the breathless adventures of a boy and girl who defended their home against the Indians in the Hudson valley, before the revolution. Beautiful Paul Lantz pictures in color and black and white. Published by Dodd-Mead, New York, N. Y. Price $2.

There are many others, newer and older, that are excellent. In your library or in the bookstores, investigate books about America for your young people.

6,000 Yule Parcels Are Sent to Yanks Daily by Chicagoans

Christmas packages are being mailed by Chicagoans to service men overseas at a rate of 6,000 parcels each 24 hours, Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen estimated yesterday. He said thousands of Christmas cards and letters are going out each day.

Kruetgen predicted the peak of overseas Christmas mailing will be reached about Oct. 15, and warned that the postoffice department will promise delivery by Christmas only if the parcels, letters, and cards are mailed before Nov. 1.

Parcels have been limited by postal authorities to 11 pounds in weight, 18 inches in length, and 42 inches in length and girth combined. Army and navy officials, however, have urged a limit of 6 pounds and favor parcels no larger than a shoe box to conserve ship space.

W-G-N PROGRAM TO RELATE ROLE OF YOUTH IN WAR

Citizens Series Will Be Opened Sunday.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Want to know what high school boys and girls are thinking about this fall? The war and what they can do to help win it.

The first session of the season of Citizens of Tomorrow in W-G-N's main studio yesterday gave unmistakable evidence of students' preoccupation with America's fight for freedom. You can verify that when the first radio program of the season, recorded yesterday, is broadcast over W-G-N at 1 p. m. next Sunday.

This new, serious spirit of youth became apparent even before the radio program opened. A note of solemnity marked the pledge of allegiance to the flag as it was given by more than 600 students from Crane Technical High school, the first institution saluted this year on the program dedicated to youth by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Alumni in Forces.

It was further reflected in the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner." They sing it with pride and devotion nowadays—and they know the words, too. The war theme and the relation of youth to it ran thru the program. It was filled with news of numerous young men and women alumni who have joined the armed forces; news of the biggest enrollment in ROTC history and news that high school youths are determined to make history in the salvage drive.

Nathaniel Leverone, state director of the salvage drive, speaking briefly at the conclusion of the broadcast, emphasized the urgency of the campaign.

Can Help Shorten War.

"Whatever you do now in the scrap drive," he said, "will help to shorten the war and may save many of your own lives."

William McFetridge, Chicago salvage director, and Dr. George F. Cassell, assistant superintendent of schools, also spoke. Student salvage drive directors of more than 40 high schools were guests at the session.

Beryl Vaughan and Bob Jellison, as Jerry and Jimmy, typical high school kids, clattered into the studio with their personal collection of scrap.

Philip Maxwell, as master of ceremonies, spoke briefly about how Citizens of Tomorrow will be devoted this year to serve a nation at war. Maxwell also conducted the Tribune news quiz—the questions relating to war subjects. The Crane singers broadcast for the first time "Song of Freedom," a new patriotic song by Lewys Thomas, their music teacher and director.

W-G-N TO BOOST AREA DRIVE FOR AVIATION CADETS

W-G-N is coöperating with the Air Force Sponsors of Chicago in presenting a one hour program, "Wings of the Army," tomorrow evening in behalf of the campaign for aviation cadets in this area. The program, featuring war heroes and outstanding radio and movie stars, will be broadcast from the Chicago Civic Opera house from 9 to 10 o'clock. Transcriptions of the program are to be made and carried by other radio stations later.

Among the heroes to appear will be Capt. H. K. Skelly, command pilot of the army air transport command, and Lieut. Robert Brouk, who served with the Flying Tigers. Mayor Kelly and Maj. Gen. H. S. Aurand, commanding officer of the 6th service command, will speak. Capt. Wayne King, former orchestra leader, also will be heard.

Among the entertainers will be Marcy McGuire, former Chicago girl whose first starring picture is "Seven Days' Leave"; Shirley Ross and Linda Ware of the movies. Dr. I. Q. [Jimmy McClain], radio quiz conductor, will be on hand to distribute 250 silver dollars to guest army aviation cadets recently sworn in and now awaiting training call. Others to contribute to the show will be Norman Ross, W-G-N football reporter and one-man entertainer, and the Hoosier Hot Shots.

Jess Kirkpatrick will be announcer, Morrison Wood the producer, and Fran Coughlin and Myron Golden the writers.

WAR SPENDING OF 78 BILLIONS SEEN FOR YEAR

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—Calculating that war costs will exceed 6 billion dollars a month by New Year's day, Budget Director Harold D. Smith today revised budget estimates of war spending upward to a total of 78 billion dollars in the current fiscal year which will end June 30, 1943.

This estimate was about 25 billions more than President Roosevelt's figures in January and 8 billions more than a later guess by Smith in April.

As a result, Smith said borrowing by the treasury from the public would approximate $60,300,000,000, instead of $33,600,000,000 as calculated in the President's January message.

Smith's estimate of war costs this fiscal year included 74 billions of budgetary expenditures by the treasury, plus 4 billion dollars by the Reconstruction Finance corporation and other governmental agencies which operate outside the regular federal budget.

AFL COUNCIL BACKS PETRILLO BAN ON RECORDS

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 7 (AP).—The American Federation of Labor had a recommendation from its executive council today declaring unqualified support of the American Federation of Musicians in its dispute with record manufacturers and broadcasting companies. Debate and convention action on the recommendation was forecast for Friday.

The council's action said employers had not shown any disposition to resolve the controversy and that President James C. Petrillo had been instructed by the 1941 convention of the musicians' union to direct members to cease making records and electrical transcriptions.

The report condemned the suit brought by the anti-trust division of the United States department of justice.

Runaway Kentucky Boy Hit by Police Bullet

They found him acting in a suspicious manner among parked cars on South State street. Campbell, who had been living at 516 South State street, was taken to the Bridewell hospital.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1942.

CARDS, BEARS FEUD FLARES FOR 44TH GAME

MAJOR LEAGUES MAY CUT 1943 BASEBALL SCHEDULES

OWNERS HAVE PLAN TO SAVE 40,000 MILES

Propose a Return to Fewer Trips.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The big league magnates have already decided they will have to make their plans for 1943 baseball along lines different from those of recent seasons.

Only informal discussions have taken place thus far, but Will Harridge, president of the American league, yesterday revealed that opinions he picked up while a world series tourist indicated sentiment favoring a three instead of a four trip schedule and a later opening as well as an earlier closing.

"It will all have to wait," said Harridge, "until the December meetings, but in the meantime discussions between the individual clubs and the two majors as a whole will be carried on by mail."

See Acute Travel Problem.

The transportation problem during the latter part of the recent season was the item that opened the eyes of the owners, most of whom always prefer to go along as in the past. Ball clubs, even before the last Washington order banning special Pullmans, encountered difficulties finding rolling beds for the athletes. with accommodations limited to regular line equipment next season, the traveling problem will be so acute that the boys may have to make some of the long jumps in day coaches.

If the three trip schedule, which prevailed until a few years ago, is restored, a team will visit each other city three instead of four times during the season. It will increase each visit from three to four and in some cases to five games. But it will eliminate about 20,000 miles of travel for each league.

May Shorten Season 2 Weeks.

Tentative opening and closing dates have been set at April 13 and Sept. 26, but these will not be officially adopted until the shorter season advocates have had their chance to speak. The latter, who probably will pick up followers before meeting time arrives, want to knock off a week in April and clean up the races Sept. 19.

There's one group of American and National league owners who advocate trimming the number of games. Under the 154 game arrangement in effect for many years, each club plays 22 games with each other club. The stop below this would be a 140 game chart, or 20 games between each of the teams. This would automatically make possible a later start and earlier closing.

May Meet in Chicago.

Whether the big leagues will hold their annual sessions in Chicago or in New York hasn't been decided. They met here last December and it is New York's turn this year, but this little reciprocity arrangement between the two leagues may be overlooked. Some of the minor leagues want to talk business with the majors and Chicago is centrally located. The minors, because of transportation difficulties, have abandoned their 1942 convention.

Harridge also revealed yesterday that American league attendance for 1942 declined by about 8 per cent from the previous season.

BLACKHAWKS BUY BENNY GRANT, VETERAN GOALIE

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 7 (AP).—The St. Paul club of the American Hockey association tonight sold Benny Grant, veteran goalie, to the Chicago Blackhawks of the National league. Grant, who played for the Toronto Maple Leafs part of the 1928-'29 and 1929-'30 seasons, will report to the Hawks' training camp in Hibbing, Minn., on Oct. 17.

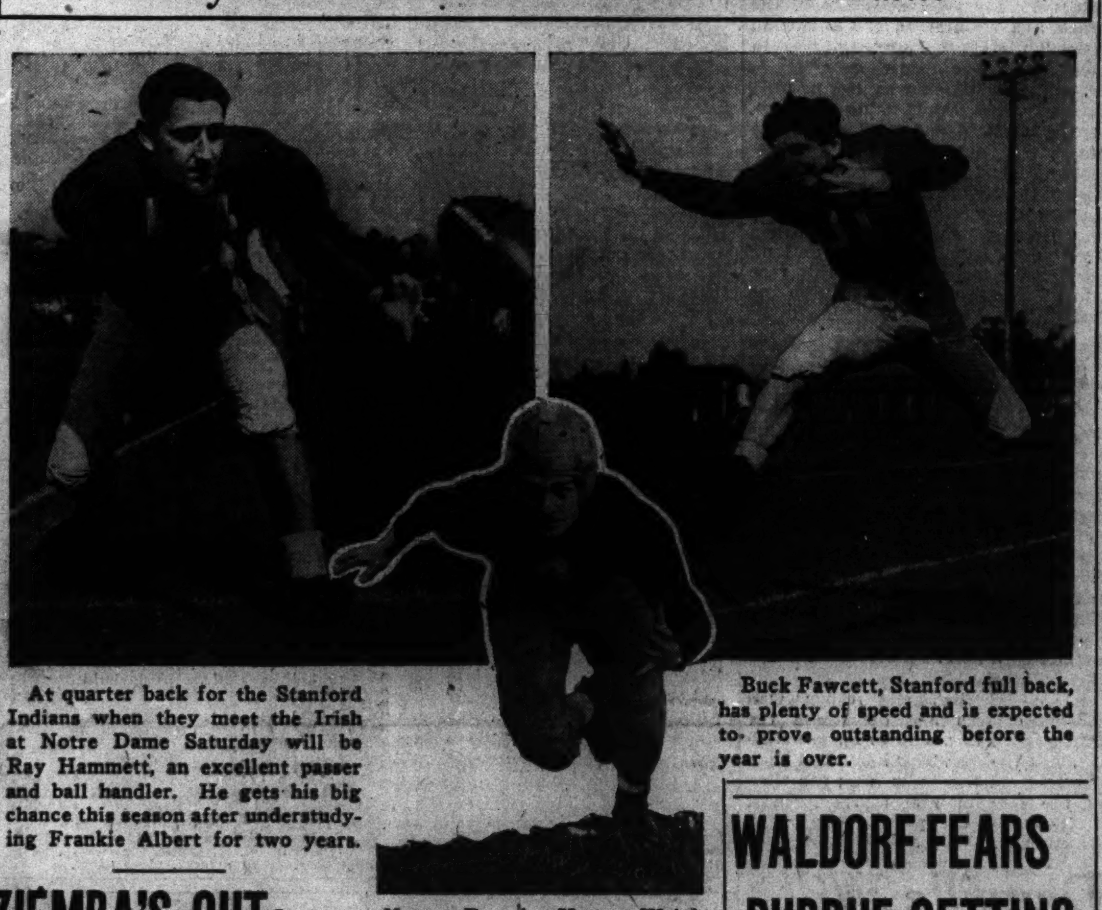
They'll Enliven Stanford-Notre Dame Battle



At quarter back for the Stanford Indians when they meet the Irish at Notre Dame Saturday will be Ray Hammett, an excellent passer and ball handler. He gets his big chance this season after understudying Frankie Albert for two years.

Buck Fawcett, Stanford full back, has plenty of speed and is expected to prove outstanding before the year is over.

Notre Dame's Harry Wright, now a guard, resumes one of his old duties on Saturday when he will do the signal calling against Stanford. Wright, a quarter back last year, takes over part of the work assigned Angelo Bertelli, star passer, in Notre Dame's first two games.

ZIEMBA'S OUT; COLEMAN TAKES OVER AT CENTER

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 7 [Special].—Wally Ziemba, first string Notre Dame center, will miss Saturday's game here with Stanford, it was announced today. He suffered pulled ligaments in his right knee in last week's Georgia Tech game.

Herb Coleman, 195 pound sophomore from Chester, W. Va., replaced the 225 pound Hammond star in today's scrimmage, during which Coach Frank Leahy made frequent comment on the ragged tackling in Saturday's 13 to 6 loss to Georgia Tech.

Offsetting the loss of Ziemba was the news that Owen [Dippy] Evans, starting left half back, who has been benched since Sept. 5 with injuries, may be able to play against the Indians. Evans has been running signals for several days, resting after every few plays. Whether he plays will depend on how much his weak knee improves in the next few days.

Ziemba, Evans, and Bob Livingstone, sophomore understudy for Evans, were held out of today's skirmish. Tom Miller, who scored Notre Dame's touchdown last week on a 15 yard run, operated at left half. Creighton Miller, Tom's brother, was elevated to the first team at right half ahead of Bill Early. Bob Neff, senior right tackle, was restored in No. 1 ranking ahead of Luke Higgins, having recovered from a charley horse which slowed him up last week.

The Stanford squad will arrive in Chicago tomorrow and work out there.

Ray Courtright to Coach Michigan Golf Squad

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 7 [Special].—Ray Courtright, Michigan golf coach, has been appointed head wrestling coach, Athletic Director Fritz Crisler announced today, filling the vacancy created by the departure of Cliff Keen, now a lieutenant in the physical conditioning program of the navy preflight school at the University of Georgia. Courtright will serve during Keen's absence.

Pacing Yearling Brings Record Price of $9,000

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 7 (AP).—The highest price ever paid for a pacing yearling was recorded when Mrs. James B. Johnson Jr. of Rochester, Mich., paid $9,000 for a son of Hal Dale-Adios Volo at the Tattersalls auction of the standard bred stock. The youngster's name, incidentally, is Good Buy. He is a brother of the crack pacer, Adios.

Two Reserve Backs to Start for Gophers

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 7 (AP).—Two second stringers, Dick Kelley and Bob Sandberg, will be in the starting lineup for Minnesota against Illinois Saturday.

Bill Garnaas and Herman Frickey, out because of injuries, have come along nicely, but neither is being counted on for much play at Champaign. Kelley and Sandberg have been in the No. 1 spots the entire week while Frickey and Garnaas have been confined to jogging.

Forward passing, which has been a weakness in Minnesota's football armor against Pittsburgh and the Iowa Seahawks, was the big item in today's practice. This was the last hard drill before the Gophers leave tomorrow night for Illinois. Because of the inadequacy of the passing attack, opponents have concentrated their defense on the Gophers' ground game. To make the rushing game click better Coach George Hauser declares an overhead attack also must be successful. He hopes to find the answer against the improved Illini.

BILL DALEY WORRIES ILLINI.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 7 [Special].—How to stop Big Bill Daley, Minnesota's star left half back, was among the many problems which engrossed Coach Ray Eliot and his aids as they continued preparations today for the invasion of the Gophers for Saturday's homecoming game.

Julius Rykovitch, 192 pound freshman left half back from Gary, Ind., is being assigned the rôle of Daley in workouts as the first year men present Minnesota offensive formations.

All hope that Bob Wilson, regular left guard, might be able to play Saturday was given up today.

Jay Schafrann Appointed Harvard Wrestling Coach

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 7 (AP).—Jay H. Schafrann, who competed in college wrestling at Wyoming and Michigan, today was appointed coach of the Harvard wrestling team by Athletic Director William J. Bingham. Schafrann now is attending the Harvard law school.

WALDORF FEARS PURDUE SETTING A TRAP FOR N. U.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Well, if it isn't one thing it's another in the autumnal existence of a football coach. Now take the case of Lynn [Pappy] Waldorf of the Northwestern Wildcats.

With Purdue's Boilermakers coming up to Evanston Saturday, Waldorf is fearing as best he can—that being rule No. 1 in the coaches' union. But while observing the regulations the Wildcats' ringmaster finds that a streak of contentment is coursing thru his system. He actually admits he's quite happy about the way his Wildcats have acted thus far. Many of them are new, so they should get better. That, too, adds to the tendency toward mental comfort.

Of course, this doesn't go for Purdue or as a matter of fact for any other future foes. Waldorf views the Boilermakers with suspicion. He has convinced himself they have set a trap for him.

Scouts Warn Waldorf.

Waldorf admits he had heard about Purdue being trimmed by Fordham in its opener and by Vanderbilt last Saturday. This, coupled with the Wildcats' strong altho losing 20 to 12 demonstration against the Iowa Seahawks and the 3 to 0 victory over Texas, should have permitted joy to burst out the walls in the Evanston coaching quarters the last few days. But the scouts saved the walls. They plied Waldorf with warnings that Purdue couldn't be as feeble as it looked while assimilating two whippings.

So what does Waldorf do? He decides his scouts know something—that Purdue was merely out for the exercise while in contact with Fordham and Vanderbilt. Purdue was keeping its choicest attacking items away from snooping eyes, saving them so to speak for its more important affairs in the Big Nine. And besides the Boilermakers have at times been a jinx hurdle for the Wildcast. That's another reason for Waldorf's willingness to believe there's a plot afoot.

Purdue Has Rebuilt Line.

The Boilermakers will glide into Dyche stadium with a line that was put in the shop by Coach Elmer Burnham this fall and given an overhauling from one end to the other. The line wasn't exactly a stone wall arrangement last season, hence the necessity for radical departures. But apparently there were leaks in the rebuilt article last Saturday so there may be some other changes later on, if not this week-end. Obviously the somewhat tough Wildcats will try to aid Coach Burnham's search for the leaks.

Northwestern will have to struggle

HUNTERS: YOUR COUNTRY NEEDS ALL USED SHELLS

Duck Season Can Produce Large Yield of Brass.

BY BOB BECKER.

All Illinois duck hunters who plan on starting their shooting Oct. 15, the opening day, or later in the season can render a patriotic service to their country by saving used shotgun shells and turning them over to some salvage depot. The metal in the base of each shell can be used by our war industries. It's estimated that in Minnesota alone 400,000 pounds of brass was left in the fields last year when hunters threw away their ejected shotgun shells.

We have wondered for some time why Illinois hasn't been working up a campaign to salvage the metal in used shells because both Michigan and Wisconsin are busy on such projects. When we went into the northwest to hunt a couple of weeks ago we learned about Minnesota's drive. All hardware dealers in the state are coöperating. They will take the used shells and turn them over to salvage depots.

Michigan Busy, Too.

Michigan is just as busy urging hunters to pick up every used shell [this applies to both shotgun and rifle shells used by deer hunters] and bring it home. In a message to hunters a Michigan organization says: "With use of several million shells likely during the small game and deer seasons, it is believed that a huge quantity of valuable metal can be salvaged. The salvage committee has suggested that hunters cut off the cardboard and paper sections of their used shotgun shells and turn in just the metal bases."

Illinois hunters undoubtedly will fire countless thousands of boxes of shotgun shells on ducks, geese, rabbits and pheasants during the next few months. From this amount of ammunition several hundred thousand pounds of metal undoubtedly could be salvaged if hunters would carry along a cloth sack in which to put all ejected used shells, or else put 'em in a pocket of a hunting coat.

Club Operators Can Help.

Operators of duck clubs and daily fee shooting places could facilitate the salvage drive by putting sacks in each blind so hunters could toss their used shells in them. There usually is plenty of time between shots for all of us to use a pocket knife on used shells so there would be no trouble in assembling only the metal bases, the part wanted for salvage.

Oakland Cancels $5,000 Open Golf Tournament

Oakland, Cal., Oct. 7 (AP).—Cancellation because of the war of the 1943 Oakland $5,000 Open Golf tournament was reported today by John I. Hennessy, president of the local Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsoring organization.

CHUCK DRESSEN, coach of the Dodgers, some weeks ago prepared to give each of the scriveners who traveled with the club a world series present, a box of handsome neckties. . . . When the Cardinals squeezed out the Bums, the ties were presented but not labeled as world series gifts. . . . Bill Radovich, guard on the Great Lakes football team, who formerly played for the Detroit Lions, always will remember the time he and John Wiethe, also a Detroit lineman, stopped Bill Osmanski of the Bears in their 1940 game in Chicago. . . . The Lions made a brilliant goal line stand during which Osmanski was halted twice without gain by Radovich and Wiethe. . . . After Osmanski's second attempt Wiethe remarked: "Sorry, Bill, but only the officials are permitted thru this spot today." . . . For the first time in several years not a National league slugger hit a home run in each of the National league ball parks. . . . Johnny Mize missed in Philadelphia and Vince DiMaggio in Boston. . . . Radio experts predict Dizzy Dean will hold his popularity as a baseball announcer if his sponsors make no effort to teach him English. . . . Diz admits he can't read well and doesn't bother with prepared copy, but his listeners have no difficulty understanding him. . . . His sincerity and enthusiasm for the Cardinals are his main assets. . . . New York sports writers have divided opinions as to whether the war department or Mike Jacobs was at fault in the cancellation of the Louis-Conn bout, but all agree Grantland Rice made a wise move in resigning his connections with War Football, Inc., and War Boxing, Inc. . . . There was too much confusion for him. . . .

Coach Wallace Butts of Georgia must have had a good idea how the Southeastern conference was going to vote on the freshman rule for he took seven first year players with him to Louisville for the Kentucky game. . . . Freshmen were ruled eligible for varsity competition the day before the contest. . . . If height and weight are important factors in gridiron success, Notre Dame should do all right in 1943. . . . Diagnosis.

A man sat high on an asylum wall
Looking upon the river just below
Where in a boat a fellow gaunt and tall
Sat fishing in the evening's golden glow.
He seemed at peace with all the busy world
As from his pipe there rose a silver smoke
That in the summer twilight upward curled—
And then the man from the asylum spoke:

"Have you been fishing since the rising sun?"
The fisherman confessed it was a fact.
"And haven't caught a fish—a single one?"
That also he admitted was exact.
And then the man upon the wall top sighed:
"Believe me, friend, you ought to be inside." T. E. B.

I went with the rest of the crowd to the station
And tried to pretend it was cause for elation;

Trying to be funny in spite of the pang,
Trying to fill in that last minute or two,
Which isn't, you know, always easy to do.

Have you ever watched people turning away
From a scene like that on a parting day?
The quick little furtive dab at the eye,
The aftermath of that smiling good-by?
Tho a bright colored strand from their lives has gone,
They again square their shoulders to carry on.

It's not always the brave ones who go away?

Wake Book Reverberations.

At last! tra la, the welcome Wake book;
The good old laugh-until-you-ache book!
The book we've waited for thru the year
At long, long last, ah! it's really here!

Now, Arch, contribs will slacken a bit
For a spell while we are reading it
And counting the times we each got in;
But don't fret, Arch, we'll be back again.

Meanwhile, you and the janitor, be glad
For the little breathing spell you've had;
But we'll be back—tho you did not ask it—
With more stuff for your BIG waste basket.

And you will put them in it, no doubt;
And he, poor guy, will empty them out.

JIM CONZELMAN CHASES TWO PRACTICE 'SPIES'

Bosh, Says Halas of Foe's Story.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

A spy scare and a subsequent chase of two mysterious characters by Coach Jim Conzelman halted the Chicago Cardinals' drill yesterday in the 83d street and Yates avenue stadium, where they are preparing for Sunday's game with the champion Bears.

Conzelman's charges that the two were spying on the Cardinals and taking notes of what they saw brought a hot retort from George Halas, owner-coach of the Bears. Not even the assurance that Conzelman had absolved him of any suspicion in the affair could calm down George, who sputtered:

"Ridiculous stuff! I haven't the slightest idea where the Cardinals practice and care less. We're too busy getting ready for Sunday's game to pay any attention to that. I guess maybe we could find some Cardinal spies around us if we looked hard enough."

Jim Isn't Kidding.

Conzelman, noted as something of a prankster, insisted that his team actually experienced an on the level spy scare, then proceeded to give a vivid account of it.

"Two fellows tried to get in a couple of the gates at the front of the stadium," he recounted. "Then they tried to enter at a couple of other spots. Finally I noticed them outside the enclosure and one was taking notes. I strolled toward them, then started jogging [Jim isn't as fast as he used to be]. With this the two of 'em, both big, broad shouldered fellows, wearing top coats, started running, jumped into a green automobile, and drove away."

Conzelman said one of the Cardinal players obtained the license number of the car and that the name and address of the owner was traced. Furthermore, said Conzelman, the car's owner is a friend of at least two Chicago Bears.

Needs No Phoney Buildup.

Sunday's game, the 44th between the cross-town rivals since 1920, needs no such fantastic buildup to insure a large crowd in Wrigley field for the 2:30 o'clock kickoff. Counting room specialists of both organizations reported last night that the advance sale is much more advanced than at a similar time last year for their first game, which brought out 34,668 spectators. It was estimated the attendance would go well over 35,000.

Jim Conzelman. George Halas.

Mr. Halas, tho strongly indicating by his comments that the rival coach merely was recounting a fanciful experience, has been known to have been spy conscious himself at times. There was that summer of 1941 while his Bears were getting ready in Delafield, Wis., for the College All-Star assignment. George had some of his operatives tracing the movements of a mysterious fellow who was supposed to be a friend of a friend of a friend of one of the College All-Star coaches. Finally, with a relieved look on his face, George said the fellow had beaten a hasty retreat from the Delafield environs.

Raid Nets Three Pinochle Players.

Last fall, while the pro champions were preparing for their second battle with the Green Bay Packers, Halas suddenly exhorted Trainer Andy Lotshaw to make a raid on a third story apartment in a building across the street from Wrigley field. George was sure he had located a room from which every movement of his team was being noted.

Lotshaw came back with the sensational report that three fellows up there were playing pinochle, looking for a fourth, and would any of the Bears care to accept the invitation.

The Cards are having plenty of experience, what with just having recovered over the case of the mysterious touchdown, which cost them Sunday night's game with Green Bay.

Those Boys Are Excited.

"That questionable touchdown by Charley Brock and now this spy incident really have my boys stirred up," said Conzelman. "I just hope they won't be worn out by all the excitement by Sunday."

Halas, when he had strongly delivered himself of his opinion of coaches who talk about spies and such, allowed that the Bears enjoyed a successful practice session yesterday. First, the squad worked on correcting mistakes that showed up in last Sunday's 21 to 7 victory over Cleveland. Then attention was given to some of the plays which the champions expect to use on the Card's rock-ribbed defense Sunday. The Bears also paid more than ordinary heed to defense work.

TUSKEGEE AND WILBERFORCE HIT BY INJURIES

Knee Hurts May Keep Star Backs on Bench.

George Robinson, Tuskegee institute's quarter back from Hiawatha, Kas., will be on the sidelines when the Tigers clash with Wilberforce university of Ohio in Soldiers' field tomorrow night in the 13th meeting of the two schools. Robinson's knee injury, received in last Saturday's 13 to 6 victory over Morris Brown college of Atlanta, prevented him from working out with his team yesterday afternoon in Washington park.

Both elevens are undefeated this year. Tuskegee opened up with a 12 to 6 victory over Xavier in New Orleans and Wilberforce won the only game it has played so far from Alabama A. and M., 13 to 0.

Uses T Formation.

Head Coach Clève Abbott was forced to try out several new combinations in the back field. The Tuskegee team uses the T formation and its offense is built around the speed and deceptiveness of Raymond Head of Griffin, Ga., and Arthur Stewart of Tuscaloosa, Ala. Leo Brinkley, Tulsa, was used in Robinson's place at quarter.

The Wilberforce squad, coached by James McCreary, late of Michigan State, worked out after the Tuskegee team. Clem Russ, full back from Kentucky, was given first varsity assignment. Charles Hobson of Homestead, Pa., was used at quarter in place of Milam Qualls, who has a leg injury. Ross Barrett, the 208 pound tackle from Cambridge, O., will not start the game.

F. A. Band to Play.

Both teams will be given light workouts this afternoon. Both teams are quartered at the Wabash avenue Y. M. C. A.

The game tomorrow night will have as an added feature the 184th field artillery band from Camp Custer, Michigan, which arrives in the morning and will play in the Congress street plaza at noon. The 25 piece band and 120 sailors from Camp Robert Smalls at the Great Lakes Naval Training station and other service men will attend. Lieut. Comm. David N. Goldenson will induct 12 Chicago boys and 5 out of town boys as part of the ceremony.

HAWTHORNE'S ELKS' PURSE WON BY BIT OF NERVE

Takes First Race Under Denemark Colors.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Bit of Nerve, a juvenile colt which Mrs. Emil Denemark claimed recently from Phil Chinn, won for his new owner in the Elks' purse which headed yesterday's program at Hawthorne. Nick Jemas brought this horse home under a strong hand ride half a length in advance of Short Life. Sunny Portress was third.

Short Life, with Steve Brooks aboard, had taken the lead away from Bit of Nerve in midstretch. Then the horse showed a tendency to swerve and Brooks had to ease up on his driving to straighten him out. Meanwhile Bit of Nerve continued stoutly enough to outfinish his rival in this six furlong dash.

Bit of Nerve was the fourth choice in the betting at odds of a little better than 5 to 1. His payoff was $12.20, $6.40, and $4.20 across the board. The even money favorite, Mabe Monday, finished fourth.

Guerin Continues Streak.

Eddie Guerin, who is making a comeback after being severely injured during the Washington Park meeting, rode two winners yesterday. He brought in Cold Crack in the third and followed up with Brownie in the fifth.

His victory on Cold Crack was performed with comparative ease. This colt took the lead soon after the break and maintained full command thruout the six furlongs. His margin was two lengths over Cloudy Weather, while Mismark was third. Cold Crack had strong betting support, paying $5, $3.20 and $2.40 across the board.

Guerin had to work considerably harder to bring in Brownie in the six furlong Chatterton purse, an allowance event which drew a field of six 3 year olds. Sam Houston took a long lead in the early stages of this race while Brownie was running with the rest of the pack.

Sam Houston held an advantage of four lengths as they approached the turn into the stretch and his chances were improved when nearly all of his rivals went wide into the straightaway. Zorowar and Brownie settled down to a hard pursuit of the pacemaker, Brownie being on the extreme outside.

Sam Houston gave up in the last furlong and Zorowar took the lead with a narrow margin over Brownie. They went head and head to the finish line, Brownie getting the camera verdict by a nose. Sam Houston saved third place.

After favorites and other well backed choices had dominated the first seven races, a 79 to 1 shot, Bud-On, won the last. This horse had been absent from the races from the time of the Lincoln Fields meeting last spring until the present session at Hawthorne.

Danville Will Sponsor Pin Elimination

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

Danville, one of the state's bowling hot spots, is to put on an elimination event for the second annual All-Star tournament—with just two beneficiaries, the winner and the fellow in uniform. The winner of the elimination will become a candidate for the match game individual championship now held by Ned Day.

Dr. Fred Robison, Danville dentist and bowling proprietor, who was an alternate in the 1941 All-Star tournament here, said yesterday the elimination, to be sponsored by the Danville Commercial-News, would produce only a single individual prize winner. That winner's prize will be his entry fee into and expenses to the All-Star tournament. All other profit will go into maintenance of the bowling center being built into the old Auditorium theater, now Service Men's Center No. 2.

Upkeep Is High.

This 12 alley layout is being provided by the Bowling Proprietors' Association of Greater Chicago, and maintenance of it—a costly item—is expected to receive a substantial boost from the All-Star tournament. The tournament will be rolled on the 12 alleys Dec. 5 thru 13, and the net from it will go into the maintenance fund, the same to which Danville is to contribute.

"We feel you're doing a great thing in providing free bowling for the fellow in uniform, and we want to make what contribution we can," Dr. Robison said. "I know how our Danville boys appreciate what they're getting in those service centers, and I'm satisfied they'll get a lot of pleasure from the bowling alleys."

Deadline Saturday Midnight.

Bowlers planning to enter the Chicago eliminations have only two more days in which to file entries, the deadline being midnight Saturday. The eliminations are scheduled to open a week later and continue for three week-ends.

SHOUTING OVER, CARDINALS OFF FOR THEIR HOMES

Players to Relax, Then Seek Various Jobs.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 7 (AP).—It was all over—the season, the series and the shouting—as the world champion St. Louis Cardinals left for their homes today to join in the nation's war effort.

Young Howard Pollet, who will visit New Orleans and then go to Houston to seek war work, struck the keynote for the team: "Now we have a bigger job to do."

Most of the players are classified 3A because of family responsibilities. They plan to relax from the strain of their strenuous baseball campaign and then go into war jobs or farm work.

Manager Billy Southworth may apply for employment at a Columbus, O., airplane plant and he said, "I'll be looking for hard work; no swivel chair job for me."

Max Lanier has a pleasant homecoming in prospect. When he returns to Denton, N. C., he will get his first look at his son, who was four months old last Sunday, the day Max defeated the Yankees. Lanier is another one of the Cardinal players who will go into defense work.

President Sam Breadon, Manager Southworth and nine of the players donated blood to the American Red Cross today.

NASHVILLE HONORS BEAZLEY.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 7 (AP).—Johnny Beazley, hero of the world series, came home to Nashville today, served as the state's chief executive for a few minutes and then was commissioned an honorary colonel on Gov. Prentice Cooper's staff.

The 23 year old youngster, who pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to two world series victories, visited the capitol shortly after arrival this morning. Gov. Cooper and other state officials greeted Beazley warmly. Curious, back slapping crowds followed him, shaking his hand and asking for his autograph.

MICHIGAN MAY BEAT SEAHAWKS THRU TACKLES

Both Elevens Seek to Keep Records Clear.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Michigan's football team, which repelled the sailors from Great Lakes in the opening game of the season, meets the other football squad in the ninth naval district Saturday, the undefeated Seahawks from the Iowa City Preflight school. The outcome will depend largely on the comparative ability of the rival tackles and back field replacements and these factors point to a Wolverine victory.

While the Seahawks now have beaten Kansas, Northwestern, and Minnesota, they failed to score from scrimmage against the Gophers. The Cadets won by Dick Fisher's punt return. Moreover, the Seahawks were held to one first down in the second half. Minnesota had the best line the Seahawks have faced. The veteran personnel of the Wolverine line will match the Minnesota forwards who stopped the Seahawk attack.

Weak at Tackle.

The Seahawks have an excellent squad except at the tackle posts. Actually there isn't one man available for Saturday's game who played this position regularly in college or in professional football. John Kulbitski, who will start at left tackle, was a center at Minnesota. Forrest Jordan and Flop Flora, both of Michigan, were substitutes in their college days. Flora began as a guard. George Frye, Iowa center last year, now has been shifted to left tackle to support Kulbitski and Jordan.

Charley Schultz is the regular Seahawk right tackle and the best of the group. He was a fine guard at Minnesota and later a relief tackle, who never achieved tremendous success in college because of his indifferent attitude. Against mine run opponents the Seahawk ends are capable of covering the weaknesses of the tackles on wide runs and off tackle thrusts. The Seahawks have topnotch centers, George Svendsen and John Haman, and three guards. One of these, Gene Flick of Minnesota, played center last season.

One Soft Spot in Line.

Michigan's weakest line position is right tackle, where Bill Pritula finally has been assigned the starting job, with John Karwales, an end last season, in reserve. The other Michigan men can not be matched as a group in the Big Nine. They are Al Wistert, Bob Kolesar, Merv Pregulman, and Julius Franks. This line will stop the Seahawks' plunges as easily as Minnesota did.

The Seahawks' only effective attack will be the running of Half Back Dick Fisher and of Mal Kutner, on end around plays, and the Fisher to Kutner or Matt Bolger forward passes. Michigan's defense for wide plays and passes is better than a year ago because of reserves.

Kuzma May Get In.

Tom Kuzma, who was Michigan's ranking half back last season and who has missed both games this year because of a knee inpury, may play Saturday. Unless he is entirely fit, he will not appear, and if he does he will play briefly. Kuzma will be of far more assistance the following week against Northwestern.

At the left half, or tail back running, passing, and kicking position. Cliff Wise and Bob Chappuis, sophomore from Toledo, O., have carried on excellently. Paul White and Don Robinson of last year's squad and Sophomore Frank Wardley have performed splendidly at right half. Capt. George Ceithaml, the signal calling blocking back, is in the first rank in any league. And Michigan's full backs—Sophomores Bob Wiese and Don Lund and Junior Bob Stenberg—complete the offense with straight away power.

Michigan probably desires a victory over Minnesota this year even more than a Big Nine championship. One may lead to the other. Michigan hasn't whipped Minnesota for 10 years. But Michigan need not worry about that for a couple of weeks. Right now the Wolverines are capable of whipping the Seahawks to continue with an unbeaten record toward their ultimate goal.

Miller Wins in Bob o' Link Harvest Home

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

A. L. [Jimmy] Miller, several times champion of the Bob o' Link club, is feeling much better now, thank you. Jimmy, who underwent a serious operation a few months back, yesterday demonstrated his return to health by shooting a 38—38—76, four over par, to take low gross honors in the club's annual Harvest Home tournament, and that included the surrender of two strokes to par on the last three holes.

A field of 125 members and guests, led by President Harry Newby, found the North Shore all-men's club blessed with an ideal autumnal day for their windup program of the season.

Low net leaders for the day were two other home club swingers—R. W. McNealy with 84—14—70, and William P. Cagney with 90—20—70.

The prize list follows:

Class A [1-12]—A. L. Miller, 76—5—71, and Lee O'Brien, 84—10—74.

Class C [19-25]—W. P. Cagney, 90—20—70, and J. S. Schoff, 94—23—71.

Class D [26 and up]—Les Schweininger, 104—30—74; F. A. Susen, 105—28—77, and W. H. Susen, 107—30—77.

CATHOLIC LEAGUE TEAMS UNABLE TO JOIN ASSOCIATION

Altho the Catholic league prefers to join the Illinois High School Athletic association it lacks the authority to meet the scholastic requirements the association requires, the Rev. James McDonald, C. M., president of the league, said last night.

Father McDonald points out the members of the league's governing committee are empowered to render decisions concerning athletic matters, but lack the authority to take action pertaining to academic matters.

The proposal, fostered by member schools in outlying districts unable to play several teams because of league restrictions, was considered at the monthly meeting Monday. Among those favoring joining the association are Catholic High of Joliet, Fenwick of Oak Park, and St. George of Evanston.

PASADENA MAY GET ROSE BOWL GAME THIS YEAR

Pasadena, Cal., Oct. 7 (AP).—There's a possibility, remote, perhaps, that Pasadena's Rose bowl football game may return to the Rose bowl next New Year's day. William Dunkerley, secretary-manager of the Tournament of Roses association, said the executive committee will meet Friday to consider the game.

The meeting follows the announcement by Sen. McNary of Oregon that War Secretary Stimson had said there are no restrictions on the size of public gatherings on the west coast except near aircraft plants, military establishments, and highways required for troop movements. The last qualification may prove a hitch.

RICHARD RAMEY NOW CAPTAIN IN ARMY AIR CORPS

Selfridge Field, Mich., Oct. 7 [Special].—Announcement was made today that Capt. Richard M. Ramey had been promoted from the rank of first lieutenant. Capt. Ramey has been the Selfridge field public relations officer for the last six months, following his transfer from headquarters, army air forces, Washington, D. C.

Capt. Ramey, 37 years old, is the youngest of four sons of H. B. Ramey of Champaign, Ill. Prior to entering the army he served three years in the sports department of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

BILL SHAY MADE ST. PHILIP HIGH ATHLETIC CHIEF

Bill Shay.

William [Bill] Shay, St. Philip High school basketball coach, yesterday was appointed the school's athletic director, according to the Rev. Terence A. Serry, O. S. M., principal.

Shay, who succeeds the Rev. William Walsh, O. S. M., is an alumnus of St. Philip and played college basketball at De Paul university. The dean of Catholic league coaches, he is starting his 11th year at St. Philip.

If opponents are taken aback at the speed which the Oak Park High team shows, it's only natural, for the back field is made up of members of the track team. . . . Among them is George Geyer, who holds state titles in the 220 and 100 yard sprints. . . . The coming elections will have a special significance to the Leo football team. . . . Edmund Johnson, assistant to Coach A. L. [Whitey] Cronin, is a candidate for county commissioner. . . . Johnny Hutchings, former Boston Bee pitcher who finished the season with Gabby Hartnett's Indianapolis team, was graduated from Calumet.

One of the first war casualties from the Chicago prep leagues was Larry Spillan, who played left end on Leo's 1940 football team. . . . According to Coach Cronin, Spillan was killed in operations in the Pacific war area. . . . Ray Galvin, former Whiting coach whose place is being filled by Peter Kovachic, teamed with Red Grange while at Illinois. . . . Galvin received a commission in the coast guard last spring. . . . Not the least of the attractions which Mayor Kelly's Christmas benefit game has for Chicago's prep teams is the $1,500 in equipment which is presented to participating schools.

In the manner of the card player who always has an ace up his sleeve, Coach Charles Harvey isn't saying much about Sophomore Mike Swistowicz. . . . But he does admit that Swistowicz would be a varsity back, if it were not for the fact that he plays the same position as Eddie Uvodich, who was selected as an all-city back last year. . . . Bob Cummings, new coach at Marquette High of Milwaukee, is a former Chicagoan. . . . He prepped at Fenwick and has been an assistant coach at Loyola academy.

ARNOLD STATZ QUITS AS PILOT AT LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 7 (AP).—Arnold Statz has resigned as manager of the Los Angeles Angels. Statz, popular with players and fans around the Pacific Coast league, was downcast at the failure of the Angels to take top spot in the league this season and sent his resignation yesterday to Clarence Rowland, club president. He had been pilot of the Angels three years.

Jigger voiced the hope he could remain with the Wrigley organization and said definitly he had no plans to quit baseball.

Bob Elson to Be Honored at Dinner Monday Night

Bob Elson, veteran radio announcer who now is a lieutenant in the navy, will be honored at a dinner at 7 p. m. Monday in the Sherman hotel. Members of the Cubs and White Sox, Elmer Layden, commissioner of professional football, William Harridge, president of the American league, Kenneth L. Wilson, Northwestern university football director, and Jim Conzelman, coach of the Chicago Cardinals, will attend.

Navy Pier's Harriers Sweep Race with Loyola

The Navy Pier cross-country team made a perfect score in defeating Loyola university yesterday, 15 to 40. Paul Huston, former North Texas Teachers star, led the harriers over Loyola's 3⅛ mile home course in 17 minutes 6 seconds. The next four sailors to follow him across the finish line were Martin Videkovich, Lee Allen, Dick McClannahan and Lou Valla. Gerald Fitzgerald of Loyola finished sixth.

New Trier to Meet Morton High Saturday

New Trier High school football team, victorious in its first three games, most impressive of which was last Saturday's 25 to 0 triumph over Waukegan in the Suburban league opener, has been busily preparing its siege guns for Morton of Cicero on Phelp's field in Winnetka Saturday afternoon.

Coach Wally Aschenback has a trio of touchdown makers. Capt. Johnny McNitt missed the first two games but registered two touchdowns against Waukegan, as did Chuck Smullin, the smallest man on the squad at 145 pounds. Gene Hasselberg, whose 60 yard sprint in the first minutes of play set up McNitt's first touchdown, rounds out the group.

The line is well balanced, and has two outstanding players in Stewart Richmond at center and Jerome Harvey at left tackle, Harvey is the team's place kicker.

Morton will rely on a pair of wrestlers, Clarence Self and Clarence Young, to spark its attack. If Scotty Neader, who has been out with injuries, is able to play it will provide Morton with a triple threat back.

Soldier's field will be the scene of two important prep games within the next 10 days. Saturday Tilden Tech, defending champions of the City league, engages Phillips in a contest that could easily decide the championship of the central section. Tilden romped over Kelly, 21 to 0, last Saturday and Phillips upset the highly favored Lindblom eleven, 14 to 7.

The second game on Sunday, Oct. 18 will bring together the Leo Lions, city-wide champions and St. Rita, strong contenders for the south section honors, in the Catholic league in the annual Sisters of Mercy charity game.

Mike Boorman and Dick Thornally, former Morgan Park stars, are members of the University of Wisconsin squad. . . . Louis Cioni, full back on the 1940 Morgan Park team is now a paratrooper. . . . Bob Jones, coach at South Bend Central from 1935 to 1940, a former Indiana football star and a standout in THE TRIBUNE's first All-Star game in 1934, is a first lieutenant in the army signal corps. . . . Double headers are popular with the student fans, as a statement in the Parker Press showed Harper sold 1,200 student tickets and Parker peddled 583. . . . In all there were 2,683 tickets sold to students for the double bill. . . . Eddie Dygert, athletic director at Calumet High, announces 14,300 fans saw Calumet's first three games. . . . Ernie Zalejeski, sophomore of South Bend Washington, is the most heralded player in the eastern division of the Northern Indiana conference. He is 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighs 160 pounds, and has tremendous driving power. . . . Chet Wetterlund of the Chicago Cardinals is a graduate of Morgan Park. . . . The twin brothers of Bud Hall of Morgan Park military academy are enrolled at Leo High in the Catholic league instead of Fenger High school, as was previously stated.

RACING GIVES $1,875,400.60 TO RELIEF FUNDS

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—Horse racing has raised $1,875,400.60 for war relief funds, within striking distance of its self-assessed $2,000,000, the Turf Committee of America announced today.

Among the leading contributions not previously announced by the committee, headed by Herbert Bayard Swope of New York, are $155,667.80 from Washington Park, $123,700.90 from Narragansett Park's fall meeting, $106,494.02 from Longacres in the state of Washington, $28,637.92 from Garden State Park, Ak-Sar-Ben's $25,000 contribution to local charities in Nebraska, $13,538 from Beulah Park, and $1,500 from Saratoga, which showed only a small profit.

Also included are, $30,000 from Wheeling Downs, the entire profits from the meeting; $7,500 from Dade Park, and a like amount from Timonium.

BADGERS WORK ON DEFENSE TO STOP MISSOURI

Madison, Wis., Oct. 7 [Special].—Still not satisfied with the way his University of Wisconsin players are reacting to the freshmen personification of the Missouri T formation, Coach Harry Stuhldreher today gave the Badgers a lengthy dummy defensive drill in preparation of the arrival of the Tigers at Camp Randall on Saturday.

As Missouri's ground gaining activities have only been successfully stymied twice in the last two seasons, Stuhldreher considers a good defense vital to the Wisconsin thoughts of victory over the Tigers.

Stuhldreher also had a long kicking drill in an effort to keep the Wisconsin successful punting and place kicking record going.

Pat Harder and Bob Ray continued to alternate at full back and Stuhldreher stated he still was not sure as to whom he would start against Missouri. The rest of the opening lineup will probably be the same as it has been in the Badgers' last two contests.

MISSOURI LOSES 3 REGULARS.

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 7 (AP).—Coach Don Faurot was resigned tonight to the almost certain absence of three regulars, Maurice Wade and Vernon Bowen, half backs, and Bernard Pepper, tackle, as the Missouri squad completed preparations for Saturday's game at Wisconsin. The Tigers will leave tomorrow afternoon after a final, brief polishing drill.

Camp Grant Plans Attack for Iowa Game

Rockford, Ill., Oct. 7 [Special].—Offensive tactics came in for attention today as Camp Grant worked on the attack it will use against Iowa in Iowa City Saturday. The Warriors held a long passing drill with Stan Stasica, Frank Alonzo, and Reino Nori doing the pitching.

Camp Grant came out of the De Kalb game in good shape. The only men who will not be available against the Hawkeyes are George Garrett, regular right end; Mickey Anderson, quarter back, and Jack Berner, a guard. They are injured.

In an effort to stop the Iowa aerial attack headed by Tom Farmer, Head Coach Lieut. Glen Rose has spent much time in devising a pass defense. Hal Schumacher, the team's defensive star, was particularly impressive in the pass defense drill. He showed no sign of the leg injury that cuased him to miss the De Kalb game last Saturday.

IOWA SCRIMMAGES.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 7 (AP).—Iowa's varsity keyed up its ground attack today by scrimmaging against a third team, and, for the first time in several days, passing was ignored. Coach Eddie Anderson changed the personnel on the varsity somewhat, keeping Ends Bill Parker and Bill Burkett out of the contact drill and substituting Jim Keane and Al Mannino. Bob Weber took over center, Bob Penaluna replaced Del Dickerhoof at right guard, and Bob Liddy did part time work at the other guard post, where Gene Curran operates.

Bob Lauterbach, injured center, was in uniform for the first time in nearly three weeks, but his knee hasn't healed sufficiently for the Camp Grant game here Saturday.

Mother Loyal to 2 Sons in Opposing Football Camps

Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 7 (AP).—Mrs. H. H. Odell of Sioux City is going to watch the Yale-Penn football game in New Haven Saturday and she admits "it's going to be confusing." Son Howard is Yale's new head coach and son Bob is a member of the Penn back field.

along against the Boilermakers without the services of a couple of its second string backs. Joe Scriba, a sophomore left half, is out with a shoulder separation and Laurie Adelman, a sophomore full back, with a case of flu. However, Casey Piefer will be available to assist at full back after two weeks on the sick list.

ANDRETICH TO LEAD PURDUE.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 7 [Special].—John Andretich, Purdue junior right half back from Mount Carmel High school in Chicago, will be acting captain against Northwestern in Evanston on Saturday, it was announced at the end of today's practice by Coach Elmer Burnham.

Andretich, hard driving 190 pound ball carrier, has developed as an accurate passer this season, having completed five out of eight against Fordham and Vanderbilt for 93 yards.

Building up an effective aerial defense occupied main attention in the scrimmage session, against Fordham, the Boilermaker line was dented for only 112 yards, but the Rams picked up 165 yards and both of their touchdowns by air. Last Saturday, Vanderbilt's speedy back eluded Purdue's tacklers for only 116 yards, but the Commodores completed 13 of 23 passes for 187 yards to set the stage for their four touchdowns. Purdue lost both games.

Purdue's own offense was not neglected during the drill, Burnham concentrating on speeding up the attack and perfecting the ball handling in an effort to eliminate fumbling.

JACOBY'S KNEE HURT AGAIN AS INDIANA DRILLS

Capt. White May Be Ready for Huskers Saturday.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 7 [Special].—Chuck Jacoby, Indiana's junior right half back, was back on the shelf today as the Hoosiers worked for the third straight day against Nebraska's T and single wing formations. Jacoby aggravated the knee injury that kept him out of the Butler game and which confined his play to six minutes of the Ohio State contest at Columbus.

Capt. Robert White, senior full back, rejoined the squad, and Coach Bo McMillin said White may be able to play at Lincoln Saturday.

The Hoosiers will arrive in Chicago at 2:25 p. m. tomorrow and practice in Soldiers' field, leaving a few hours later for Lincoln.

Indiana's two left tackles, Bob Zimny and Fred Huff, have leg injuries, but are expected to play against the Huskers. Coach McMillin said he may have to dip again into his reservoir of backs to give his line adequate replacement strength.

The accent was on defense again today as the Hoosiers drilled against Husker offensive maneuvers.

HUSKER BACKS AILING.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 7 (AP).—Possible loss of Quarter Back Fred Metheny worried Nebraska coaches today. Metheny is nursing a lame shoulder. Randall Salisbury, reserve full back, is the other Husker on the doubtful list. A leg injury may keep him out. George Wright, a back, has been moved up to the third string.

SAILORS END HEAVY DRILL.

The Great Lakes football team yesterday held its final heavy workout in preparation for its game with Pittsburgh in Cleveland's Municipal stadium Saturday. The Bluejackets, who defeated Iowa last Saturday, will be seeking their second victory of the season.

The long practice failed to determine whether Hugh McCullough, former Oklahoma star, would start at right half back or remain as the second string left half behind Minnesota's Bruce Smith. Lieut. Paul Hinkle, head coach of the Bluejackets, probably will make a definite decision today.

BUCKEYES TEST TROJAN PLAYS.

Columbus, O., Oct. 7 [Special].—Ohio State went to work today in earnest on preparation for its game here Saturday with Southern California. Scout Tippy Dye, who was assigned to the Trojans this year, returned belatedly to Columbus from Seattle last night with the necessary information. His plane reservations were canceled and the first two days of this week were spent on brushing up offense while the team awaited Dye's arrival. Today most of the time was spent working up a defense for the Trojan plays as reported by Dye.

The only probable change in the Buckeyes' starting lineup is Dante Lavelli at end in place of Don Steinberg. The former has been on the sidelines since the first of the season with a leg injury.

The remainder of the Ohio State lineup, barring injuries, will be Bob Shaw at the other end, Charles Csuri and Bill Willis at tackles, Lin Huston and Hal Dean at guards and Bill Vickroy at center. In the back field will be Capt. George Lynn at quarter back, Les Horvath and Paul Sarringhaus at halves, and Gene Fekete at full back.

TROJANS CONTINUE WORK.

Southern California's Trojans, who play Ohio State in Columbus Saturday, held a long drill yesterday at Northwestern. Both offensive and defensive sessions were conducted, with Coach Jess Cravath placing particular stress on blocking. Practice will be held again today and possibly tomorrow before the squad moves on to Columbus.

RALLY AT CLOSE LIFTS IRREGULAR STOCK MARKET

Usual Leaders Hesitant Over Tax Outlook.

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—An irregular stock market rallied in the final hour of trade today with a flurry of buying in aircrafts, coppers, rubbers, low priced motors, shipbuilding stocks and specialties.

On fairly stable ground prior to the late upturn, some of the industrial leaders emerged with gains of a point or so, but the list also was well punctuated with losses, particularly for gold mining and merchandising shares and certain rails and utilities.

Many key issues played a relatively minor rôle, the hesitation being attributed to lack of sound clews as to what the tax bill finally will involve for business.

Gold Issues Weak.

Weakness of the gold stocks resulted from the WPB decision to suspend production thruout the industry to release men and equipment to the vital nonferrous metals field.

Homestake broke 5 points at the opening, rallied for a time and closed with a net loss of 4⅜. Anticipating similar Canadian government action, McIntyre Porcupine dropped more that a point. Curb gold stocks also declined.

United States Rubber preferred was prominent on the late revival pushing up 3 points to a 1942 high. New tops also were made by United State Rubber common, Goodrich, and International Nickel on fractional advances.

CHICAGO PRICES RISE.

Prices advanced on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday on turnover of 18,000 shares. Of 88 issues traded, 40 advanced, 23 declined, and 25 were unchanged.

Among the volume leaders, Mickelberry's Food Products rose ⅛ to a new high of 4. Chicago corporation was down ⅛, and Libby, McNeill & Libby lost ⅜.

In the final half hour, Pennsylvania railroad, Goodyear Tire and Rubber, and Zenith Radio each advanced ⅛ over the New York close, while Sears, Roebuck was up ⅜ and Swift was down ⅛.

WHEAT AND CORN LOAN TO STAY AT 85 PCT. OF PARITY

Boost Opposed as Blow to Meat Production.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard announced today that government loan rates to farmers on corn and wheat would be kept at 85 per cent of parity to encourage maximum production of meat, dairy, and poultry products for war needs. Wickard acted at the direction of James F. Byrnes, director of economic stabilization.

The new anti-inflation law directed that loan rates on the basic crops—wheat, corn, cotton, rice, tobacco, and peanuts for the edible trade—be increased from 85 to 90 per cent of parity unless such increases might interfere with food production by increasing live stock feed prices.

Other Loans to Be 90 Per Cent.

Wickard said the rates on cotton, tobacco, rice, and peanuts would be raised to the 90 per cent level, but that the department would take advantage of the exception and keep wheat and corn at 85 per cent of parity.

"Obviously, any advance in the price of corn would tend to restrict the output of live stock products so greatly needed at the present time," Wickard said. "Any increase in the loan rate on wheat would tend also to decrease the quantity of the grain fed to live stock."

The base rate for middling 15-16 inch cotton was increased from 16.02 to 17.02 cents a pound. The increase was a cent a pound above rates previously announced for all grades, staples, and locations.

Corn Loan Not Yet Fixed.

The wheat loan rate will remain at $1.40 a bushel average at the farm. The corn rate has not been announced. On the basis of the present parity price, it would be about 82.9 cents a bushel.

Wickard said neither the wheat or the corn farmer would lose by keeping the loan rate at 85 per cent of parity, since they have been assured parity return by benefit payments.

The increased rates go into effect immediately and are retroactive on loans already made on 1942 crops.

GRAINS DRIFT LOWER

Grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade drifted fractionally lower in a dull market yesterday as traders and milling interests marked time pending developments on the new price controls. Some scattered liquidation developed. Demand for wheat and rye flour was reported at a standstill.

Wheat futures closed ⅛ cent a bushel lower to ⅛ cent higher. Corn was down ⅜ cent, with all deliveries at new seasonal lows. Oats and rye were ⅛ cent lower. Soy beans were off ⅜ to ⅞ cent.

Commodities

Cotton futures yesterday closed 15 to 50 cents a bale higher on persistent buying by cash cotton handlers. Wool top futures closed unchanged to .5 cent lower.

BUNA 'S' RUBBER TERMED ALMOST EQUAL TO CRUDE

New Baruch Report Asks Speedup.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7.—The Baruch rubber committee, in an appendix issued today to its report of Sept. 10, reported that Buna S rubber, "the mainstay of the present synthetic program," wears 90 per cent as well as natural rubber when used in automobile tires.

The appendix was a statement of the relative merits of the various types of synthetic rubber now being produced in the United States.

The government's present program calls for the production in 1943 of 400,000 long tons of Buna S rubber, and an eventual annual output of 705,000 tons.

Urge Big Boost in Output.

The Baruch committee, in its report last month, recommended the 1943 output be stepped up to 450,000 long tons by quick conversion of petroleum refining plants to butadiene manufacturing plants, and that the total annual output be increased to 845,000 tons as soon as possible.

Discussing Buna S, today's report said:

"It is particularly well adapted as a material for tires, showing wearing qualities as a tire tread approximately 90 per cent of those of crude rubber. With suitable compounding successful tires in sizes up to 7.00 can be made entirely out of Buna S. In the larger truck, heavy duty and combat sizes, a certain amount of natural rubber has thus far been found necessary in the sidewalls and carcasses of the tires."

The report also said no tire carcass failures resulted when Buna S was used in tests, provided, however, the carcasses included 10 per cent crude rubber. Buna S also was found by the committee to be "apparently satisfactory" for inner tubes.

Neoprene Stands Up Well.

The report said neoprene, manufactured from a base of limestone and coke, "is the synthetic material most nearly similar in its general utility to natural rubber." At normal speeds neoprene tires were found to have 90 per cent of the mileage of crude rubber, but wore 25 per cent longer than crude under severe service. The committee found neoprene is more oil resistant than natural rubber, and is excellent for heavy duty tires.

The committee's earlier report recommended production capacity for neoprene be increased by 20,000 long tons a year over the government's program, making a total annual capacity of 69,000 tons. The production quota for neoprene set by the government is small in relation to the Buna S quota because of the relatively high cost of neoprene and the need for large amounts of electric power.

Other synthetic rubbers, butyl, flexon, and thiokol, were found by the committee to be substantially inferior to neoprene and Buna S for tires and inner tubes.

Three Types Analyzed.

A summary of the committee's findings on these three types follows:

BUTYL [made from isobutylene]—Tread wear, 40 to 50 per cent of mileage of crude rubber; carcass failures, 65 per cent of first tires failed because of blisters which developed in manufacturing process; for recaps, adhesion with crude rubber poor at first, but this difficulty overcome by recent development; for inner tubes, unsatisfactory, but may be developed.

FLEXON [made largely from isobutylene]—Tread wear, not more than 40 per cent of crude; carcass failures, frequent; for recaps, promising, altho same difficulties as with butyl at first; for inner tubes, unsatisfactory.

THIOKOL [made from ethylene chloride, sulfur and caustic soda]—Tread wear, 28 per cent of crude for comparable thickness; carcass [no report]; for recaps, suitable; for inner tubes, unsatisfactory.

Discussing reclaimed rubber, the committee found it 20 to 25 per cent as good as crude for tire treads. It also reported carcass failures with reclaimed rubber infrequent, and found it suitable as a recap and "fairly satisfactory for inner tubes."

LABOR TURNOVER MAY DELAY NEW SEC PROXY RULES

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 7 [Special].—Lack of man power in the Securities and Exchange commission and the various corporations in the United States, resulting from the war, may force the SEC to hold in abeyance a plan to institute new rules by Oct. 15 covering information to be contained in proxies for the annual meetings of corporations, it was learned today.

The proposed new rules would increase the volume of information that would be presented to stockholders by corporations in proxies.

A five man industry committee met with members of the SEC staff today. Following the meeting, it was learned that of 1,200 SEC employés in this city there had been a labor turnover of 70 per cent since Pearl Harbor, with a result that many of the present employés are unskilled. Turnover in the office forces of industry also has been heavy.

Jones & Laughlin Steel Mill Sets World Record

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 7 (AP).—The Jones and Laughlin Steel corporation reported today crews of its No. 18 rolling mill set a world production burgh works set a world production record during September, exceeding by 12½ per cent the record set by the same mill during August.

Specific Price Tops for Meat Products Near

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—Representatives of 600 independent packers were told today the Office of Price administration was preparing to establish "flat dollars and cents ceilings" on all meat products.

Assistant Price Administrator J. K. Galbraith told the senate small business committee the new ceiling regulations for pork and lamb had been prepared and that similar regulations for beef and veal would be ready soon.

Galbraith made no mention of price ceilings on live stock which the packers had told the committee were necessary if they were to operate at a profit.

Wants Debate with Leon.

"I'd like to debate Leon's regulations with him before this committee," Casey declared.

Galbraith asserted that flat prices would eliminate many inequalities which may now exist between small and large packers, provide for a better distribution of meat between areas "and allow fuller utilization of all slaughtering and processing facilities."

Middle West to Be Base.

Under the pork regulation, he continued, a base price on each green and processed pork cut would prevail uniformly in a zone encompassing the area of heavy hog production in the middle west.

"Prices for these products in other areas will be equal to the base price plus freight from designated basing point," Galbraith testified. "Allowances will be made for processing, selling and delivery of the products, but the price of any given cut at any particular point will be the same for all sellers. As near as possible, sales to the government will be at civilian levels."

He said the regulations on beef and veal also would be designed to fix flat prices in the middle west with adjustments for freight and selling costs at other points.

Says Industry Is Squeezed.

Wilbur La Roe Jr., general counsel of the National Independent Meat Packers association, told the committee the industry was caught in a "squeeze" between inadequate ceilings on meat products and the upward spiraling of prices of live animals "upon which, for reasons best known to themselves, the responsible public officials have failed to fix any prices whatever."

La Roe blamed other difficulties on higher prices paid by the government for meat products under the lend-lease program which he said the so-called "big packers" supplied because of superior equipment, leaving the independents "inadequate domestic prices." He said packers were "profoundly disappointed" Sunday to learn the price administration failed to fix live stock prices as of the highest level between Jan. 1 and Sept. 15, under the new price stabilization order of the President, or to increase the ceiling on meat products, so as to allow a margin for processing.

Canada Hikes Beef.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 7 (AP).—The wartime prices and trade board tonight announced an upward revision of the wholesale ceiling prices on beef and stricter control of retail prices, which also will increase correspondingly.

A board statement said the revision involves an increase of $1.50 a hundred pounds in the wholesale carcass price for the autumn period, ending Nov. 30. The basic Toronto maximum price will, therefore, be $17.25, with the usual differentials for the other 14 zones across Canada.

Tea Supply for Six Months on Hand; Imports Continue

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—Benjamin Wood, managing director of the tea bureau, said today tea on hand in the United States would meet present restricted demand for six or seven months. Estimated stocks as of Oct. 1 were 28 to 29 million pounds, enough for the first quarter of 1943 under quota regulations restricting tea sales to 50 per cent of last year's volume. Prospects for continuing imports from India and Ceylon were good, he said.

Expects Used Car Rationing, Price Ceilings

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Rationing and price ceilings for used automobiles were predicted yesterday by David E. Castles, St. Louis, Mo., president of the National Automobile Dealers association. He spoke before a meeting of Chicago and Illinois automobile dealers in the Knickerbocker hotel.

Castles said that competent automobile dealers oppose used car rationing on the ground that it is not needed and price ceilings because it is not believed that they could be made to work. However, he said, the attitude expressed by government officials indicates that both may be expected.

Fuel Ration to Route Sales.

The large stock of new cars which is controled by the government makes the rationing of used cars unnecessary, he said. Further, the rationing of tires and gasoline will in them selves impose a natural rationing on used car stocks because only persons who could use them advantageously would buy used cars.

Enforcement of price ceilings on used cars would be most difficult, Castles said the mechanical and physical condition of used cars varies so much—depending on the treatment given them by their owners—that it would be well nigh impossible to establish fair price ceilings.

He said he was bringing from Washington a somewhat more hopeful outlook for tires. He reported that William M. Jeffers, rubber czar, has informed representatives of the NADA that there are sufficient tires on hand to keep the present cars rolling provided that the public will coöperate in tire conservation.

Expects Tire Rule Easing.

Castles said also that he is of the opinion—altho he can give no reasons—that before long the public may be given a more liberal tire rationing program. An automobile dealer himself, Castles said he has just completed a nation-wide tour during which he addressed 19 meetings of dealers. Strange as it may seem, he said, many appear to have made money this year—a few more than last year when business was booming.

"We have a lot more troubles ahead of us," he continued. "Our business will slide down and we probably will not be making any money. But if we can keep our businesses alive and serve the public by keeping the nation's automobiles running we can consider our efforts as highly successful.

ALL GROUP RIDE MEMBERS TO GET TIRES OR RECAPS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—The OPA today made eligible for recapped or grade 2 new tires the cars of all members of a group-ride "club" in any war essential establishment employing more than 100 persons.

Previously, only one car for each group had been eligible.

The OPA said grade 2 new tires would be available, however, only when the applicant's tire casings were not recappable. Grade 2 new tires are defined as those formerly classed as third, fourth, and fifth lines.

REVERE COPPER GIVEN 'E' AWARD; AURORA FIRM HONORED TODAY

The army-navy "E" award for excellence in war production was presented yesterday to the Dallas division of Revere Copper and Brass, Inc., Chicago. More than 3,000 persons saw Rear Adm. H. A. Wiley, U. S. N. [retired], present the award to C. Donald Dallas, president. Mayor Kelly spoke. Five veteran workers were awarded "E" pins by Lieut. Col. John Slozak.

The "E" award will be presented today to the Independent Pneumatic Tool company of Aurora. Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, commander of the central defense area, and Capt. Robert Henderson of the navy will represent the services. Neil C. Hurley Jr., vice president, and six workmen will represent the company. The ceremony will climax a civic celebration of Army-Navy day in Aurora.

Warns Truck Industry Faces Critical Year

Predicting that 1943 will be a critical year for the trucking industry, Frederick C. Horner, chief of highway transportation for the war department, appealed yesterday to motor freight operators, shippers and traffic men from three states for coöperation in whatever orders may be issued to guarantee continued operation of their transportation facilities.

Horner spoke at a luncheon in the Morrison hotel sponsored by the Central Motor Freight association in conjunction with the Wisconsin Motor carriers and the Indiana Motor Truck Operators' association.

Truck Industry Vulnerable.

Commenting on the Baruch committee's report, which he said "recognized" the rubber shortage, Horner warned that the trucking industry was vulnerable to what the report termed "unfortunate contingencies" in the synthetic rubber program.

Because heavy truck tires require large amounts of crude and better synthetic rubber, they cannot use much reclaimed rubber or quickly produced "inferior substitutes like thiokol." Therefore, he added, the amount of rubber available for truck tires is much more closely contingent upon the success of the synthetics and demands of the armed forces.

Figures Show Shortage.

The report's recommendations of 59,000 tons of crude or equivalent synthetic rubber and 33,000 tons of reclaimed rubber for commercial vehicles next year, he said, compares with 188,000 tons of crude rubber used in 1941.

Warning against optimism or overconfidence, Horner added:

"I do not think that conservation measures of any great importance have been achieved in the nine months which have passer since our main supply of rubber was lost. . . . I do not believe the effectiveness of our armed forces should be jeopardized by permitting trucking services which are not needed."

ICKES FOR HIGHER OIL PRICE TOP TO INCREASE OUTPUT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—Petroleum Coördinator Harold L. Ickes, urging continued explorations for new oil fields in order to offset heavy military as well as civilian requirements, told a senate public lands subcommittee today that the price ceilings on crude oil might have to be raised to encourage wildcat drilling.

He observed that war demands had forced such heavy withdrawals from known reserves that nothing should be left undone to bring about a replenishment of the supply.

The President's program for this year and next, he said, calls for fueling and lubrication of 185,000 planes, 120,000 tanks and 18 million or more tons of ships. He asserted that the American petroleum industry must be ready to supply whatever oil is needed for the allied armed forces.

Impose Ceilings on Pumps Used to Fight Bomb Fires

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—The OPA today fixed at $3 to $3.80 retail price ceilings for 2,258,000 government-approved stirrup water pumps for fighting fires started by incendiary bombs.

Urges Income Tax Boost to Bar Inflation

John K. Langum, assistant vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, asserted yesterday that increased personal income taxes, a broader tax base and more prompt tax collections are needed to check inflation. He addressed more than 500 members and guests at the combined annual credit group and October forum of the Chicago Association of Credit Men, in the Hotel La Salle.

"We need more taxes on personal income so rising incomes can be adequately taxed," Langum said. "We need more prompt collection of taxes because a year in war and inflation is an eternity and the collection of taxes on last year's incomes is another case of 'too late.' To check inflation, we have to tap rising incomes while they are being earned."

Urges More Savings.

Langum also urged more savings from incomes. The only truly noninflationary type of government borrowing, he said, is the diversion into treasury balances of current income that otherwise would be spent. When this income is taxed or saved and diverted into the treasury, consumer expenditures out of these rising income payments are reduced, he said.

Every individual and corporation, Langum continued, can aid in financing the war thru the purchase of the treasury's series A and C tax savings notes. Series C notes, he said, offer an unusually attractive medium for the accumulation of tax reserves and for temporary investment, since they will be redeemable with accrued interest, except by commercial banks.

Pay as We Fight, He Says.

The war, he said, "must be paid for in physical terms while we fight it."

The American people, he asserted have three methods of matching higher incomes available for expenditures with a lower physical volume of consumer goods available for purchase: [1] Inflation, the "method of disaster;" [2] rationing; [3] adequate taxes and savings from current income.

"Unless price ceilings are backed up by larger taxes and savings from current income," Langum said, "we shall have a growing amount of rationing."

NET ASSET VALUE OF LEHMAN CORP. STOCK INCREASES

Net asset value per share of common stock of the Lehman corporation, New York investing company, as of Sept. 30 was $26.92 compared with $25.09 per share on June 30, Robert Lehman, president, reported yesterday. The corporation sold securities, other than the United States government obligations and short term notes, totaling $662,000 and bought $1,582,000 of securities.

Lehman reported that net ordinary income for the quarter was $498,152, or slightly more than 25 cents a share. Gross assets at market or appraised value amounted to $54,085,125 on Sept. 30. Cash and government bonds totaled $6,271,328, or 11.6 per cent of total assets.

Important changes reported by Lehman included the following increases or additions in holdings: Deere & Co., 3,000 shares; Oliver Farm Equipment, 3,200 shares; J. I. Case, 1,000 shares; Standard Oil of California, 12,000 shares; Barber Asphalt, 7,000 shares; Johns-Manville, 1,500 shares; Sherwin-Williams, 800 shares; American Viscose, 4,500 shares; Twentieth Century Fox, 5,000 shares; United Air Lines, 3,700. The corporation sold 4,800 shares of Santa Fe stock, reducing its holding to 15,000 shares.

URGES FULL USE OF HOUSING FOR WAR WORKERS

Chicago must use its existing supply of housing more intensively than ever before, Fred Kramer, vice president of Draper & Kramer, Inc., and formerly chief assistant to John Blandford, head of the National Housing agency, told members of the Chicago Real Estate board last night.

"Our home registration offices in Chicago must be turned into a war housing center supported by the whole community, so war workers may readily find housing and reduce transportation problems as much as is feasible," he said.

"Further, as rehabilitation and conversion save materials, money, men, and time, a new program for its development must be entered into so that thousands of additionaly family units will be brought into the market."

PEOPLE AND EVENTS

Problems relative to the war will be discussed by members of the American Oil Chemists' society at their 16th annual fall meeting, opening today in the Drake hotel. J. J. Vollertsen, of Armour and company, is in charge of arrangements; Dr. J. K. Gunther of Swift & Co., heads the program committee, and H. S. Mitchell, chief chemist for Swift & Co., is society president.

LARGEST LOAN OF WAR PUT ON MARKET TODAY

4 Billions of Bonds, Notes Offered.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—The treasury announced tonight it would offer for sale tomorrow morning 4 billion dollars of securities, comprising the largest single borrowing operation of the present war.

The borrowing, which will raise the treasury debt above 95 billions, will give investors a choice of two different types of securities.

They will be invited to buy either 2 per cent 8 to 10 year bonds or 1¼ per cent 4 year and 2 month treasury notes. Departing from usual practice, the treasury assigned no quota to either type of issue, and announced that the 4 billions to be sold would be divided between the two issues in proportion to the preference shown by investors for the two types. The notes are identical with 1 billion 18 million worth of notes sold June 5.

Seek Nonbank Investors.

The financing contained another new principle, designed to further the government's policy of borrowing as much money as possible from all other types of investors before borrowing from banks.

The new provision is that subscriptions of all other types of investors, except banks, will be filled in full, and banks will be sold only enough securities, if any, to make up the 4 billions which the treasury wants at this time. The only exception to this will be that bank subscriptions up to $25,000 each will be filled in full. This provision was designed only to help small banks.

Officials said that the victory fund committee, an organization of commercial and investment bankers, has been asked to encourage nonbank investors to buy as many of these securities as possible, and also to encourage banks in areas away from New York and Chicago to participate.

Flow of Funds Shifted.

New York and Chicago banks have been running out of investment funds lately, because the rise of war industries has forced a shift in the usual flow of the nation's investment funds, which in the past have largely gone to the two big cities.

The treasury will begin receiving subscriptions for the new securities the first thing Thursday morning and will close the subscription books Friday night.

At least one more financing operation is expected by the treasury this month because of the necessity of refunding 1½ billions of treasury certificates of indebtedness which will come due for payment Nov. 1.

THIRD QUARTER STEEL OUTPUT 2D BEST ON RECORD

New York, Oct. 7 (AP).—The American Iron and Steel institute said today steel production of 21,449,359 tons in the third quarter of 1942 was the second highest three months' total in history.

The latest quarterly aggregate came within a fraction of a percentage point of the record 21,531,358 tons produced in the second quarter and exceeded by 4 per cent output in the 1941 third quarter.

Production of 64,019,606 tons of steel in the 1942 first nine months was 4 per cent more than the like 1941 period and exceeded tonnage produced in any whole year prior to 1940.

$102.04 A PERSON! THAT'S NEW RECORD MONEY IN CIRCULATION

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—Money in circulation in the United States has for the first time in history reached an average of more than $100 a person, the treasury disclosed today.

On Sept. 30 there was $13,707,554,440 worth of coin and currency in circulation, equal to $102.04 for every man, woman, and child in the nation. This compared with $98.32 at the end of August and $76.23 a year ago.

Money in circulation has been increasing rapidly under the war production program because of increased business needs for cash and also, to some extend, it is said, because of hoarding.

Interest Yield on Insurance Assets to Fall

Constantly increasing investments in government securities will improve the quality of life insurance company assets but lower the average return thru interest payments, A. J. McAndless, retiring president of the American Life Convention, said yesterday at the organization's 37th annual meeting in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

W. C. Schuppel.

The industry, he said, is likely to invest as much as 3 billion dollars a year in government securities, toward the cost of financing a war which, according to current estimates, will exceed 70 billion dollars a year.

"Our reserves," McAndless said, "constitute probably the largest single reservoir of savings in our economy."

Elect New President.

W. C. Schuppel, executive vice president of the Oregon Mutual Life Insurance company of Portland, was elected president of the convention at last night's session. McAndless, president of the Lincoln National Life Insurance company, Fort Wayne, Ind., was reëlected a member of the executive committee. Members of the American Life Convention, which maintains headquarters in Chicago, include 171 life insurance companies of the United States and Canada.

Thus far, McAndless told the insurance men, economic changes incident to war have been helpful rather than detrimental to insurance. Investment yields from railroad securities have increased because of the rising rail earnings resulting from war traffic, and utility securities remain prime investments even tho the industry is likely to be adversely affected by new taxation, he said.

Insurance companies have been able to liquidate more of their investments in residential real estate properties because of increasing housing demands and building restrictions, and the sale of farm properties has improved because of indications the government will subsidize farmers to achieve maximum food production, he said.

Long War Will Cut Income.

"The disturbing trend is the continuous downward movement in the rate of interest earned on total funds," McAndless said.

"The longer the war lasts the worse our position is likely to become as the ratio of government investments to total investments increases, so that the average rate of interest earned on our assets will decrease. This will improve the quality of our assets but reduce the yield.

"The other factor which is working strongly in the same direction is the accelerated rate of repayment on existing mortgages and funded indebtedness. In such a period as this, with relatively high incomes and relatively high rates of profit, both individuals and corporations will attempt to put themselves in good financial condition for withstanding a postwar shock. The force of both these factors will be in the direction of reducing our over all rate of return."

95,000 BUSINESS FIRMS LISTED IN CHICAGO DISTRICT

Michael F. Mulcahy, metropolitan OPA director, announced yesterday that his office has found 95,000 business establishments in the area, exclusive of attorneys, physicians, dentists, and other professions. Reports from a few suburban rationing boards are expected to boost the total by one or two thousand.

Included are retailers, wholesalers, jobbers, manufacturers, and service firms. Each establishment is indexed, which, Mulcahy said, forms not only an accurate record, but a mailing list for the OPA.

He said his office is checking the records to learn which retail and service establishments did not file required statements covering ceilings on goods and services. He warned that filing deadlines are past and continued failure to file will result in OPA investigation.

Kaiser and Hughes File Articles for Cargo Planes

Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 7 (AP).—Henry J. Kaiser, Pacific coast shipbuilder, and Howard R. Hughes, Texas tool manufacturer, took another step toward building giant cargo airplanes today with the filing of articles of incorporation in building three trial cargo planes for the government. The organization was capitalized at 100 shares of no par value.

U. S. TAKES OVER SHIP OPERATION ON GREAT LAKES

Best Use of Cargo Space Sought.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—Defense Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman today assumed control of all commercial vessels operating in domestic traffic on the Great Lakes in a further move to make sufficient cargo space available for transportation of iron ore and other war materials.

Eastman issued an order requiring, with certain exceptions, permits for the movement of these boats. The order, to become effective Oct. 19, asserts the authority of the Office of Defense Transportation to direct the service of affected craft in any manner which is believes necessary for preferential movement of war materials.

Enabling the ODT to put into effect a new schedule of domestic shipping priorities set up recently by the War Production board, the order authorizes ODT to order the vessels to operate between any Great Lakes ports at any time and serve under the charter or lease of any persons specified by it.

Need for Cargo Space Rises.

The action, said Eastman, was prompted by steadily increasing requirements of cargo space for the movement of iron ore from the Lake Superior mines and for transportation of other war-essential commodities.

It brought to approximately 3½ million the tonnage of Great Lakes craft—about 735 in number—now under ODT control. The 32 lake vessels capable of transporting liquid cargo in bulk had been brought under ODT control earlier.

Operators and others interested in affected vessels were directed by the order to keep such records and make such reports as ODT may require. The order reserved to ODT the right to determine the carrying capabilities of any craft.

ODT to Decide Compensation.

In the absence of agreements by interested parties concerning compensation for vessels chartered or rented at ODT direction, the ODT is to determine the amount, subject to price maximums, established by government authority.

Eastman announced he had revoked an earlier order restricting grain shipments on the lakes because these movements would be controled by the new order.

Specifically exempted from the order were transportation by vessels of property consigned by or to government agencies, or owned, controled, or operated by the government or any of its departments "except governmental corporations.

Output of the Commonwealth Edison group of companies was lower than the week before but 4.2 per cent higher than a year ago. Last week's production of 160,404,000 kilowatt hours compared with 161,546,000 for the preceding week and 153,989,000 in the corresponding week last year.

ILLINOIS TO FIGHT WPB SCRAPPING OF RAILROAD LINE

Injunction Suit Threatened by Commerce Body.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 7 (AP).—The Illinois Commerce commission today served notice that it would go to court "if necessary" to prevent the Illinois Terminal railroad from taking up 130 miles of its tracks in central Illinois, as the electric line has been ordered to do by the War Production board.

Chairman John D. Biggs announced the commission would "instruct" Attorney Gen. George F. Barrett to institute injunction proceedings against the road if the WPB stuck to its order requisitioning the Decatur-Mackinaw Junction and Decatur-Danville branches of the ITR for rail and metal salvage.

The railroad has announced its intention to comply with the federal order by ceasing service on the two branches at 12:01 a. m. next Sunday.

Studies Test of WPB Power.

Prior to issuance of Biggs' statement, Attorney Gen. Barrett had said he was studying the legal aspects of the dispute between the commission and the federal board. He said the WPB's authority had never been challenged in a similar case.

While the outcome of the dispute thus remained in doubt, A. P. Titus, president and general manager of ITR, testified at an ICC hearing that he thought the lines in question could be abandoned "with as little inconvenience as any in the country."

Officials of various cities along the line have joined in an appeal to WPB to reconsider its order.

Traffic Termed Nonessential.

"I think the majority of the passenger travel on the lines to be abandoned is nonessential, and ought to be stopped, and will be stopped," said Titus.

He said 95 per cent of the rails are in such condition that they readily could be relaid where they are more urgently needed to serve military establishments or war plants. The WPB has estimated that scrapping of the lines would yield 19,700 tons of vital metals.

The ITR president and James J. Graham, counsel for the Burlington railroad, both denied that the Burlington intended to purchase remaining sections of the Terminal system. Ralph Rouse, Danville city corporation counsel, had told the commission he had "information" to that effect.

AUTO FINANCING.

Have you any figures to show the decline in volume of automobile financing since the end of 1940? Are new outlets for funds of major finance companies being utilized to any extent?—G. H. W.

Answer: Retail automobile financing in the United States for the first seven months of 1942 totaled approximately 252 million dollars, compared with almost 1 billion 442 million in the corresponding 1941 period.

Several large finance companies have invested funds in other businesses, such as insurance companies and manufacturing enterprises. In some cases interests have been purchased in companies engaged primarily in war production. The industry, however, expects a smaller percentage return from these investments than from installment financing of consumers goods.

L. & N.

Is the Louisville and Nashville railroad controled by another road? Has the L. & N. paid dividends on its capital stock continually since 1900?—J. E.

Answer: At the end of 1941 the Atlantic Coast Line railroad owned 51 per cent of the 1,170,000 outstanding shares of the Louisville and Nashville railroad.

With the exception of 1933, L. & N. has paid dividends each year since 1900. The road has paid $5 to date this year.

Principal service is furnishing electricity. Water and telephone service from a minor part of operations.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BEN MARKLAND

Signs of Arriving Autumn.

Oct. 7, 1942.

THE "quick change act" performed by trees in Chicagoland cities and farm areas provided the most noticeable evidence of the week that autumn is taking charge of the landscape, but during a few hours of wandering thru the woodlots and chatting with the residents of the Wheaton farm it was easy to discover the new leaf colors aren't the only signs of a new season.

Goldenrod flowers turned to dusty gray by early frosts; housewives canning pears from farm orchards and grape juice made from the fruits of the farm vineyard; carpets of bright red thornapples beneath trees which provided ground covering of pink blossoms in the same areas last spring; youngsters riding their bicycles to school thru autumnal fogs.

Lazy Steers Staring.

Lazy Hereford steers, puzzled by the cool weather, stand alongside country roads and stare at every passing auto; the farm flockmaster put a six inch layer of clean straw on the floor of the chicken house to insulate it against approaching cold weather; sturdy New England asters and small purple asters remain erect and colorful in the farm fields despite the first attacks of frost, and the brilliant red leaves of Virginia creeper vines climb over farm fences and scramble up the trunks of oaks and hickories in the woodlots—these and other symbols of autumn augment the changed hues of the ashes, elms, maples, and oaks.

Each October one Virginia creeper vine puts on a special show of its own in the yard of one of the farm homes. When this plant attaches itself to living trees its colorful five parted leaves often are obscured by the tree's vegetation. The Virginia creeper plant in this farm yard grows from the base of a dead bur oak tree—a scraggly, barkless giant which makes a perfect rack for the climbing tendencies of the Virginia creeper.

New Beauty to Bur Oak.

Early in the week we made our annual October visit to see this particular vine in its dress of autumn red. It almost covers the huge trunk of the tree, and its shoots extend up 35 or 40 feet into the dead branches. Virginia creeper plants weave in and out of fences and curl around tree trunks in many areas of the farm, but none provide such a spectacular display as this one in the farm yard which has given new beauty to a bur oak which otherwise would be only a blemish on the landscape.

OPA RAISES LARD CEILING; NAMES 3 BASING POINTS

Maximum Prices Marked Up .9 Cent a Pound.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7 (AP).—The Office of Price Administration acted today to raise the maximum prices of lard processors in a regulation it said was designed to bring lard prices into line with shortening prices.

It established new price ceilings for loose lard at the processor level, effective Oct. 13, thru the use of three base points:

1. Chicago and East St. Louis basing area, including the continental United States east of the Mississippi river and north of Tennessee and North Carolina.
2. Kansas City basing point area, east of the Mississippi and south of Kentucky and Virginia.
3. Multiple basing point area, west of the Mississippi.

Chicago Prices Up .9 Cent.

The maximum price for loose lard was set for the Chicago and East St. Louis area at 12.80 cents a pound, in tank cars, delivered within the corporate limits of basing points. This compared with an 11.90 price ceiling at Chicago previously, the OPA said.

New ceilings for the other two areas were set at 12.55 cents.

The tank car freight rate per pound from the nearest basing point in the area involved to the community of sale can be added to the basing point price to get the processors' delivered ceiling price.

OPA said that maximum prices for cash lard and futures contracts traded on the Chicago Board of Trade would be 13.80 cents a pound.

HOGS RISE AGAIN

An abrupt decrease in shipments of hogs from farms yesterday, coupled with news that the OPA raised the lard ceilings 90 cents a hundred pounds, effective Oct. 13, and that packers are being pressed for heavier lend-lease deliveries of pork products, sent the market for hogs in the Chicago stockyards up 15 to 25 cents in a lively session.

Only 14,000 hogs arrived during the day, including directs to packers.

DON'T BORROW

Borrowing is not always the proper solution to a money shortage. But there are times when a loan is both provident and wise. For instance, you might borrow to move into a more economical house, nearer to work . . . to pay cash for medical and dental attention before your favorite doctor is called into the armed forces . . . to buy winter fuel and clothing . . . to clean up past due charge accounts and other bills . . . to buy tools, to pay union dues, or to take special courses for a new job on war production . . . and for many other purposes equally worthy. Loans $10 to $300. "While you wait" service to those who phone ahead or come prepared to present proper identification and evidence of employment.

"Salvage for Victory"

This poster-like [illegible] cartoon is presented with the object of helping to stimulate the nation-wide campaign for the collection of scrap metal to be converted into weapons and other equipment of war. Last Monday began the "children's crusade," involving 30 million school children of America, each of whom is expected to do his or her bit in the collection of scrap. This crusade is to continue for the duration of the war. In addition, all other persons are considered volunteers in this drive to pile up mountains of scrap for the mighty furnaces of victory.
